A new restriction on religious activity, supposedly to curtail terrorism, has Russian Bible believers deeply concerned. On July 3, President Putin signed a law that, when enforced, will require prior authorization from the state for even sharing the gospel during a conversation.

Barnabasfund.org reports that: "Even in a private home, worship and prayer will only be allowed if there are no unbelievers present." Violation of this would draw a $770 fine, and if the person belongs to an organization such as a church, it could also be fined $15,500.

See "New Law..." on page 14

Russian Orthodox Patriarch Kirill can now expect the Russian government to stop Bible-believing churches from "stealing" his subjects.

When is Witnessing Allowed in Public Schools?

Christian public school students are increasingly facing opposition to witnessing and practicing of their faith. A recent brochure by the Christian Educators Assn, Intl (CEAI), lays out guidelines for parents and students showing exactly where they stand in a possible dispute with school officials.

First of all, everyone needs to understand First Amendment rights. CEAI points out: "The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the First Amendment requires public school officials to be neutral in their treatment of religion, showing neither favoritism toward or hostility against religious expression such as prayer."

The framers of the constitution wanted to make sure there was a level playing field for private individuals to exercise and promote their faith, free of any government interference

Is there a Death-bed Window into Eternity?

There have always been stories of death-bed agony or ecstasy in the last moments of life. So, when Kitty in the Window portrayed a gruesome death scene of a face frozen in horror, one soul winner wrote to Chick Publications with her own story.

She was a pastor's wife and told how a mother and children received Christ and began attending their church.

The husband was violently opposed to the gospel and ordered the pastor off his property. Eventually he prevented his family from attending church.

Later, the family called the pastor to come visit the man, who was seriously ill in the hospital, hoping his heart might have been softened. But it wasn't! He again ordered the pastor away.

As it appeared that the man would surely die, the pastor's wife called the family to see if she might be more accepted by the man. They agreed to try. She relates what happened:

Anti-Jewish Persecution Rising in U.S.

A steep rise in anti-Semitism is occurring in America, with a significant portion in U.S. colleges. "We are disturbed that violent anti-Semitic incidents are rising," observed Jonathan Greenblatt, chief executive of the Anti-Defamation League.

Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) movement. Wikipedia describes it as a "global campaign attempting to increase economic and political pressure on Israel to comply with the stated goals of the movement: the end of Israel's occupation and colonization of Palestinian land."

Assaults Up 50 Percent

ADL reports that the number of actual assaults on Jews in the U.S. in 2015 was up more than 50 percent over the year before. It tracked 941 incidents of harassments, threats, and vandalism. 56 of those were actual, physical assaults. They believe that there may have been more not reported by the victims.

One international group with chapters in many universities is called the Boycott,

Hate Crimes:

Jews 56%

—vs. Muslims 16%

The FBI weighed in with a report that 56 percent of the anti-religious hate crimes in the U.S. in 2014 were "motivated by anti-Jewish bias." This compared with only 16 percent targeting Muslims. Results of this indoctrination in the universities are showing up in the younger leaders in government and business. Relations between the Israeli government and the current White House have become increasingly strained.

Only in the last 75 years has America demonstrated serious anti-Jewish efforts. During America's founding, George Washington received major help from

LGBT Activists Now Targeting Christians

New items collected just for this issue of Battle Cry exceed two dozen on the threat of the LGBT assault on Christians. In California, a new LGBT curriculum for public schools has been approved by Education Department officials. Second graders will now learn about families with two moms or two dads. Fourth graders will learn about Harvey Milk, a “pioneering gay politician” in San Francisco who romanced teen boys and ended up murdered in his office. Other LGBT people and milestones in history will be laced into lessons all the way up the grades.

Elsewhere in California, Christian colleges are watching a couple of bills in committee. Both deal with “discrimination” by the schools toward LGBTQ applicants. One stipulates that, if the school accepts students who receive Cal Grants, a state scholarship, it must certify that it will not “discriminate” on the basis of sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression. This prevents the school from holding up any biblical standard if they accept students who receive this state aid.

