Introduction to middle years resource

The château de Versailles is one of the worlds most renowned palaces, not least because of its creator King Louis XIV of France, the great Roi-Soleil (Sun King), his court and his successors Louis XV and Louis XVI. Spanning a period of more than 100 years the exhibition Versailles: Treasures from the Palace gives an intriguing insight into the life of the French royal family of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Three themes are explored in the Middle Years education resource:

People, power and portraiture

Leisure at Versailles

Daily life

These themes link with the Australian Curriculum for French language studies, Visual arts and Design and Technologies for years 5–6 and years 7–8 entry level.

Works from the exhibition are explored through activities that relate to the Australian Curriculum. Specific content descriptors addressed are identified with the activities in these Teacher Notes.

Learning and activities also connect to the following cross-curriculum priorities:

- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Histories and Cultures
- Sustainability

General capabilities developed through the activities include:

- Literacy
- Numeracy
- Information and Communication Technology (ICT) Capability
- Critical and Creative Thinking
- Personal and Social Capability
- Ethical Understanding
- Intercultural Understanding

In some cases these activities are also supported by connections made with the National Gallery of Australia's (NGA) permanent collection, namely Australian, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander, and International Art.

When visiting the exhibition Versailles: Treasures from the palace it is highly recommended that you also visit our permanent NGA collection, to further compare the themes found in the exhibition through the works and practices of other artists.

Background

The Palace of Versailles grew from relatively humble beginnings as a hunting lodge belonging to King Louis XIII of France. His son, King Louis XIV ascended the throne at the age of 5, but officially took over the reign of government at 22 years of age. Louis XIV had an extraordinary vision to change the image of France, its leader, and its people, and Versailles was the pivotal expression of his vision. Versailles became a place where people from all around the world visited to marvel at French aesthetic knowledge and sophistication. The estate grew to include a vast amount of land with many beautiful gardens, statues, fountains and smaller buildings such as the Grand Trianon and the Petit Trianon, and also Queen-Marie Antoinette's Hamlet.

The many gardens at Versailles were considered an informal extension of the lavish built environment of the Palace, where anyone was permitted entry provided they wore appropriate clothing and accoutrements. In 1682 Versailles became the official residence of Louis XIV and it remained the political and official seat of France during the reigns of his successors, Louis XV and Louis XVI. Versailles was not only the residence of the king and his extended family, but also accommodated a large number of courtiers and their families. Versailles was the place to be for festivities and frivolities, but also for matters of politics, trade and diplomacy.

Today, Versailles remains as a legacy to a period of French history when Louis XIV, Louis XV and Louis XVI functioned as absolute monarchs, until the upheaval of the revolution that led to the creation of the republic as it exists in France today.

During the 17th and 18th centuries Versailles was established as the ultimate demonstration of French ingenuity and technical ability. The Palace, its interiors and gardens experienced many reimaginings during the reigns of the three kings. The changes in architecture and decor were due to the changing fashions of the times and royal requirements. Initial transformations took place under Louis XIV from what was previously early Renaissance, into magnificent Baroque, followed by a Rococo period under Louis XV's influence, and finally Neo-classicism during the reign of Louis XVI. A large number of French and European craftsmen worked on the great palace, its gardens and the associated buildings.

Voici une photo de famille de Louis XVI. Louis XVI est au milieu, avec Marie-Antoinette, sa femme, et le bébé, Louis-Joseph. On appelle le fils du roi, le Dauphin.

Devant, il y a la grande sœur de Louis-Joseph, Marie-Thérèse-Charlotte.

A droite, il y a la Comtesse d'Artois, avec une robe violette. Elle est mariée au Comte d'Artois, le frère de Louis XVI. Le Comte d'Artois est derrière la Comtesse d'Artois, à côté de Madame Elisabeth, la sœur de Louis XVI. Madame Elisabeth porte une robe verte.

A gauche, on voit une dame avec une robe jaune. C'est la Comtesse de Provence. Elle est la femme du Comte de Provence, le deuxième frère de Louis XVI. Le Comte de Provence est derrière le canapé.

Les trois petits enfants, à gauche, sont les enfants du Comte et de la Comtesse d'Artois.

NOTE for teachers from Versailles: Treasures from the Palace catalogue: Louis-Joseph

The baby, Louis-Joseph, was the son of Louis XVI and Marie-Antoinette but died aged seven and never ascended the throne. During the French Revolution the king and queen's second son, Louis-Charles, as an eight-year old, unofficially became Louis XVII upon the execution of his father in 1793. Imprisoned and in poor health Louis-Charles died in 1795.

NOTE for teachers: Le Dauphin

The first French prince to be called le Dauphin was Charles V.

Le Dauphin originated when Guy VIII, Count of Vienne, had a dolphin on his coat of arms and had been nicknamed le Dauphin (French for dolphin). The title of Dauphin de Viennois descended in his family, the Le Vieux Princes of Ivetot, until 1349, when Humbert II sold his seigneurie (in the French alps north of Provence), called the Dauphiné, to King Philippe VI on the condition that the heir of France assumed the title of le Dauphin.

LES EXPLORATEURS | THE EXPLORERS

Jean François de La Pérouse

Jean François de la Pérouse est né le 23 août 1741 près d'Albi. Il se rend célèbre pendant la guerre d'Indépendance des États-Unis. En 1785, avec la bénédiction de Louis XVI, La Pérouse prend la tête d'une expédition autour du monde composée de deux frégates, La Boussole et L'Astrolabe. Il explore de nombreuses terres du Pacifique et fait notamment escale à Botany Bay, près de la colonie naissante de Sydney. Ses deux navires sombrent tragiquement au milieu de l'année 1788, lors d'une tempête au large de Vanikoro, petite île de l'archipel des Salomon.

