

Tech is in our DNA.

Slashdot Media has built the leading social technology communities on the web. Slashdot pioneered "Social Media" in 1997, and SourceForge has been innovating online Open Source Software creation and distribution since 1999.

Our Brands

SOURCEFORGE

SourceForge is the largest, most trusted destination for Open Source Software discovery and development on the web.

Slashdot

Slashdot is the first and leading social media destination for technology professionals, IT decision makers and developers.

Pure Engagement.

Slashdot Media has been serving IT & business decision makers and developers with tools and forums they need to make the right technology decisions to help advance their careers for over 18 years.

These sites are driven by user engagement – not editorial programming.

IT & business decision makers and developers come to Slashdot to discuss the latest technology trends and news of the day with their peers. They also come to see what their peers think about a given issue or topic. Marketers benefit from advertising where the conversations are taking place. Slashdot Media offers many different solutions that make advertisers part of this discussion. Ask a question, poll the audience or host a live chat to engage with an audience who is passionate about technology.

IT & business decision makers and developers come to SourceForge as their trusted source for open source software. They download software on a regular basis, much of which they use in their own organizations. SourceForge is unique in that it gives marketers the opportunity to showcase their assets and products in an environment where enterprise IT professionals are searching for, evaluating and adopting software for their organizations.

IT & business decision makers and developers come to Slashdot Media sites for the issues they care about – from downloading software and using developer tools – to discussion, debate, and socializing with their peers.

SOURCEFORGE Trusted for Open Source.

IT professionals come to SourceForge to develop, download, review, and publish open source software. SourceForge is the largest, most trusted destination for Open Source Software discovery and development on the web.

Slashdot

Social Media for B2B Technology

Slashdot (/.) is an online community that features technology-centric news and discussion. The site has been pioneering user-generated content and social media since 1997. Slashdot consists of a mix of reader-submitted news, opinion, interviews and crowd-sourced questions, backed by professional insight and analysis. In addition to user-generated content, the site features original editorial covering a variety of IT topics including cloud computing, data centers, storage, mobility and business intelligence. Knowledgeable and tech savvy users (in all corners of the tech world) share and create a broad range of stories, and leave thousands of comments, every day. Slashdot is "News for Nerds. Stuff that Matters."