The other bill also pressures Christian schools that hold a Federal exemption from anti-discrimination laws, which prevents them from being forced to hire homosexuals and accept non-believers as students. The proposed bill demands posting of signs on campus explaining their “discriminatory” policies. This invites lawsuits by anyone or promotion. Therefore, any time a teacher or school official, acting in official capacity, attempts to promote (or discredit) a religious viewpoint, they are no longer “neutral.”

On the other hand, when they are speaking as “private individuals,” they are free to practice and promote their religions, just like students and parents are.

So, in every situation, the main question is whether the person is acting as government official or as a private individual. When a teacher orders a student not to bring a Bible to class, she is no longer neutral. The student is acting as a private individual and is protected under the Constitution. However, if the student is reading the Bible during class time when she ought to be paying attention to the lesson, the teacher would be right to direct the student to put away the Bible and concentrate on the lesson.

“Freedom of expression” is another constitutional right as private individuals. This includes both speech and written expression. Students, or teachers, do not shed this right “at the schoolhouse gate.” Distribution of literature is considered “pure speech,” according to the courts, thus covered by the freedom of speech clause of the Constitution. However, schools can protect class time by stopping any disruption caused by either kind of speech. But during recess, lunch or other free time, the student cannot be stopped from freedom of verbal or written “expression.”

“Students not only have the right to verbal and written speech, they have the right to persuade, advocate and even proselytize a religious viewpoint,” according to the CEAI brochure. The courts have recognized that this can foster a controversy and even start an argument. But this freedom of expression is worth the risk and in many ways the source of our independence and vigor as a society. The opposite is oppressive dominance by a totalitarian government.

The courts have also dealt with the question of prior notification. Some colleges and cities have tried to require a permit for witnessing. This is contrary to the constitutional freedom of speech. The courts have held that “spontaneous speech” is fully covered in freedom of speech. Therefore, neither can free, spontaneous speech be confined to a limited area, such as

There are a lot of good parents who really care what their kids eat, and read. They go through the Halloween candy bag and sort things out. You can bet that those parents will read the Chick tracts that are in their kids' bags. And they will get the gospel, too.

How many of them will remember that their folks took them to Sunday school? Then they'll realize, "I need to take my kids and do the same." You may have never had the opportunity to give that parent a tract, so this is a great chance for them to read the Gospel.

Jewish merchants. Gratitude for that remained until the early 20th century.

Hitler's Philosophy Came to America

As biblical righteousness began to give way to the cancer of humanism, Hitler's philosophy spread to this continent. Business leaders such as Henry Ford bought into the white-race superiority doctrine as well as the age-old view of the "Jewish Problem."

At that time, God moved world leaders to open the door for a Jewish homeland in Israel. Amazing stories are told of warring angels supporting Israel's fight to defend their new home against impossible odds. America's ambivalence toward the new state appears to have cost one U.S. president his life and disturbed the sleep of other ones.

Chick Publications has produced a new Crusader Comic based on John McTernan's book, As America Has Done to Israel, an extensive history of America's dealings with Israel. Both books describe the on-again-off-again attitudes toward Israel and the natural disasters that followed immediately when Israel was pressed to give up God's land.

Henry Ford, Friend of Hitler

Who would have guessed that, during World War II, there was a Nazi training camp on Long Island, New York where a rally held there in 1938 drew 40,000 Hitler sympathizers? Or how many today know that Henry Ford actually bought a newspaper publisher in order to spread Nazi propaganda? Or, that he actually got a medal from Hitler for his efforts?

The Crusader Comic, Unthinkable, along with McTernan's book, also provide elaborate details of billion-dollar disasters in the U.S. that God seemed to coordinate with anti-Israeli government actions. One president's home suffered heavy damage by a "perfect storm" the same day he pressured Israel to give up more land for peace.

