

CONSTRUCTION SAFETY CAMPAIGN

National Meeting & AGM

Health & Safety faced with unprecedented attacks because of recession

The government's review of UK health and safety law pulls no punches as it says "it wants to give an opportunity to the employers to reduce the burden of these laws on UK business"

The class warped minds of these politicians were revealed when the prime minister quoted health and safety culture as one of the issues responsible for last summer's riots.

All this stands in contrast to the real facts that governments have supported the employers and bankers that are responsible for a recession unknown in our lifetime. Its this that drives their cost cutting exercise which has created no future for our kids, poverty, job losses and increased deaths, serious injuries & various cancers of construction workers.

In 2010 construction industry site deaths increased by 20% from 40 to 50.
In the month of July 2011, 7 construction workers were killed, this represented 50% of all workplace deaths in the U.K
