Mr. F. (to the Judge)—Do you not think our fathers did right when they resisted un blood, and smote their oppressors to the dust?

ANOTHER CHAPTER OF SOUTHERN CRIMES AND ATROCITIES.

A Negro Chase.—The Franklin Star, published at Wino, Va., in the parish of Franklin, furnishes full details of certain shocking occurrences which have recently created intense excitement among the people of that quarter. On the 11th ult., Wm. T. Pearce, a planter on Bayou Boeuf, was murdered by three of his negroes, named Brit, Josh and Quail, and his body thrown upon the road. The discovery of the corpse and its marred condition aroused inquiries, which led to the detection of these negroes, who were committed to jail. After an imprisonment of some days, they succeeded in breaking their shackles, overpowering the keeper of the jail, and escaping, seeking themselves to a dense and almost impassable cypress cane-brake. The citizens pursued them during eight days with unweary activity and vigilance. The first one captured was Brit, who, says the Star, was severely lashed, and sent up to jail; and from the wounds of the dogs, the whipping, and the fatigue he underwent, he was half dead when he arrived, and died on Tuesday night. The Star then continues as follows:—

It is most fortunate for the ends of justice that Mrs. Hall survived sufficiently long to make an ante-mortem deposition. Hall tried to shoot the woman ere she was conveyed to prison, but was prevented from accomplishing his object. He and his family were considered by respectable persons in the neighborhood as being hard on servants: and, not long since, he had a portion of his farm buildings burned by some of his own servants.

A free mulatto boy, named Bill Mason, was killed near Port Tobacco, Va., a few days since, by a slave named Mat Butler. The crime was committed for the purpose of robbing the unfortunate boy of a few dollars which he had in his possession. Before Mason died, he gave information which is sufficient to convict Butler, if his testimony is received. On Saturday night last, three of the slaves of Mr. Barston, residing in Bourbon County, Ky.—two men and a woman—left home, and made a bee-line for the Ohio River, intending to cross above Newport. Before leaving, the man tried to bribe the woman, but she refused him them, but he refused, and she went on her own. The man then informed his master of their escape. Mr. Barston and his son immediately started in pursuit, and overtook the party about eight miles from the homestead, and made an endeavor to stop their further progress. As they came up to the slaves, one of them made a break for the woods, and escaped; the other struck Mr. Barston upon the shoulder with a club, which knocked him down, which act provoked the others, and they all fired at him. Mr. Barston then, in great anger, shot the man who was the first to break. He then fired the pistol at the other, and he was wounded, and was taken back. Mr. Barston is a good deal injured from the effects of the blow, and it is presumed he will not recover from it for a considerable length of time.—Ky. News.

Five Negroes to be Hung at Natchez.—Two interesting and long-continued trials of negroes for the murder of their overseers, were terminated at Natchez, Miss., on the 22d ult. by the conviction and execution of the prisoners. The first murder was that of Duncan R. Skinner, overseer on Mrs. Clarissa Sharp's plantation. Three negroes, Reuben, Henderson and Anderson, some time in May last, entered the room where the overseer was sleeping, and beat him to death. They then carried the body to the woods, and placed it at the root of a beech tree, throwing on the ground near the spot the dead man's gun and shot pouch. They also loaded the horse of the overseer with his property, and he, knowing what the negroes intended, fled to the woods, and there hid himself. He was found by the overseer's wife, and he was taken to the mill, and there he died. The second murder was that of Mr. Wm. H. C. McReid, overseer on the plantation of Mr. W. A. Foulke, on the 7th of June last, a few weeks after the murder mentioned above, by three negroes, Reuben, Tom and John, while returning home from a visit on a neighboring plantation. The murderers pulled him from his horse, beat his brains out with a club, and sunk the corpse, weighted with a plowshare and the pea of a pair of scales, in a pond. Here it was discovered, and a close attention was given to the murder, which has just been completed, with the execution of Reuben, who, on account of some informality, was allowed a new trial. Murder by a Slave.—About 7 o'clock on Saturday morning last, Mr. James T. Potts, living about twelve miles north of this place, and near Mt. Zion, was murdered by a negro named Joe, about eighteen years of age, who had been in his employ for some time. Joe was shot at through the door of the house, and he was injured, but through the force of the leaden missiles. Soon after the occurrence, he became so alarmed that he fled to a neighbor's, a distance of two miles, where he remained for several days. Mrs. Grant is in independent circumstances, and had but two children. About a month ago, her house was fired and burned, with the loss of a portion of its contents. He was placed in the hands of the law, and he was executed. He was shot at through the door of the house, and he was injured, but through the force of the leaden missiles. Soon after the occurrence, he became so alarmed that he fled to a neighbor's, a distance of two miles, where he remained for several days.