Zechariah: Jerusalem a Burdensome Stone

Zechariah spoke of a day when Jerusalem would be a cup of trembling and a burdensome stone for all people, but He would cut in pieces all who came against it (Zech. 12). Today, we are seeing prophecy fulfilled. Satan's kingdom is winding down.

Soul-winners, if we are going to bring more souls into the Kingdom of Heaven, we had best get busy. When we consider how God has brought judgment on America for their treatment of Israel, we need to educate the next generation on this. Make sure every teen you know gets a copy of Unthinkable.

Sometimes public school officials overstep and try to deny all "expression" of religion in the schools. Bible believers need to stand on solid constitutional grounds and insist on our rights to share the gospel every legal way. And nothing is more powerful in grabbing attention and driving home the message than a Chick tract. Students love them and so do many teachers.

In Southern California, Robert O. Lopez, a Bible-believing professor at Cal State University in Northridge forfeited his tenure and his job rather than sacrifice his belief in God’s plan for marriage. After being forced to resign, he writes: “I had served for eight years under a dean trained in Women’s Studies, surrounded in her executive suite by lesbians and feminists, who hated me for celebrating the beauty and glory of chastity and Biblical love. I could not have my relationship with Jesus Christ and this job simultaneously. The choice was not that difficult.” After years of hacked computers, vandalized office, and false complaints against him, Lopez gave it up for Jesus Christ.

It seems that Christian parents hoping to protect their kids’ innocence have nowhere to hide them. Even “Nickelodeon ‘makes history’ with its first ‘gay married’ couple in kids cartoon,” the headline reads. Viewers discover that Lincoln Loud in The Loud House has a friend with two dads.

Of course, it is not all new because Nickelodeon had already “introduced” a bisexual couple in The Legend of Korra in 2014. Similar episodes have recently showed up on the Disney Channel’s Good Luck Charlie, and the Cartoon Network in Clarence.

Churches in Iowa are having to fight a new interpretation of Iowa’s civil rights act. An amendment was added prohibiting “discrimination” in “public accommodations” because of a person’s sex, sexual orientation or gender identity.

Since churches “accommodate the public,” a strict interpretation of the law would force churches to hire practicing homosexuals. It could even open them to lawsuits if a transgender person was offended by biblical preaching or was prevented from using the bathroom of their choice.

Many Christian businesses have also been attacked for their stand against same-sex marriage. Christian bakers and florists have lost their businesses in lawsuits for refusing to participate in same-sex weddings. ChristianMingle and eHarmony were both forced to include same-sex ads in their dating service.

Throughout history, Satan has used government to attack believers. We really need to counterattack. America’s founding fathers built barriers around our freedom to witness that are crumbling. But our weapons are not carnal. We must vote for leaders who will best protect our freedom, but unless true revival takes root, we will only have bad people to vote for.

Gospel tracts are a good way to seed Truth into your neighborhood, but Satan is working overtime trying to stop us.

CHICK MAIL BAG

20 years ago I was living a life of gangs, drugs and crime until one day I was walking down the street and noticed a Chick tract, Back From The Dead, on the floor. I picked it up, read it and gave my life to Jesus!

“The family said yes since he was so sick and probably wouldn’t be mean to me. But when I got there —I watched him die. It was the most awful and frightening thing I had ever seen. He sat up in the bed with his eyes wide open and mouth gaping. His arms flung in the air and he said, ‘Help me!’ The machines then began to buzz, nurses came, and his family was screaming together, ‘He went to hell! Oh, God, he went to hell.’ The nurses promptly gave them all a sedative. The nurses closed the man’s eyes and put his hands down to a normal position. As long as I live I will never forget that death.”

Someone has reasoned that modern medicine has changed this so that we rarely see this today. Most people die in hospitals where they are carefully monitored and given sedatives in the last hours, dulling the senses and “allowing a peaceful death.”

