ABC returns 'Rookie Blue' to summer patrol

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Six television seasons into being a police officer, it's debatable whether you're a rookie anymore.

With that said, the cops of "Rookie Blue" always are discovering something new — personally as well as professionally — and that's destined to remain the case as the sixth season of the Canadian-made drama starts its ABC run Thursday, June 25. As they were in 2014, the new episodes are being shown a month earlier in their native country, but spoilers for U.S. audiences were remarkably sparse last summer.

"We were pretty careful about that," recalls Missy Peregrin, alias the series' Officer Andy McNally. "It was a little weird doing press, because I didn't want to say anything that would spoil it for America, either. We didn't really respond to a lot of stuff or put things out there, just so all the fans could enjoy it at the time they were able to see it."

Having emerged from an explosion at the 15 Division precinct shaken but relatively unscathed, Andy now faces a fresh emotional crisis. After reuniting romantically with Detective Sam Swarek (Ben Bass) following his near-fatal shooting, she learns he's expecting a baby with fellow officer Marlo Cruz (Rachael Ancheril), who was Sam's flame while he and Andy had broken off their relationship.

"It is obviously very difficult," confirms Peregrin. "Things are starting to look up (for Andy and Sam), so we've gotta smack it down with something." The actress had input into how that went down: "I love our team so much, because I have the freedom to go and talk to somebody and say, 'I'm sorry, but this is how I feel like this would really go down. Can we work this out?' They're so open to that."

Another major new "Rookie Blue" plot suggests last season's police-station bombing may have been, at least partially, an inside job. "You don't know who to trust anymore," Peregrin reflects. "Last season, the dynamic between Andy and Matt Gordon's character (Staff Sergeant Oliver Shaw) got roughed up; he was like the father figure to her, but their positions are changing, so what does that mean for their working together? Matt's such a great actor. He always brings so much to the table, and that extends into this season as well."

The 'Rawhide' roots of Clint Eastwood's career

BY JAY BOBBIN © Zap2it

Q: In what years did Clint Eastwood make "Rawhide"? – Joe Ryan, Boulder, Colo.

A: He was there for the entire eight-season run, which aired from early 1959 to late 1965 (encompassing a couple of half-seasons). Eastwood's Rowdy Yates was a staple of the CBS show, to the degree that he's the character most prominently featured on the complete-series DVD set recently issued by CBS Video and Paramount Home Entertainment ... but of course, the actor-director's own iconic status is a huge selling point, too.

It was in 1964 that Eastwood used a break from the show to head to Spain and work for director Sergio Leone on the movie "A Fistful of Dollars," after his "Rawhide" co-star Eric Fleming had turned down the role of the now-legendary Man With No Name. It took another three years – a year after "Rawhide" ended – for the film to reach America, and its release was followed within months by both of the other parts of the trilogy, "For a Few Dollars More" and "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly."

For as popular as Eastwood had been on television, his big-screen career absolutely exploded at that point. And the rest has been ongoing Hollywood history for the better part of 50 years.

Q: Will "Doc Martin" ever be on PBS again? I haven't seen it scheduled in a long time. – Kathleen Jarrett, New Hartford, N.Y.

A: You'll want to ask your local PBS affiliate about that, since it's their decision. Though it has been shown on many public-television stations, "Doc Martin" actually isn't a network-provided show, instead syndicated by a separate program supplier called American Public Television ... admittedly with a name close to PBS, but it isn't PBS. A seventh season of the Martin Clunes- starring program (initially made for England's ITV network) is in the works, but it's been reported that it possibly could be the final one.

Q: Why do so many shows use actors who simultaneously have other roles on other shows? I see this quite often. Is there a shortage of TV actors? – Peter Lauro, Port St. Lucie, Fla.

A: If you were to take a look at the membership lists of the now-merged performers' unions SAG and AFTRA, any thought you might have about a possible shortage of television actors would be torpedoed pretty rapidly. As for some performers having multiple roles and shows at the same time, perhaps you might want to consider the word "talent."

In many instances, producers know just who they want for a role – and even if not, the actor in question evidently gave an audition sufficient for him or her to land the job. And if he or she is lucky enough to have schedules work out so he or she can perform multiple roles simultaneously (not necessarily an easy thing to do, which is even more to their credit), we say, "Good for them."

Monday

So You Think You Can Dance

7 p.m. on WDAF
A ’70s disco song was titled “N.Y., You Got Me Dancing,” and the new episode “Auditions No. 4 New York” has much the same theme. The Big Apple certainly has no shortage of street dancers as well as stage dancers, holding to this season’s premise, and both vie for spots in the contest in this last stop before the season’s callbacks. Paula Abdul, Jason Derulo and Nigel Lythgoe are the judges looking for greatness among the hopefuls. Cat Deeley is the host.

2 Broke Girls

7 p.m. on KCTV
Many people probably wouldn’t mind the birthday present Caroline (Beth Behrs) receives belatedly from her father in “And the Past and the Furious.” It’s a car he bought for her several years earlier ... and not just any car, but a sleek Lamborghini, which looks even more interesting with a “broke girl” behind the wheel. Antiques Roadshow

7 p.m., 1 a.m. on KCPT, KTWU
The series returns to California – and to items that it originally appraised in 2000 – in the new episode “Vintage Sacramento.” A poster from Abraham Lincoln’s 1864 presidential campaign and an oil painting by Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel are among the objects revisited, and the change in their value over the years is nothing to sneeze at: In some cases, it’s gone up as much as $50,000. Mark L. Walberg is the host.
