Jonathan Miller

Theater and opera director

Jonathan Miller is a “physician and neuropsychologist, a prolific author and lecturer,” wrote The New York Times. “[He] knows more than a little about everything. He combines qualities that shouldn’t be combined in one person: he is both a performer and a thinker.”

Miller first gained international prominence with Beyond the Fringe, the 1960 play that redefined the boundaries of comedy, launching a lunatic legacy that has stretched from Monty Python to Saturday Night Live. He has enjoyed one of the most stellar careers in modern theater, directing countless plays (including 11 for the BBC’s Shakespeare series) and over 50 operas at some of the world’s most distinguished venues from La Scala to The Metropolitan Opera.

He has written and presented several major series for the BBC and PBS including The Body in Question, a landmark series on the history of medicine and, most recently, A Brief History of Disbelief. His books include The Human Body, The Facts of Life, Subsequent Performances, Nowhere in Particular and On Reflection, based on his lectures.

For colleges and universities interested in an extended visit, Dr. Miller accepts occasional one or two-week residencies. His multidisciplinary expertise has made these very popular. ❖

BIOGRAPHY

THEATER & OPERA DIRECTOR
PHYSICIAN

Jonathan Miller's career has covered many different fields: author, lecturer, television producer and presenter, theatre, opera and film director.

Born in London, the son of a distinguished child psychiatrist, he was educated at St. Paul's School, read natural sciences at St. John's College, Cambridge and qualified as a doctor of medicine in 1959.

Whilst at university, Jonathan Miller appeared as a member of the Cambridge Footlights and subsequently accepted an invitation to co-author and appear in "Beyond the Fringe" with Alan Bennett, Peter Cook and Dudley Moore. This now legendary satirical review opened at the Edinburgh Festival in 1960 and later transferred to London and New York.

Thereafter, Jonathan Miller's career has been inextricably linked with the stage and he has directed many memorable productions - The Merchant of Venice with Sir Laurence Olivier and Joan Plowright, The Taming of the Shrew (RSC), The Seagull (Chichester Festival Theatre), A Long Day's Journey Into Night (Haymarket Theatre) and The Emperor (Royal Court). Between January 1988 and October 1990, as Artistic Director of the Old Vic, Dr. Miller directed a number of highly acclaimed productions including Andromache with Janet Suzman, The Tempest with Max von Sydow, King Lear and Corneille's comedy The Liar. More recent productions in London include A Midsummer Night's Dream (Almeida Theatre), The Beggar's Opera for Broomhill Opera, and Camera Obscura, again for the Almeida Theatre, and also King Lear at the Lincoln Center, New York. He has most recently had a huge success with Chekov's The Cherry Orchard at The Crucible, Sheffield.

Jonathan Miller's involvement in the world of opera began when he was invited to direct the British premiere in 1974 of Arden Must Die by Alexander Goehr. He spent several seasons working closely with Kent Opera, and subsequently with English National Opera for which he directed some of his most enduring successes - The Marriage of Figaro, The Turn of the Screw, Rosenkavalier, Carmen, and The Mikado and Rigoletto, both of which have been revived in 2006.

He has also worked at many of the world's leading opera houses - the Maggio Musicale, Florence; La Scala, Milan; Metropolitan Opera, New York; Deutsche Staatsoper Berlin; Bayerische Staatsopera; Vienna Staatsoper; Salzburg Festival and at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. He has directed productions in Florence, Stockholm, London, Tokyo and at the Mostly Mozart Festival in New York. Productions in 2006 included Così fan tutti in Seattle, Jenufa at Glimmerglass, La Traviata in Vilnius and Bach's St. Matthew Passion in New York. Then in 2007 he directed L'Elisir d'Amore at New York City Opera, Don Giovanni at the Palau in Valencia, Rosenkavalier at the New National Theatre, Tokyo, Fidelio at Den Jyske Opera, Aarhus and he revived his hugely successful Così fan Tutte at the Royal Opera House, London. In addition, his semi-staging of Monteverdi's Orfeo is enjoyed a successful world tour in 2007 with the New London Consort.

For over 30 years Jonathan Miller has contributed prolifically to the BBC and independent television. His 1966 film of Alice in Wonderland is regarded as being one of his greatest achievements. Between 1980-1982 he produced and directed 11 plays for the BBC's prestigious Shakespeare series, in 1984, The Beggar's Opera and in 1985, Così fan tutte. His semi-staged performance of Bach's St. Matthew Passion, which was given in London in 1993, and then in Spain and New York, was also filmed for BBC2.

