

Amongst the Pegulloburra there is a vague tradition that their country once belonged to another tribe whom their ancestor conquered. Many of the names of places in their territory are those given by the former occupants, and have meanings; as moonya-moonya = bats; wolomina = crows'-place; kurgiringa = Hawks'-place, and so on. In counting, the fingers and sometimes the toes are used to represent numbers. Mr. Chatfield gives the following Additional Words:—