But this may be denying us strong evidence of the reality of the hereafter. One Chick Publications staff member, who grew up in Mexico, said that dying with extreme horror, or bliss if they are believers, is common where she lived.

One research file obtained on the internet listed hundreds of deathbed stories, posted at <http://www.cuttingedge.org/shaw/>. The book is old but the experiences are timeless and descriptions highly detailed. Some are even of famous “infidels.” Other accounts are of famous believers who displayed great joy at being welcomed by angels or deceased family members.

Part of our witness as believers is to remind people of the long view. Life does not stop at the grave, as evolutionists and humanists would have us believe. Satan’s answer to these death-bed experiences is hallucinations of the expiring mind, but man cannot escape the spirit within that whispers otherwise.

And when we hand someone a gospel tract that speaks to that vacuum in the soul, some will respond to Christ’s gift. Unfortunately, we have no way of knowing who will respond and who will reject the message. That’s the reason Jesus used the parable of the sower to show the need to spread the gospel seed widely.

Over the centuries, gospel tracts have played a major part in preparing people for revival. Never has there been a more desperate need for revival, than now. More and more missionaries are discovering that if they saturate a community with Chick tracts, they often get sufficient response to start a congregation. One missionary couple has started four churches this way.

Chick Publications has thousands of testimonies on file witnessing to the power of gospel tracts containing the word of God delivered inside an engaging story.

We will all die.

One little tract can be used by the Holy Spirit to turn agony into bliss at that time.

Does Mark 16 Have 20 Verses... Or 8?

By David W. Daniels

We were so excited! My wife Deborah and I were going to hear my Bible college Greek professor preach on the Resurrection at a local church. He said Mark 16 would be his only text. I was sure of what he would say. But I was so wrong.

Instead, this text critic told us about some “very significant omissions” in “the oldest manuscript,” Codex Sinaiticus. He claimed that, originally, Mark 16 only had 8 verses. He guessed that the last 12 verses were added later, because someone simply misunderstood the abrupt ending to the Gospel.

In verse 8, the King James and most Bibles say the women left the tomb afraid—which seems a strange way to end the God is so amazing! Thank you so much for helping us in our ministry here. The Pastors we work with in Zone 6 are having to go to 2 services next month because of the evangelizing and the tracts!”

Daniel LaVita - Honduras

“The tracts that we received were a blessing more than we could have imagined, Praise the Lord, we saw many people saved and look forward to hearing later how the Lord used them. We have used them in the surrounding areas of La Ceiba and Piedras Amarillas. The People loved them and we would be blessed if you had more that we could give out. They go like hotcakes. People know right away that they are not filled with the false doctrines of the J.W.’s. Almost no one has ever said they do not want one, including the J.W.’s.”

India

Another 200,000 tracts are being printed in India. As of this printing, 70,000 have been completed in Malayalam for three different ministries spread across all of India. (In six years, India will have a higher population than China.)

Robert Taylor – Mexico

“Those tracts are a tremendous blessing. 5000 went to our outreach team in Bangkok, and the rest we just received by delivery in Kampaengphet. As you know, we do not give out tracts as one would distribute KFC flyers, but by laboring in prayer for souls first, and then only during the preaching of the Gospel with a preacher at point. The tracts are received by those that witness the preaching of the Gospel.

One Thai man picked up a Chick tract out of a rubbish bin in a local park in Bangkok and read it. He was so convicted he contacted us wanting to know more. He ended up coming to church, getting baptized and born again!

By the way, when I was a teenager, it was Chick tracts that put the fear of God in my heart.”

Many Christians want to provide Chick tracts to missionaries.

Gospel. But he claimed “afraid” could also mean “in awe.” So the women left the tomb “in awe” —end of story. He wouldn’t read verses 9-20, because, they weren’t in the “oldest and best” Greek Codices (big books) Sinaiticus or Vaticanus. So Jesus never appeared to anyone, nor even rose from the dead, according to this “text critic’s” gospel of Mark.

