

ISATT 2015 Conference

17th Biennial Conference of Teachers and Teaching
13–17 July 2015 | University of Auckland, New Zealand

Kia Ora! A warm invitation to submit a proposal

We have had great interest in the ISATT conference to be held in Auckland, New Zealand in July 2015. We are looking forward to welcoming delegates to our city from around New Zealand and the world. We have agreed to extend the deadline for submissions until the 26 November. We will let you know whether your proposal has been accepted before the middle of December 2014. After 26 November we will still accept proposals, providing there is room in the conference programme, but they won't be reviewed until March. There will also be an opportunity to submit a full paper for the conference proceedings. More details about that will follow.

Conference theme: Teaching for tomorrow today

This as an opportunity to share your research with international colleagues. Please visit the website for more details about the conference topics. Join us as we grapple with these questions and more –

- How can technology extend, enhance, and augment the learning environment?
- What constitutes powerful pedagogy in teaching?
- How can diverse students be well-supported as they transition across key areas – for example from compulsory to post-compulsory education?
- What expertise is unique to being an effective teacher educator?
- How can teachers be encouraged as leaders of learning without shifting them into administrative or management positions?
