Tycoon Adnan Khashoggi thrown in jail

By SUN FOREIGN DESK

ARMS tycoon Adnan Khashoggi, once one of the world's richest men, was seized on massive fraud charges yesterday.

Police swooped in Switzerland after he flew in for "eternal youth" health treatment.

He was jailed awaiting a bid to extradite him to America, where an international warrant had been issued for him.

Khashoggi, 53, is accused of helping deposed Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos steal £100 MILLION from his country's treasury.

He could face 25 years' jail if convicted in the U.S.

FBI investigators say Khashoggi pretended to be the owner of sky-

The racket was allegedly set up to hide the sacked dictator's massive assets.

Khashoggi also arranged to sell millions of pounds' worth of art treasures filched from galleries in Manila which mysteriously "vanished" when Marcos and his wife Imelda fled in 1986, it is claimed.

America gave the pair sanctuary, but indicted them when they realised the scale of their massive swindling.

Under fire... Superintendent Marshall

DRUNKEN Liverpool fans viciously attacked rescue workers as they tried to revive victims of the Hillsborough soccer disaster, it was revealed last night.

Police officers, firemen and ambulance crew were punched, kicked and urinated upon by a hooligan element in the crowd.

Some thugs rifled the pockets of injured fans as they were stretched out unconscious on the pitch.

In one shameful episode, a gang of Liverpool fans noticed the blouse of a girl trampled to death in the crush had risen above her breasts.

STUNG

As a policeman struggled in vain to revive her, they jeered: "Throw her up here and we will **** her."

Sheffield officers — stung by criticism of themselves and their boss Superintendent Roger Marshall — hit back yesterday to reveal their side of the story.

As the death of a 14-year-old boy brought

By HARRY ARNOLD and JOHN ASKILL

the toll to 95, cops claimed their rescue effort was hampered by hooligans tanked up at a three-hour boozing session.

One furious policeman who witnessed the disaster on Saturday stormed: "To paint all the Liverpool fans lily-white is wrong."

"As we struggled in appalling conditions to save lives, fans standing further up the terrace were openly urinating on us and the bodies of the dead."

"And as policemen on the pitch tried to save ring up

£122,000

for fund

CALLING all Sun readers! Your caring, sharing spirit has sent our Hillsborough hotline fund soaring to £122,500.

That takes us a big step along the road to our million-pound target to help the victims' families.

More than 180,000 of you have already phoned our special hotlines to listen to famous Scousers Cilla Black and Ringo Starr giving their heartfelt messages of comfort to the bereaved.

Jammed

Our pals at British Telecom, who are providing the service, have also donated £30,000 to the appeal.

Our lines were jammed yesterday, but you showed you cared by hanging on to hear the stars' consoling words.

Today, there is another chance to swell the fund as a third legendary Liverpoolian, Jimmy Tarbuck, adds his tribute to the messages from Cilla and Ringo.

Liverpool fan Jimmy's two nephews were at the match, but escaped injury. "I breathed a sigh of relief when I knew they were OK," Tarby said yesterday. He added: "Our sympathy and love must go out to the bereaved."

Collect

The hotline numbers are: 0898 333 561, 0898 333 562, or 0898 333 563.

Calls are charged at 38p a minute peak rate, 25p cheap rate. Every penny we collect from the calls will go to the bereaved. And the longer you stay on the line, the more we will raise.

TOMORROW, we will try to bring in more cash with a hotline auction for 20 footballs, each autographed by a First Division team.

The balls were originally to be raffled to raise money for Hillsborough-based Sheffield Wednesday.

The club now want proceeds to go to the appeal, and have asked The Sun to help. Full details tomorrow.

VIDEO TO SHOW HORROR

TELEVISION pictures of the tragedy are to be used in a video to promote the disaster fund single.

The scenes will provide a poignant backdrop to the disc, a new version of Gerry and the Pacemakers' Ferry Across The Mersey. Singers include the Pacemakers' Gerry Marsden, Paul McCartney and Holly Johnson.