Television has allowed Dr. Miller to explore aspects of his first career as doctor and neurologist. He has written and presented several major series such as The Body in Question, States of Mind, Who Cares, Born Talking, Museums of Madness, Anthropology and more recently, Opera Works. His latest series for the BBC, A Brief History of Disbelief was broadcast in the autumn of 2004 and was repeated on BBC2 soon after. The highly acclaimed series was aired in the U.S. on public television in 2007. In 2005 he made a 5-part series for BBC Radio 4 entitled Self-made Things.

Jonathan Miller is a frequent lecturer on a wide variety of subjects. He gave a series of lectures at the National Gallery entitled "From the Look of Things" which he subsequently delivered at the Metropolitan Museum in New York and at the Arts Institute of Chicago. He returns to the USA each year as a guest lecturer.

In September 1998, Jonathan Miller was curator of a major exhibition at the National Gallery, London entitled Mirror Image, which explored the pictorial representation of reflection. The following autumn, a book of his photographs and extracts from his notebooks, Nowhere in Particular, was published by Mitchell Beazley.

Jonathan Miller was awarded the honorary title Doctor of Letters by Cambridge University and in 1997, was elected as a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in London. In 1998 he was admitted as a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in Edinburgh. He is also a Foreign Member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

In June 2002, he was knighted in The Queen's Jubilee Birthday Honours List. ❖

Jonathan Miller

AUDIENCE COMMENTS

“He inspires the life of the mind, and he inspires it in truly interdisciplinary ways.... He doesn't just answer a question; he truly interrogates it... He informs his answers with a wealth of knowledge and experience as well as a droll wit.... He is so multi-layered in his answers and so encyclopedic that he leaves you spinning in awe, inspiration and excitement. He seems as equally at home discussing genetics with a geneticist as he is arguing logic with a philosopher.”

Skidmore College

“Jonathan Miller’s residency at Vanderbilt University captured the imagination of hundreds of people in the community, and he transformed the lives of the students and faculty members he worked with in the theater, concert hall, and medical center. It was a defining moment in the life of the University.”

Vanderbilt University

“...Miller was absolutely magnificent.”

Portland Arts & Lecture Series

“Dr. Miller threw himself into all of the events, which went well literally from morning to night. It was truly extraordinary, and I will always be immensely grateful for the opportunity that I had, for one magical week, to spend time with him.”

The University of Texas at Austin

“...From our own Provost down to first term freshman who heard the man, there is only the very highest of praise. In my thirty years of university teaching, I do not know of any famous visitor who impressed more people more favorably!”

Ball State University

“...everyone was so completely enriched and enthralled by his intelligence, wit, knowledge, and openness to sharing himself with us that day. Jonathan's morning lecture was filled to capacity (over 600 people attended, including a local high school drama and English entourage of about 80 students who walked over a mile to hear him!) The evening lecture was also very well attended, and many of our faculty was ecstatic at having the opportunity for their students to interact with him. In his brief stay with us, Jonathan's connections to people and willingness to impart his knowledge to all made him a friend that we will not forget. Many of us will enjoy watching for news of his upcoming projects and programs in the months and years ahead. Jonathan was a highlight in the Harold Stoner Clark Lectures, and a bright star in the University's programs this year.”

In Print

Nowhere in Particular

For the past 30 years Jonathan Miller has pursued the unlikely hobby of photographing unusual and bizarre objects. In his acute, perceptive gaze, ordinary details of the everyday world, often ignored or overlooked, somehow take on a life of their own. These strange and enigmatic pictures are presented in a unique and highly personal volume, together with Miller's notebook jottings, which illuminate his observations on life and art.

On Reflection

In On Reflection, Jonathan Miler investigates the efforts of painters to represent the effects of light on various reflective surfaces. Discussing a selection of works from artists as diverse as Rembrandt and Rockwell, he shows that the depiction of reflections has challenged painters for centuries.

Subsequent Performances

In Subsequent Performances, Jonathan Miller draws on his more than twenty years in the performing arts to illustrate and explore the question of the "afterlife" of a dramatic work of art, when it has outlasted its creator and when time begins to impose awkward problems of re-creation and interpretation.

The Facts of Life

In The Facts of Life intricate three dimensional illustrations depict all the wonders of human reproduction. With full-color pop-up models and in a clear, easy to understand narrative, Dr. Jonathan Miller conveys not only the facts of reproduction, but its joys.

The Human Body

Discover what happens inside your body. By operating this unique book, you can make a heart beat, lungs breathe and muscles contract. The three-dimensional and movable illustrations enable you to experience the mechanisms by which you think, see, hear, move and stay alive.