My wife Deborah and I left that church on Resurrection Day —with no bodily resurrection!

Our professor taught, like most text critics, that Mark was the first Gospel written. But all history shows the order as Matthew, Mark, Luke, John. Then text critics say that Mark was written by someone else, after Mark died. So none of the Gospels or New Testament books were written by eyewitnesses. But the books themselves say they are (Acts 4:20; 2 Cor. 15:4-8; 2 Peter 1:16-18; 1 John 1:1-4).

If you trust text critics, the original gospel had no bodily resurrection! That’s because their favorite two manuscripts out of 620 —Sinaiticus and Vaticanus— are missing the last 12 verses of Mark. But why trust them? Are they really “oldest and best”? Few text critics have even seen more than a page or two. They just trusted their professors —and doubted the consistent witness of history.

But things are changing. Now we can see high-quality photos of Vaticanus and Sinaiticus online. And we can ask the simple questions people should have asked over 150 years ago. Why would critics disregard the evidence of 5,700 other manuscripts? What made these two so good and reliable?

Since December 2015 I have asked basic questions. They are revealing startling answers. You can see them yourself at youtube.com/c/chicktracts or chick.com/bible. Look for the playlist called “Something Funny About Sinaiticus.”

History proves that Satan couldn’t destroy the Bible. So he decided to use scholars who claim they can “fix” the Bible. And they do it with manuscripts that have no history. They just magically appeared: Vaticanus in 1475; and Sinaiticus in 1844. Suddenly everyone was supposed to change the Bible to match them. And they don’t even agree with each other in thousands of places!

To this day, no one has even done chemical tests to figure out the age and makeup of the parchment and ink of Sinaiticus. They’ve exposed other counterfeits that way. But they refuse to check Sinaiticus.

We already have a trustworthy Bible. The Hebrew Old Testament was passed down through the tribe of Levi, carefully copied. Later synagogues followed those practices. Then from the 500s to 1000 AD, the Masoretes continued carefully copying. The Masoretic Old Testament Text is reliable.

The New Testament was passed down in Greek by faithful believers. They continued to be carefully copied, despite persecution, exile and death. Though handwritten, they are amazingly consistent. When published, the result was the Protestant Reformation which produced the King James Bible, God’s preserved words, carefully and accurately translated into classic, enduring English. You can rely on every word of it, including Mark 16:9-20.

New Law...

Churches are limited in contact with foreigners. Non-Russian citizens would be required to have a work visa to attend a church service or be fined and expelled from the country.

Originally billed as anti-terrorism legislation, there appears to be no exemption for churches, except, possibly, the Russian Orthodox. Objections were raised before the bill passed and slight amendments were made. But critics claim these only tilted the favor toward the Orthodox to the exclusion of other groups. This drastically reverts the attitude of the government back to the severe oppression of the Stalinist regime.

Missionary activity in Russia has always been difficult because Russian identity and the Russian Orthodox church have been so intertwined. As with countries where Roman Catholicism dominates, the civil government is never free from the dictates of the “church.”

Protestant leaders are hoping that, when it comes to enforcement, they will be cut some slack. But there will be a chilling effect on witnessing, nevertheless. This will provide enemies of the gospel with a weapon to use if they wish.

This is an extreme case of a drift away from religious freedom that is happening throughout Europe. Britain is debating a law to tackle Islamic radicalization and counter the terrorism threat. The center of the debate is about the definition of “extremism.”

Wishing not to offend “moderate” Muslims, they are trying to make the law so general that other groups that pose no threat are worried.

This illustrates a very basic quandary on the Western World. We have valued freedom so highly that we have thrown away reasonable constraints. The individual person has been given such freedom “rights” that even sins like abortion and same-sex marriage are accepted.

What is done in the bedroom by consenting adults is deemed to be no business of the government, and therefore society. The same goes for pregnancy. Government, society, or even parents, should have no say over what a woman does with her body, even if she is a minor.