Production of the disc is being organised by Pete Waterman and The Sun. It is due out on May 2.

Di... she comforted parents

LITTLE Lee Nichol, the soccer boy who touched the heart of Princess Diana, died yesterday just hours after she visited him in hospital.

Lee, 14, became the 95th victim of the Hillsborough disaster when he lost his fight for life during the night at Sheffield's Northern General Hospital.

By IAN HEPBURN, KIERON SAUNDERS and NICK PARKER

Caring Di was devastated after learning of the soccer-mad youngster's death.

She immediately sent a private message of condolence to Lee's family. A Palace spokesman said:

"The Princess and Prince Charles are both saddened by the news."

Di was close to tears on Monday when she talked to Lee's relatives as he lay beside them fighting for life on a ventilator.

Claim

Doctors who watched the touching scene warned then they were not sure he would survive.

And early yesterday parents Don, 54, and his ex-wife Patricia, 46, watched as doctors turned off the life support machine.

Patricia revealed that just weeks ago Lee said that if he died he wanted his organs used to save other children.

Blond sports-loving Lee — who leaves an older brother Andrew, 26, and sister Joanne, 22 — even signed his own red and blue donor card.

Lee, his Hillside School's star striker, made the plea after reading about life saving transplant operations.

Hope

Lee travelled to the match by coach from Bootle, Merseyside, where he lived with his mum.

With him was lifelong pal, Austin Grimmond, 14.

They went straight to the front of the terrace — where they were trapped in a corner in the surge of terror.

Plucky Austin tried to protect Lee but they were pinned against a wall. Austin's dad George said:

Austin could see Lee was going blue in the face and shouted for help.

He grabbed the hood of Lee's coat and tried to pull him up. Lee was shouting 'help me, help me' before he passed out.

Suffering

Some men reached over and pulled them out.

Austin wasn't badly hurt but mentally he's really suffering. He keeps saying 'it wasn't my fault'.

the injured they were hampered by other Liverpool fans kicking and punching them."

His story was confirmed by Police Federation rep Paul Middup, who revealed how several of his members broke down and wept as they told him what they had witnessed. "I don't doubt these stories are true," he said. "I am sick of hearing of how good the crowd were."

"Some arrived tanked up and the situation faced by officers was simply terrifying."

But Pc Middup stressed that only a small minority of the Liverpool fans behaved so badly.

Most police officers refused to be named because of the impending full scale inquiry.

But a high ranking officer at the ground said: "They were just acting like animals. My men faced a double hell — the disaster and the fury of the fans who attacked us."

South Yorkshire ambulance chief Don Page revealed one of his men was so badly assaulted by drunken fans he needed hospital treatment. A fireman was also attacked.

A second police officer added: "As one young officer gave the kiss of life and heart massage he was given a savage kick by a lout."

A third policeman said: "There was a lot of pilfering.

"Personal possessions were missing as well as cash. People were picking up coins which had fallen from victims' pockets. It was sickening."

The police claims were backed by Sheffield MP Irvine Patnick, who spoke to officers on duty in the mortuary hours after the tragedy.

"They told me they were hampered, harassed, punched, kicked and urinated on by Liverpool fans," he said.

"I have kept quiet about this because I didn't want to inflame a delicate situation."

"But these are the stories told to me by policemen just after it had happened. I saw the bruising on their bodies."

Cop had to open gate says wife

THE wife of police chief Roger Marshall, who decided to open the gates at Hillsborough, backed him yesterday.

Pat Marshall said: "He had no alternative."

Mrs Marshall, who said her husband could not speak out until the inquiry, added: "There is a great deal of pressure, but we are not the only ones involved."

"We are distressed about the people who lost their lives."

CARING Liverpool soccer stars have offered to visit families bereaved in the Hillsborough horror, it was revealed yesterday.

