COLLECTION OVERVIEW

Scope and contents note

The main series in this record group are the NAC National Secretariat Registry files (MS 4000 1/1-1/1284). It is a structured filing system covering all aspects of NAC operations, from policy matters to routine administration, including National meetings of NAC members, the National Executive and State Branch meetings. The files also document the key matters of concern to the NAC, such as relations with the Federal and State governments, and with local and international fraternal organisations, land rights, Makarrata (treaty), education, housing, health, cultural heritage, mining and the environment, human rights, law and justice. Other areas of concern to the NAC, such as women's and youth affairs, Torres Straits Islanders, welfare and social security, are not well documented in the surviving parts of the Registry filing system. The structure of the Registry filing system is shown in the Series description.

Several peripheral filing systems, mainly documenting the period 1983-1984, are held with these NAC National Secretariat archives: National Chairman's Office files, Ministerial correspondence files, records of State Branch and State Chairmen's meetings, and some Executive meeting papers.

MS 4000 NAC, National Secretariat, Registry files and related papers, 1977-1985

The National Secretariat archives also include membership records, correspondence registers and other registers and logs, a set of press cuttings, the file indexes and Registry working papers. Papers documenting storage, transfer and organisation of the NAC archives have been lodged with this record group.

These records of NAC meetings and its activities are supplemented by the NAC Library materials held at MS 5110.

Provenance

The NAC archives were transferred to the custody of AIATSIS on 17 December 1985.

Archivist's note

The National Aboriginal Conference National Secretariat Registry files are arranged in their original order. The original file titles and file numbers are cited in the finding aid. The management services files (File Nos) have been top-numbered from an earlier filing system – their old file numbers are cited in the right hand column of the finding aid.

Some files and sets of files are missing from the NAC filing system. Registry files not received by AIATSIS are marked, 'File not transferred'. Registry files included in transfer lists but not sighted by the archivists when arranging the files in 2016 have been marked, 'File not located'. In both cases the file titles and numbers are included in the finding aid so that researchers can see the strengths and gaps in the surviving parts of the filing system.

ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY

The National Aboriginal Conference (NAC) began operation in November 1977 and was abolished in June 1985. It succeeded the National Aboriginal Consultative Committee (sometimes known as the National Aboriginal Congress), and was not replaced until the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Commission (ATSIC) was established in March 1990.

The Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, Ian Viner, announced the establishment of the NAC on 30 May 1977. The first election for 35 Members of the NAC was held on 12 November 1977. The successful candidates were elected for a term of three years and took their seats from 28 November. Early in 1978 the NAC National Secretariat, based in the MLC Building, Woden, Canberra, replaced an interim unit which had operated within the Federal Department of Aboriginal Affairs. The first annual conference was held in April 1978. The National Aboriginal Conference was incorporated under the Aboriginal Councils Association Act on 20 October 1978.

In October 1980 the NAC membership was increased to include an elected Tasmanian representative. On 17 October 1981 the second general election was held and successful candidates took office on 28 October 1981. The Minister for Aboriginal Affairs, Clyde Holding, extended the terms for these members from October 1984 to April 1985, and then to June 1985, when the NAC was abolished by the Hawke government.

The NAC national conference and annual general meeting were held annually. This meeting of all NAC members reviewed the previous twelve months' work of the National Executive Committee and received and considered reports and recommendations from State Branches. After the 1981 election, the AGM elected the National Chairperson. Previously the National Executive Committee elected this position annually. State Branches met at least two times a year. Each Branch elected a chair and deputy chair. The National Executive Committee was chosen by State Branches.

The NAC provided a forum in which Aboriginal views on the conduct of Aboriginal affairs were expressed at State and National level. The Conference had no general consultative function, but could advise the Federal Minister for Aboriginal Affairs on specific issues referred to it by Government.
