

Since its creation in 2005, Opinio Juris has become a must-read forum for international law across the globe. In the past year, the blog has gone from strength to strength, increasing its readership by more than 15% to around 85000 average pageviews per month in the first half of 2013.

We count among our readers the legal advisers to major western governments, military and foreign affairs attorneys around the globe, professors of law and politics, practitioners and judges in international and transnational law, and the students who represent then next generation of lawyers and scholars

We currently offer three advertising options, but are open to other formulas to suit your needs. Our Premiere Banner Ad appears below the most recent post on our home page, below the post on each individual page, and on the “print this” format. Our Premiere Block Ad appears at top right corner of sidebar on our home page and on each individual page. It can be booked exclusively, or rotating with two other ads. Our Regular Block Ads appear on right sidebar with other content.

To discuss your advertising options, or for more information on prices and viewership details, please contact us.