Council officer David Mason said the city's phone help-line had received 250 calls from grieving relatives seeking help.

Many of them had asked to meet the players — and the footballers have agreed to see them.

Mr Mason, director of Social Services, said: "We are currently trying to organise this."

Liverpool's first team, plus manager Kenny Dalglish, have already given a big boost to injured victims by visiting them.

LIVERPOOL'S city council last night offered to pay for the funerals of victims of the Hillsborough tragedy.

Spokesman for the council Mr David Mason, said: "It is only right that families are relieved of this burden."

"It may be that some families will want to pay for their own funerals, but the offer is there."

Experts

Mr Mason said more than 250 distraught callers have rung a special phone hot-line manned by counsellors.

And he revealed that counselling experts Mich-

The council has had 250 offers of help from local businesses and voluntary groups, he said.

THATCHER BEATS THE QUEEN TO RUSSIA!

By TREVOR KAVANAGH, Political Editor

PREMIER Margaret Thatcher yesterday beat the Queen by a mile in the race to visit the Soviet Union.

Maggie stole a march by accepting an invitation from Kremlin boss Mikhail Gorbachev for talks in Kiev in June next year. The visit, to mark British Week, will be her second to the USSR in three years. And it provides a classic new episode in the running saga between Downing Street and the Palace.

The Prime Minister's acceptance came just two weeks after she told the Queen to STALL in her response to Gorbys' personal invitation to visit Russia.

The monarch, acting on "advice from her ministers," told the Soviet boss her diary was full but said she would accept "in due course."

Excuse

But despite the excuse the Queen has only TWO overseas trips planned in the next two years.

And according to Palace insiders, she is eager to make a state visit to the land of her old Czarist relatives.

Mrs Thatcher ruled out a royal tour of Russia until Mr Gorbachev produces evidence of his new commitment to human rights.

Now the Queen is unlikely to squeeze in a visit before the next General Election in 1991.

GOLF CLINCHES TOYOTA PLANT

By CHARLES RAE, Industrial Editor

JAPANESE car bosses yesterday teed up a £700-million factory for Britain - after being promised a FREE golf course.

Toyota - the world's biggest car manufacturer - will build the huge factory at Burnaston Airfield in Derbyshire, creating 3,000 jobs.

The Japanese love of golf was an important factor when they chose the site, say Derbyshire county council officials.

They are giving Toyota executives the nearby 18th century Allestree Hall with its 18-hole golf course rent free for five years.

Toyota plan to produce 200,000 cars a year by the early 1990s.

A further 6,000 jobs could be created in the components industry when production starts.

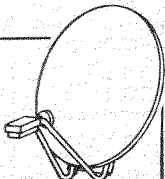

Toyota will also get a £20million cash injection from the council.

£6,000 BILL PUTS RANDY FISH BOSS IN HIS PLAICE!

Sex harassment rap

By SUN REPORTER

A RANDY fish company boss who tried netting two pretty young employees was branded a stinker by an industrial tribunal yesterday — and landed with a £6,000 bill.

Persistent 53-year-old Mike Alway tried every way to go all the way with lovely Lisa Loveless and attractive Marnie Stinson.

He offered to INCREASE Marnie's salary, help BUY her a flat, and TAKE her to Gibraltar. And Lisa claimed she LOST her job after refusing his advances.

But the bearded, balding boss's chat-up lines really did leave a lot to be desired.

The tribunal heard how the old romantic told Marnie: "You make things happen in my trousers," and "I like your skirt — it shows off your backside."

His attempts at seducing buxom 24-year-old Lisa were even worse. "My thing throbs when I see you," he said, and described her bosoms as "big juicy boobs."

Experiences

Marnie said that shortly after she started to work for Mr Alway he took her out to dinner.

She told the tribunal: "He told me details about his experiences at wife swapping parties."

Then on the way home he stopped his car and stroked her leg.

Marnie, 22, of Scarborough, Yorks, yesterday said she was harassed out of her job as a linguist with his L'Amiral seafood firm.

