The honorable orators, the gazettes of thunder,
The tycoons, bigshots and dictators,
Flicker in the mirrors a few moments
And fade through the glass of death
For discussion in an autocracy of worms
While the rootholds of the earth nourish the majestic people
And the new generations with names never heard of Plow deep in broken drums and shoot craps for old crowns . . .

The people will live on.
The learning and blundering people will live on.
They will be tricked and sold and again sold
And go back to the nourishing earth for rootholds,
The people so peculiar in renewal and comeback,
You can't laugh off their capacity to take it.
The mammoth rests between his cyclonic dramas.

This old anvil laughs at many broken hammers.
There are men who can't be bought.

In the darkness with a great bundle of grief
the people march.
In the night, and overhead a shovel of stars for keeps, the people march
"Where to? what next?"

-Carl Sandburg,
THE PEOPLE, YES
