Annotation: "This book provides a guide to the Aboriginal languages of New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory, and to the current state of information about them. Part A has two main aims: to show (a) which dialects belong together as variant forms of the same language, and (b) which languages belong together as related members of a group; and to provide information about the current state of these languages, and a guide to the resources available for language revitalisation, including a bibliography. It covers 14 language groups, with additional chapters on contact languages, sign languages and terms used in kin classification, as well as two bibliographic appendices: one on placenames, the other based on the work of N. B. Tindale. Part B presents a word-list for each language, with an account of the sources used in compiling it, and an overview of the languages phonology."--Provided by publisher, annotation pending

Title: Cultural water and the Edward/Kolety and Wakool River system / by Jessica K Weir, Steven L Ross, David RJ Crew and Jeanette L Crew

Publication info: Canberra : Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, 2013

Publication info: *2013

Physical descrip: 1 online resource (37 pages)

ISSN: 1834-6855

Abstract: "In this paper we consider the experiences of the Wamba Wamba and Perrepa Perrepa people and the work of one of their key organisations, Yarkuwa Indigenous Knowledge Centre Aboriginal Corporation. The discussion does not encompass the whole of Wamba Wamba country but focuses on the Edward/Kolety and Wakool rivers and the town of Deniliquin, where Yarkuwa is based. The issues of water scarcity, drought and increased temperatures with climate change provide the context for this research, although the project started during a series of wet years, which immediately followed the long drought that dominated the start of the 21st century. The Yarkuwa board and membership argue strongly for the inclusion of cultural flows in the Edward/Kolety and Wakool river system, and this paper explores the meaning and potential of this. No cultural water allocation has been secured for the Edward/Kolety and Wakool rivers; however, this research has been supported by Yarkuwa as part of building capacity among both Indigenous and non-Indigenous people for cultural water governance in the Edward/Kolety and Wakool.

Title: Previously unexamined texts in Victorian languages [electronic resource] : the manuscripts of Rev. William Thomas (1793-1867) / Stephen Morey, Monash University

Publication info: 1999

Abstract: Most of the records of the Aboriginal languages of Victoria were written down by untrained people in the 19th century. One of the most prolific was the Rev William Thomas (1793-1867), who was Assistant Protector of the Aborigines in the early days of colonisation of what is now Victoria. This article and the thesis upon which it was based closely examine for the first time the linguistic data collected by Thomas in two main sources - his manuscript notes now in the Mitchell Library, Sydney, and a manuscript entitled "A lexicon of the Australian Aboriginal languages in the six dialects of Ballarat, Bacchus Marsh, Melbourne, Gippsland, Mount Gambier and Wonnin...", now in the State Library of Victoria. The valuable linguistics data about the various languages in these sources is exemplified, discussed and compared with modern linguistic studies of the languages concerned

Annotation: "Examination of how modernist knowledge traditions and establish narratives as different and hyper-extend their differences into oppositional relationships. Then illustrations of how the far reaching relationships sustained by freshwater mesh together water as a resource for production and a nurturing life force. These relationships are discussed and how they can be understood ethically and intimately through 'connectivity'. Connectivity brings into the foreground our life-sustaining co-dependencies with many living agencies. This is argument is made about connectivity within the context of extensive river degradation and water scarcity in the Murray-Darling Basin. This ecological destruction has mobilised diverse traditional owner groups from along the inland rivers into an alliance. The purpose of their alliance is twofold, to have more influence with government water policymakers, and to build their capacity to be involved in water management within their traditional owner groups. The traditional owners have developed translation tools to speak to policymakers. The author analyses how this intercultural engagement is both translating information and transforming parties, and shows how Indigenous knowledge traditions are part of building a more ethical relationship with water in Australia."