She told the Exeter tribunal: "He would not pay me my proper salary of £8,000 a year unless I went to bed with him."

Lisa, of Plymouth, Devon, claimed she was fired as operations manager for Mr Alway's Flow International food distribution company after refusing his advances.

Hope

Tribunal chairman Brian Walton said Mr Alway was guilty of "galloping carnality."

He awarded Lisa £2,800 in damages and back pay for sexual harassment. Marnie received £2,000. Mr Alway was ordered to pay £1,250 costs.

THE pride and joy of old John Thomas — his old John Thomas — goes under the hammer today.

And the man with the delicate task of pulling in the bids is Christie's auctioneer... James Dick.

A stone sculpture of John Thomas's penis, all seven and a quarter inches of it, is Lot 119 in a sale of "decorative objects" at Christie's. The work was probably commissioned by a grateful wife or mistress after his death in 1904.

Sun spotlight on Sinatra the toughie

OL' Blue Eyes Frank Sinatra may be 73, but he still has the hearts of housewives fluttering as he croons his way around another world tour.

Today, The Sun brings you 20 facts which show that when it comes to dealing with wives, women and pals, Frank, who began his British concerts at London's Albert Hall last night, is as tough as old boots. And that he always does it My Way...

20 THINGS THAT OL' BLUE EYES DID HIS WAY!

Sulky singer

■ Frank goes mad if he doesn't get his own way

1 Three years ago, while recovering from a stomach operation, Sinatra offered the Pope £100million—half of his personal fortune—for a private confession and absolution from his sins before he dies.

2 Sinatra has been wed four times. He publicly flaunted mistress Ava Gardner while first wife Nancy Barbato, whom he married in 1939, tried—and failed—to win him back. They divorced in October, 1951 and a month later he wed Ava.

3 When he wanted to marry actress Mia Farrow, who at 19 was 30 years his junior, he asked actor Brad Dexter for his opinion. Dexter replied that he was too old, so Sinatra smashed up the room, lined up a priest and married the girl.

By SUE EVISON

4 He took Mia down the aisle in July 1966 but a month later announced to a packed concert that their marriage was over. While Mia sat in the audience he told fans: "Maybe you wondered why I finally got married. Well, I finally found a broad I could cheat on." They divorced in August, 1968. He's now married to Barbara Marx.

5 Writer Kitty Kelley, in her unofficial biography, His Way, reveals that the FBI has a 141b file on Sinatra's alleged links with the Mafia, although nothing has ever been proved in court.

6 Sinatra owns homes in Palm Springs, New York, Miami, Paris and London. He names them after his hits and his favourite is called The House I Live In. His office is known as My Way and his 96ft, £2million yacht was christened My Way Again.

7 Friends say he flies into a rage when he can't get his own way. In her book, Kitty claims that comedian Jackie Mason was beaten up by the star's henchmen in Miami when he refused to stop using anti-Sinatra jokes.

8 His Way also tells how Sinatra loves to gamble but hates to lose. Sanford Waterman, boss of Caesar's Palace, Las Vegas, alleges he was forced to pull a gun on the singer when he grabbed him by the throat after he was asked to pay his gambling IOUs in cash. Sinatra denies it.

9 Loyalty is not one of Sinatra's strong points. Valet George Jacobs saved the star's life by calling a doctor when he took an overdose after a tiff with Ava Gardner. He was later sacked for asking Ava to dance with him at a club. Despite his life-long friendship with Sammy Davis Jr, he had him written out of the 1959 film Never So Few after he criticised Sinatra's behaviour.

10 The singer is obsessed with hygiene. He changes his boxer shorts up to 10 times a day, but leaves his dirty underwear littered around the house.

11 For years Frank drank a bottle of Jack Daniels bourbon a day and was so good for business that the company gave him an acre of land in Kentucky where the drink is made. Now he drinks a lot less.

