

JUAN ZELADA

“BACK ON TRACK”

Released by MUWOM

All songs written and arranged by Juan Zelada

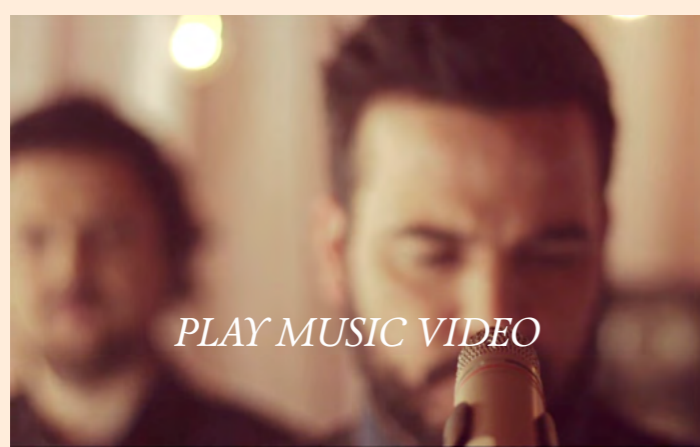

After spending many years in the UK, Juan Zelada is back with a new album called “Back on Track” recorded in his homeland Spain. The new album is an ambitious mix of styles ranging from Soul to electronic music. Produced by renowned Spanish producer Carlos Jean, the album includes collaborations with the likes of “Bebe” and the Argentinian rap band “Femina”. The multi-platinum producer considers this album one of his best works to date.

References include soul, blues, pop melodies and big beat rhythms as well as electronic loops.

His first single “Dreaming Away” has been included in many national Spanish radios and also a national advertising campaign.

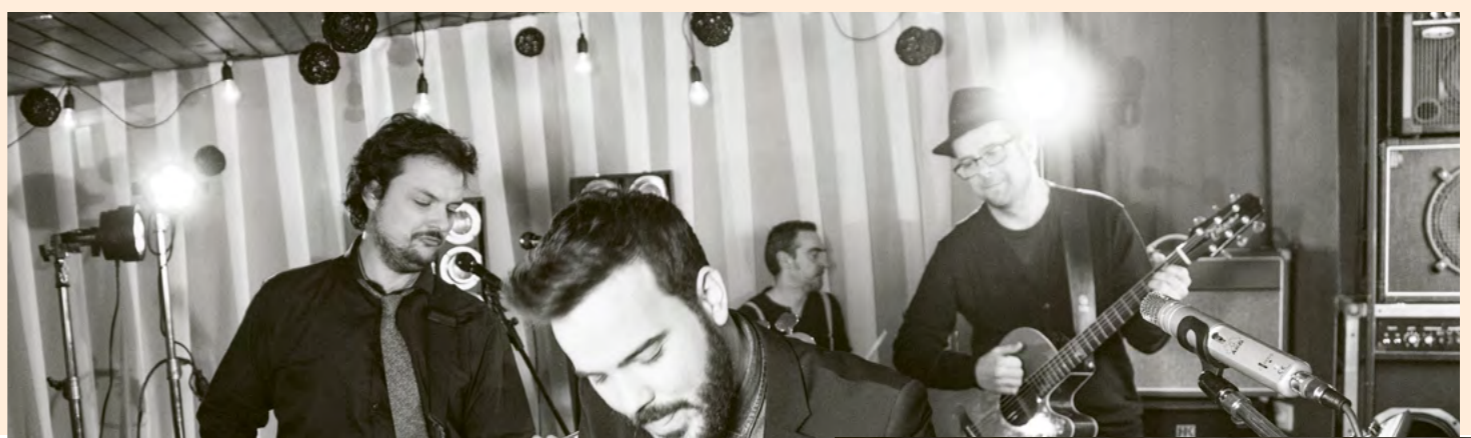

AVAILABLE ON

PLAY MUSIC VIDEO

DREAMING AWAY

PRESS

radio 3 rne

180 Grados

“They had Wilson Pickett in Detroit, they have Eli ‘Paperboy’ Reed in Boston and today in Madrid we are welcoming Juan Zelada in 180 Grados on Radio 3.”

Virginia Díaz

CADENA SER

La Ventana

“Juan Zelada, international talent at home.”

The Madrid-born singer, who is following a successful career in the British market, releases his new album produced by Carlos Jean, a work that he hopes will be his passport for the Spanish music industry.

antena3.com

Desconectarte

“Taking his music abroad”

Very often and for different reasons, artists choose to flee their hometown and take their art beyond borders. This is the story of a musician from Madrid who found success in London.

Cristina Merino

VÍDEOS

LIVE SHOW

BACK ON TRACK

MUSIC VIDEO

DREAMING AWAY

ACOUSTIC

TRAIN TO MEXICO

ACOUSTIC

SILENT

BIO

songkick

JUAN ZELADA

Raised in a musical family environment, consisting of jam sessions throughout the different generations, it is not surprising that his talent and love for music would flourish.

In 2006 he completed his studies at the Liverpool Institute of Performing Arts, where he received an award for composition from Paul McCartney himself, calling his recording a “smashing cd”.

Having moved to London, he sets up a band, whilst still playing in restaurants, pubs, hotels and even cruise ships. He begins to gig the London scene to great acclaim including supporting Amy Winehouse on her Back to Black tour.

In 2012, he released the single “Breakfast in Spitalfields” which becomes a national success being the most aired single on BBC Radio 2 only second to Adele.

He continues to tour with his band, supporting artists such as Ben Howard, The Noisettes, Gavin Degraw or Michael Kiwanuka, as well as his own headline tours, including a festival tour with over 30 festivals in the summer of 2012.

His album “High Ceilings and collar bones” would be released in 2012 by Decca Records, receiving compliments from BBC News as “one to watch”. The second single “The Blues Remain” became single of the week for iTunes, and was also included in the BBC “A Playlist”.

In 2013, he released the EP “Follow the river” after a successful crowdfunding campaign with Pledge Music also receiving a European Border Breakers Award at the Eurosonic Festival in Groningen, and an invitation from Jools Holland to attend his BBC show.

He returns to Spain, after an inspirational trip backpacking around South America in 2014 writing a lot of the material which would be included in his new album, as well as a blog called “away with music”, interacting with other local musicians.

On his return he worked alongside producer Carlos Jean in Spain to release “Back on Track” in early 2015 under Spanish label Muwom. Without losing his soulful style, the album incorporates other musical styles such as big beats, electronic samples and a mix of contemporary references.

The first single “Dreaming Away” is aired on all the main national stations, and is included in a national TV advertising campaign with Nationale Nederlanden.

With “Back on Track” he has been touring extensively with his new band around Spain, also sharing the stage with artists such as Eli Paperboy Reed and Delorentos. His acclaimed live shows put him alongside the exponents of Nu-soul nationally.

