ACLU Likens FINRA's Risk Data Program To NSA Monitoring

By Stephanie Russell-Kraft

Law360, New York (December 04, 2014, 2:09 PM ET) -- The American Civil Liberties Union on Wednesday joined a growing chorus of criticism against the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority's plan to collect and mine broker-dealer transaction data, calling it a dangerous tool for government surveillance on par with National Security Agency's bulk telephone metadata collection.

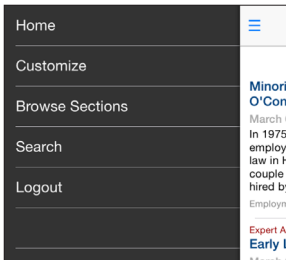

Note: Company and firm pages, real-time alerts, and other Platform Tools content is not currently available in the Law360 app.

Get Breaking Alerts

You'll also get an alert when big stories break, if push notifications are enabled for the Law360 app.

To specify which Law360 sections you want to receive alerts for, select your areas of interest on the Customize screen. If you don't select any areas of interest, you'll receive alerts based on the daily email newsletters you're subscribed to.

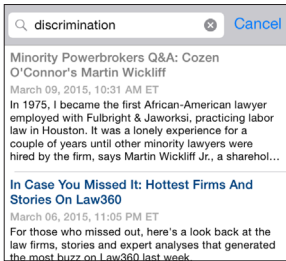

You can turn off push notifications at any time in the Settings panel of your iPhone or iPad.