Dr. J. W. Webb, who is engaged in reading, some words took place between Felsenthal and Dr. Webb, when Felsenthal gave Dr. W. the lie, and immediately jumping from his horse, made an attempt to draw a weapon, when Dr. Webb and Burney stepped between them, saying, 'Gentlemen, no weapons,' when Felsenthal declared he had no weapons, and that he was going to fight Dr. W., and fight him a fair fight. They then came together, Dr. W. having but a small walking-cane, which he held in his left hand, and was about to drop it, when he saw Felsenthal drawing a pistol from the sleeve of his coat. The proximity of the cane, (that he was about to throw down), to save his life. He struck with his stick, but it being too light to produce the desired effect, Dr. S. sprang to seize the pistol, but, alas! too late; he had shot Dr. W. in the left region of the abdomen, depositing two balls in the muscle of the right hip, near the surface. Dr. W. fell, mortally wounded. Dr. S. immediately commenced the dressing of his wounds, while Dr. B. followed the black-headed assassin, who ran to the house of R. K. Rogers, and seized a gun, which had been loaded with buckshot for a deer drive, to defy the friends of Dr. W., whom he had just shot, when Col. B. K. R. wreathed the gun from him. Felsenthal then ran to the horse that Hutchins rode when they came, and mounting it, commenced making his escape, when Dr. Burney immediately appeared with the same gun, handing it to Dr. W., saying, 'You are now armed.' Dr. W. said, 'I am disabled; I have been killed me; use it for me. Shoot him, and I will do it for you.' Dr. B. leveled the gun, and fired. The murderer had rode but a hundred yards at full speed from the place of the affray, when three of the shot passed through his head and body, killing him instantly. Many of the people of the town hastened to the place of the affray. Many of the Seabee people came down; great excitement prevailed. Some said they would march against him, and some would let him go. Dr. W. was so much affected by the loss of his eye, that he was unable to attend to his duties. The West Point people say that they know all the circumstances, and are warm friends of the three (Dr. S. W. and Burney), and will fight for them until the streets are drenched with blood. Dr. W. lived until the morning of the 24th. Dr. W. was the son of G. W. Webb, and was born and raised in Blodoo County, Tennessee. His corpse was taken by Dr. Swan to his parents. Murders.—In St. Louis, on the 2d inst., a boy ten years of age, named John Conrad Heidenrich, was murdered by a boy about the same age, named 'Theodore.' They had quarrelled in regard to the possession of a basket of wood, when Danvers threw the other down, choked him and standing his face for several minutes—some young men pounced by all the time laughing at the sport, which was only stopped by the mother of Heidenrich, who came along to find her child dead. A man named Mairzy, living in Owensboro, Ky., recently killed his wife with a bill of wood while in a drunken phony. He was placed in a lock-up, and soon after, a man named Mulligan was placed in the same lock-up, without any commitment or other authority. In the course of the night, Mulligan was released, and in the morning, Mairzy was found dead in the cell, he having been beaten to death by Mulligan. Suspicions of foul play were whispered, and an investigation was to be had. Three men were killed, in different affrays, at Louisville, Ky., on Christmas day. Their names were William Potter, who was shot by Frank Williams, son of Dr. Williams; Warner Sage, bar-keeper at the United States Hotel, killed with a slung-shot by Alexander Bolen, and Chas. Bull, who was stabbed by Isaac Duckwall. The Wakulla (Florida) Times of the 14th ult., says that a gentleman residing at Attapulgus, Ga., recently received a bill of money. He was obliged to the evening of his departure, two negroes came to the house; and demanded of his wife to be shown where the money was, under a penalty of death. She complied, and they then demanded some supper, which the lady furnished them, putting, however, a quantity of strychnine into their coffee. In a few minutes they were both dead, and then it was ascertained that they were white men, and near neighbors, in disguise, who had been aware of her husband having received the money as before stated. Desperate Affray with a Slave.—We learn from a correspondent in the vicinity, that Mr. Thomas H. Gaskins, residing near the mouth of the Great Wicomico river, was assaulted in a violent and desperate manner by a negro named Isaac, on the 18th ult., who was on a visit to his father, and near Moore after a long struggle with the fellow, was compelled to shoot at him with his rifle, from the effect of which he died at about 7 o'clock on the same evening, at the house of Mrs. Olivia Cole, to whom he was removed, and to whom he belonged. The affair took place in Northumberland county.—Baltimore Sun. Dreadful Case of Shooting.—Recently, in Yorkville, there has been no little excitement growing out of a special informing agent, for the firm of Douglass & Co., the New York Commercial Agency, who, it is said, sent some reports that injured the reputation of a Mr. James Allen, Jr., a merchant of Yorkville. Long and warm correspondence grew out of this matter, and a few days since, Mr. James Allen, Sen., was about posting explanatory handbills of the affair, when the special agent, Mr. T. J. Bell, approached him, and desired him to desist. He refused, and Bell shot Mr. Allen on the spot with a double-barrelled gun, killing him instantly. The greatest excitement prevails in Yorkville—so our informant says, who arrived in Columbia last night. Young Allen was by the merest chance, prevented avenging the murder of his father, by immediately shooting the cold-blooded perpetrator of the dreadful deed. Bell is lodged in jail, and the authorities are commanding full power over the excited people.—Columbia (S. C.) Times. Reference has been made to the order of assize in the East Indies, known as Thugs, the New Orleans Courier says:— 'At this very moment, in this very city, one or more bodies of men exist, precisely similar in action to these East Indian artists. They do not strangle with a rope—but they knock down with brass knuckles and slung-shots, cut with knives, and sometimes shoot with pistols. They are organized in some form or other, and bound together by some sacred law, or some religious observance, which they all commit to a certain rank in the Order, and entitles him to certain rights and privileges beyond his fellows. 'This set of men—if men they can be called—now controls our City Government, and distributes the offices or the gifts of the city to its principal assassins. The policy of this body of men is the policy of our city authorities. All crimes of any magnitude are covered up, if possible, or slowly and unwillingly punished in the lightest possible manner, if concealment be not of the question. All persons who attempt to bring criminals to justice are threatened until they are terrified from their purpose, or are themselves murdered or disabled. Whenever one of the gang is put on his trial for one of the dastardly crimes some of them daily commit, the court is thronged with the vile faces of his fellow Thugs, who threaten court, jury, and witnesses, with being themselves 'thugged' at some future time, if they dare to do their duty to their country, and convict the criminal. We fear that, at the present moment, some of our judges are actually afraid
