RENT REBELS

This November Joe's organizes a small series of events around housing struggles.

We are welcoming people from Berlin to 'Rent Rebels' in the Berlin, a quite popular screening of short movies about housing struggles and diverse movement that emerged in the last couple of years and that struggles against massive gentrification and the forced evictions of renters that take place in at high pace. The events shall serve as space for discussion and exchange with the people from Berlin, about experiences being made in struggle, the urban restructuring that goes on in Berlin, and the self-organisation of all kinds of people to fight against it.

Besides of being inspirational it shall also be a space to come together and to exchange ideas and experiences related to the housing situation in Amsterdam. Descent housing in its various forms and shapes and the city itself is not for profit but for us, the people, and a basic need of everybody independent of social status.
