

All Out

not for flyposting

for Pensions

Government cuts are attacking all of us. Each time a group of workers gets their pension slashed or receives a below-inflation rise, it only emboldens other employers to do the same. Public or private, in a union or not, we can only beat the bosses' onslaught by standing together.

The next couple of months are going to see strikes to defend pensions and fight off redundancies. Here's how you can support them:

- Join any strikes in your workplace. Don't cross picket lines. If in doubt, call in sick.
- Participate in any local picket lines.
- Organise. It's an opportunity to link up with other workers.
