ASX Commodities: Energy

Energy Data Centre

A premium online data resource for the ASX energy derivatives markets. ASX's energy data centre provides our customers with a comprehensive source of energy derivatives price and trade data. The data centre enables energy market participants to benchmark energy hedges, identify market trends and conduct other analyses. All data is available for download, enabling you to import the data into your own internal systems.

Key Features

- 15 minute delayed market data for futures and options products
- Implied prices for off-peak, strips and inter-regionals
- Trade log which tracks real time trades as well as a full trade history
- Historical data (including price, volume and open interest)
- Aggregated key market statistics (by region and contract)
- Access to daily Settlement Price and Open Interest files

Snapshot Packages

For customers who do not require ongoing access to the data centre, we also offer one-off historical snapshot packages for both Australian and New Zealand electricity markets:

Full History

This package contains a comprehensive dataset of open, high, low, bid/offer at close, settlement prices, volume and open interest data for each product on a daily basis.

Settlement Prices

This package contains the official daily settlement prices and open interest for all listed contracts on a daily basis.

Subscription Packages

We have two main data packages available as an annual subscription which provide access to our data centre.

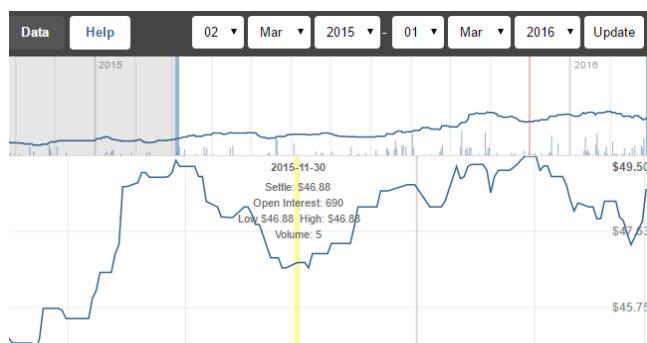

1. Australian Electricity
2. New Zealand Electricity
