

Call for Papers

Aspects of al-Ghazali's Influence on Modern and Contemporary Islam

A Workshop at Yale University, December 9–10, 2011

December 2011 will mark the 900th anniversary of the death of al-Ghazali, one of Islam's most influential theologians and thinkers. His contributions to Islamic scholarship range from responding to the challenges of Aristotelian philosophy to creating a new type of Islamic mysticism and integrating both these traditions—falsafa and Sufism—into the Sunni mainstream. At the same time he advocated for a virtue theory within the deontological system of Ash'arite ethics, introduced the consideration of "public benefit" into Islamic jurisprudence, and promoted a more morally conscious kind of Islamic scholarship.

While al-Ghazali's influence on the centuries right after his death is evident and tangible in many writers, the ways he influenced Muslim thinkers in the modern and contemporary era is less clear. Yet we know, for instance, that al-Ghazali's Revival of The Religious Sciences was among the books favored by Hasan al-Banna' and read in the evening classes of the early Muslim Brotherhood. This call for papers solicits contributions to the study of al-Ghazali's position within Islamic discourses during the 19th, 20th, and 21st centuries, be it in the fields of philosophy, Sufism, education, political theory, ethics, or any other topic. This can be in the form of a positive influence as well as in the form of an adversary that is argued against.

Abstracts of no more than 600 words along with a short bio or CV should be submitted by January 12, 2011 preferably via e-mail to Amaar al-Hayder, Council on Middle East Studies, Yale University, amaar.al-hayder@yale.edu.

THE WHITNEY AND BETTY MACMILLAN CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL AND AREA STUDIES AT YALE

COUNCILS & COMMITTEES African Studies Council; Canadian Studies Committee; East Asian Studies Council; European Studies Council; International Affairs Council; Latin American and Iberian Studies Council; Middle East Studies Council; South Asian Studies Council; Southeast Asia Studies Council

PROGRAMS & INITIATIVES British Historical Studies Colloquium; European Union Studies Program; Fox International Fellowship Program; Genocide Studies Program; Hellenic Studies Program; Georg Walter Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy; MacMillan Center Initiative on Religion, Politics, and Society; Program in Agrarian Studies; Program in Ethnicity, Race, and Migration; Program on Order, Conflict, and Violence; Programs in International Educational Resources (PIER); Transitions to Modernity; Women, Religion, and Globalization Program

CENTERS Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition; Yale Center for the Study of Globalization