Jean François de la Pérouse was born on 23 August 1741 near Albi and became famous during the American War of Independence. In 1785, with the blessing of King Louis XVI, La Pérouse led an expedition around the world consisting of two frigates, La Boussole and the Astrolabe. He explored numerous areas in the Pacific and dropped anchor in Botany Bay near the fledgling colony of Sydney. Tragically, his two vessels were lost in mid 1788 during a storm off Vanikoro, a small island of the Solomon archipelago.

Antoine Bruny d'Entrecasteaux

Joseph Antoine Raymond Bruny d'Entrecasteaux est né à Aix-en-Provence le 8 novembre 1737. En septembre 1791, il prend la tête d'une expédition composée de deux frégates, La Recherche et L'Espérance, dans le but initial de retrouver Jean François de La Pérouse disparu dans le Pacifique en 1788. Son voyage le conduit à explorer les côtes sud-ouest de l'Australie et sud-est de la Tasmanie. Il meurt du scorbut le 20 juillet 1793 au nord des côtes australiennes.

Joseph Antoine Raymond Bruny d'Entrecasteaux was born in Aix-en-Provence on 8 November 1737. In September 1791 he took command of an expedition with two frigates, the Recherche and the Espérance, initially sent to search for Jean François de La Pérouse, who had disappeared in the Pacific in 1788. His voyage led him to explore the southwest coast of Australia and the southeast of Tasmania. He died of scurvy on 20 July 1793 off Australia's northern coast.

Jean Michel Huon de Kermadec

Jean Michel Huon de Kermadec, né près de Brest le 12 septembre 1748, est entré dans la Marine à l'âge de 17 ans. En 1791, il prend le commandement de L'Espérance, le second navire de l'expédition d'Entrecasteaux partie à la recherche de Monsieur de La Pérouse. Il est à l'origine de nombreuses découvertes géographiques sur la côte sud-est de la Tasmanie comme l'estuaire de la rivière Derwent occupé aujourd'hui par la ville d'Hobart. Il meurt de la tuberculose à Balade (Nouvelle-Calédonie) le 6 mai 1793 et est enterré sur l'île de Poudié.

Jean Michel Huon de Kermadec, born near Brest on 12 September 1748, joined the navy at the age of 17. In 1791 he assumed command of the Espérance, the second vessel of the D'Entrecasteaux Expedition sent in search of La Pérouse. Kermadec was responsible for many geographic discoveries in Tasmania's southeastern coast, including the estuary of the Derwent River, the present site of the city of Hobart. He died of tuberculosis in Balade (New Caledonia) on 6 May 1793 and was buried on the island of Poudié.

From Louis XIV's diary

Lundi 12 janvier 1662

Cher journal,

Ce matin, après mon petit-déjeuner, j'ai marché dans les jardins du château avec toute la cour et j'ai admiré les fontaines et les jets d'eau. Quel spectacle ! C'était magnifique !

Ensuite, j'ai mangé un banquet dans un coin du jardin et j'ai discuté avec mes conseillers. Ça, c'était assez ennuyeux !

L'après-midi, j'ai fait de l'équitation et j'ai chassé le cerf dans les forêts de Versailles. C'était très excitant, mais fatigant aussi ! Et il faisait très chaud !

Le soir, j'ai mangé devant la cour et j'ai assisté à un bal. J'ai dansé aussi ! Quelle journée !

Je suis très fatigué maintenant ! Je suis un roi très occupé. Maintenant, je vais dormir. A demain cher journal !

Question

Most of the verbs from this text are in the past tense. There are two common past tenses in French: passé-composé (it has two words) and imparfait.

In this text, passé-composé describes all the actions that Louis was doing and they are all finished. Imparfait is used when Louis wants to say how something was.

Collect the different forms of the verbs and place them in a table with two lists one for passé-composé (8) and the other for imparfait (2) (if the table does not fit it does not have to be included/reproduced here).

Describe the pattern for most of the verbs in passé-composé.

Describe the pattern for imparfait.

- Mardi, avant l'italien, je vais étudier le français.
- Vendredi, après le droit, je vais apprendre les leçons de bonne tenue...Je déteste ça!

In the short text below, Louis XIV is talking to his future son and gives him advice on how to become a king. Read the text carefully. Notice what forms of the verbs he is using to talk to his son. Do you think it is the usual way a father talks to his son? Why do you think he is using the Vous form of the verbs? What sort of information does it give you on the personality of the king?

*Lettre de Louis XIV à son fils dans ses mémoires:
(librement adapté de Histoire Junior- Octobre 2011-Numéro 1- p.26)*

"A mon fils ,
Pour être un bon roi :
Travaillez régulièrement tous les jours
Apprenez à parler en public
Apprenez à bien écouter
Élevez votre esprit
Vous êtes né pour être roi ! "

NOTE for teachers: Le Dauphin

The first French prince to be called le Dauphin was Charles V.

Le Dauphin originated when Guy VIII, Count of Vienne, had a dolphin on his coat of arms and had been nicknamed le Dauphin (French for dolphin). The title of Dauphin de Viennois descended in his family, the LeVieux Princes of Ivetot, until 1349, when Humbert II sold his seigneurie (in the French alps north of Provence), called the Dauphiné, to King Philippe VI on the condition that the heir of France assumed the title of le Dauphin.
