Title: The massacre of the Gadubanud at Aire River / Lawrence Niewojt Imprint: 2010
Annotation: "In August 1856, a party comprising British colonists and Wathaurong warriors ambushed and killed a Gadubanud group encamped at the Aire River. Led by the contract surveyor, George Douglas Smythe, the well armed expedition marched through the Otway Ranges (in southwestern Victoria) with official sanction to capture an Aboriginal man accused of killing a member of Smythe's survey crew. Using contemporary reports from the colonial press and subsequent commentaries published by anonymous observers, this article provides a detailed account of the massacre and the suspicious circumstances surrounding this tragic episode in Victorian history. Title: "Blackfellas" basketball : Aboriginal identity and Anglo-Australian race relations in regional basketball / Chris Hallinan, Barry Judd Annotation: "This article is a study of an Aboriginal men?s sport team in an Australian regional community and their experiences with non-Aboriginal teams and their players. The data were drawn from interviews and conversations with the players of the Ballarat Wanderers men?s basketball team and the analysis is grounded in the inferential racism work of Hall (1995). Investigation of the Wanderers revealed that participation provided the players an uncommon opportunity to participate in an Aboriginal team of players, coaches, and managers. The findings, however, indicate that even though the Wanderers achieved some success as a social, political, and sporting group, they do so in an environment which is inferentially racist. Title: Previously unexamined texts in Victorian languages [electronic resource] : the manuscripts of Rev.
William Thomas (1793-1867) / Stephen Morey, Monash University Publication info: 1999 Abstract: Most of the records of the Aboriginal languages of Victoria were written down by untrained people in the 19th century. One of the most prolific was the Rev William Thomas (1793-1867), who was Assistant Protector of the Aborigines in the early days of colonisation of what is now Victoria. This article and the thesis upon which it was based closely examine for the first time the linguistic data collected by Thomas in two main sources - his manuscript notes now in the Mitchell Library, Sydney, and a manuscript entitled "A lexicon of the Australian Aboriginal languages in the six dialects of Ballarat, Bacchus Marsh, Melbourne, Gippsland, Mount Gambier and Wonnin...", now in the State Library of Victoria. The valuable linguistics data about the various languages in these sources is exemplified, discussed and compared with modem Unguistic studies of the languages concerned Technical details: System requirements: Adobe

Annotation: "... portrays the richness and diversity of Victorian Aboriginal culture through artworks and stories from the early 19th century to the present day. Over 340 artworks and artefacts are featured, from shields, baskets and possum skin cloaks to contemporary artworks dealing with the Stolen Generations, land rights and reconciliation. Old and new are woven together, demonstrating the continuation of culture, and words and phrases from Victorian Aboriginal languages are used throughout. Artists describe their own artworks, and stories and quotes from Elders and other community members provide cultural and historical context, telling of the importance of Country, of life before Europeans arrived, of invasion and dramatic change, a dislocation missions, and of the survival and strength of the living culture."
