About Health Affairs

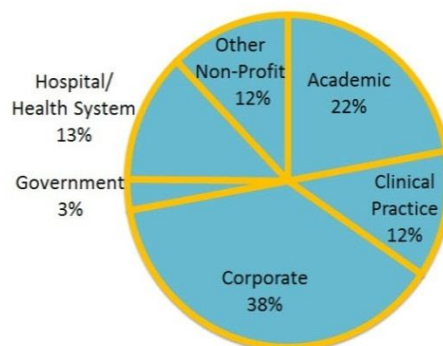

Health Affairs, the nation's leading peer-reviewed health policy journal, is focused on the intersection of health, health care, and policy. Its mission is to serve as a high-level, nonpartisan forum to promote analysis and discussion on improving health and health care, and to address such issues as cost, quality, and access.

Impact: Health Affairs articles are cited by US administration officials, US lawmakers, and ministry of health leaders around the globe. US congressional testimony between January 2013 and May 2014 featured 34 mentions, and US Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts cited the journal in his decision regarding the Affordable Care Act.

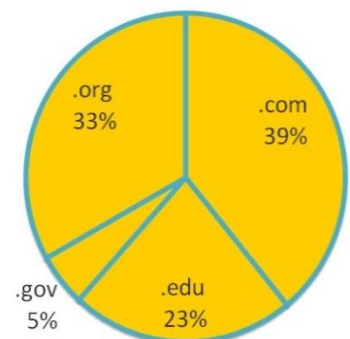

Audience: Government health leaders (local, national, and international); decision makers at hospitals, insurance companies, and other health care industries; researchers and academics in economics, law, public health, sociology, health administration, medicine, nursing, and political science; advocates; consultants; investment analysts.

Topics: access to care, health spending, quality, health reform, delivery innovations, insurance coverage, Medicare/and Medicaid, prescription drug coverage and costs, physician practice, nursing trends, health information technology, malpractice and health law, hospitals, and more.