Humanism has taught us this kind of “liberty” (license). But along comes a religion, Islam, which has taken advantage of this freedom to promote world conquest with death to anyone who opposes it. Suddenly anyone who pushes his belief on others is taking an “extreme” position and must be stopped.

This general law is proposed to give the government power to monitor any organization that may be fomenting some extreme position, such as jihad—or soul winning. If same sex marriage is the norm, then it is “extreme” to speak against it, even just by quoting God’s opinion on it, the Bible.

It remains to be seen how far the rest of Europe, and even America, will follow Russia on this. Where the political power of the Russian Orthodox “Church” has drawn a severe line against soul winning, Europe’s religion of humanism may also use this opportunity to squelch the gospel.

As we have seen in America, Islam, humanism, and the sodomites have made much progress using the levers of political power to eliminate God and the Bible from our schools and the public square.

Soul winners, we need to get busy while it is so safe and convenient. Clouds of persecution are gathering.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear Ones in Christ:

I have a friend named Tim Berends who is a great example for all soul-winners. Tim has a job just like the rest of us, but he has taken on another unusual assignment. Every night, Tim stands at one of the bridges in Las Vegas for a while. 40 million people a year pass over those bridges from every part of the world. Tim goes there with 300 tracts and passes them out. Then he goes home, mission accomplished.

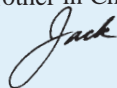

He's also got a buddy named Mike. These brave guys make quite a team. They will pick out a place, somewhere in the world where most of us would never dream of passing out gospel tracts. They've been in horrible situations many times. They have faced death, going into Palestinian zones in the Holy Land. It is only the hand of God and prayers that protected them.

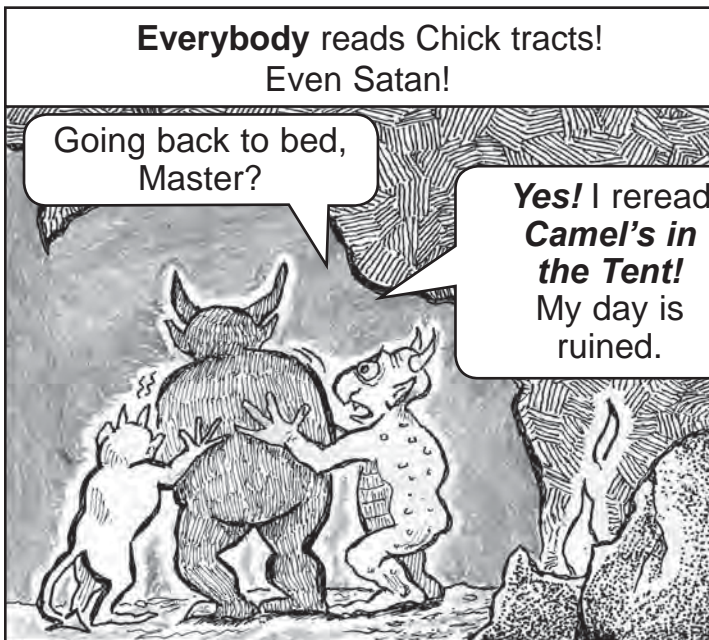

They've been in Mexican border towns where people grabbed the tracts with joy, while trucks with mounted machine guns rumbled by. They work as a strike team: three hours in a city, then out, after giving away thousands of tracts. In one Catholic area, they passed out 3,000 "Mary's Kids." I wish I was that brave!

They just got back from another town where they passed out "Mary's Kids" at the Catholic school. They just walked through the partially open gate and handed tracts to parents waiting for their children, and in some cases the children, too! Tim said the archdiocese was furious. But look how many precious Catholics got the truth!

We can't all travel like these guys. But we don't need to. Every day, we rub shoulders with people who live without any hope. We can't see how alone or hopeless they feel. But God knows their hearts, and He gave us the answer! Let's not be selfish. Let's share it with them. We can't let Tim and Mike get all the crowns.