12 He has spent his whole life fighting a weight problem. He now weighs 12st 7lb but he ballooned to 15st 7lb before his stomach operation in 1987.

13 A loyal Democrat, Sinatra campaigned to put John F. Kennedy in the White House. But when Kennedy's brother Bobby declared war on the Mafia after becoming attorney-general, the Democrats dropped Sinatra.

14 He lived in fear of his mum Dolly, a back-street abortionist who insisted on dressing him in girl's clothing as a small boy. She refused to let him marry his first girlfriend Toni Francke when she got pregnant.

15 The star's generosity is legendary but comedian Mort Sahl reckons it is double-edged. Frank gave him £15,000 when he was hard up. Ten years later, when Sahl cracked a joke about him, the singer sued for the money's return.

16 In 1954 he won an Oscar for his performance as a war hero in From Here To Eternity.

17 He was rejected for military service because he has a hole in his ear drum.

18 Sinatra was thought to be still-born but his grandmother saved him by holding him under a cold water tap. He still has the scars on his neck from his forceps delivery on December 12, 1915.

19 His hobbies include cooking, model trains and dogs. He has eight pooches, including a Rottweiler, King Charles spaniel and an Afghan.

20 He has had 50 hit singles in Britain but only two reached No 1—Three Coins in the Fountain, for 19 weeks in 1954, and Strangers in the Night, for 20 weeks in 1966.

Gun cop in clash with his victim's brother

A POLICE marksman clashed at an inquest yesterday with the brother of an armed robber he shot dead. PC Graham Shaw told how he shot 50-year-old Tony Ash in an ambush after a £10,000 supermarket robbery. But Ash's younger brother Eddie, 45, claimed that his brother was in the act of SURRENDERING when he was shot. The officer said Ash was pointing a pistol straight at him—and showed no sign of giving himself up. "He lifted the gun and pointed it straight at me with his left hand," PC Shaw told the hearing at Lambeth, South London.

Getaway

He added: "I believed he intended to shoot me so I fired." "At no time did he raise his arms or make any attempt to drop the gun." Mr Ash said: "My brother was right handed. If he intended to shoot anyone, he would have had the gun in his right hand." Coroner Sir Montague Levine said: "This was a direct confrontation with potential death for either the officer or the gunman. You fired first, officer." The inquest heard a gang had tried to shoot their way out of a car park. The hearing continues.

SPOT Police take dabs at Sun

THREE senior executives of The Sun were fingerprinted yesterday by Scotland Yard detectives hunting the thief who stole Princess Anne's letters. They were Editor Kelvin MacKenzie, News Editor Tom Petrie and Picture Editor Paul Buttle. Serious Crimes Squad chief Commander Roy Penrose was called in to investigate after four letters were passed to The Sun earlier this month. They were written by the Queen's Equerry, Commander Timothy Laurence, to the Princess Royal. The letters were immediately handed over to the police who began a top-level inquiry among the royal staff to trace the thief. Detectives, who have already fingerprinted several members of the Royal Household, took the dabs of The Sun's executives for elimination purposes.

"Suspect" . . . a Dunlop tyre

WARNING OVER DANGER TYRES

Fault blamed for crash that killed a family

A BADLY-designed tyre caused a car crash which killed a family of three, experts told an inquest yesterday.

And they said the Dunlop SP4 type of tyre—fitted to the crash car and used by thousands of motorists—had a history of problems.

Department of Transport examiner Samuel Merrifield said he thought it was "suspect." He added: "It is an accepted thing in the trade that this was not the best of tyres."

Mr Merrifield, who examined the tyre, which burst on a bend and sent the crash car out of control, said there was a 5in by 3in hole where a bulge had been.

Pneumatic consultant Richard Grogan said the bulge resulted from the rubber tread separating from the tyre's steel inside layer.

"The SP4 had a bad history of belt edge looseness. This is just another example of many I have seen," he told the hearing at Cullompton, Devon.

He said in his 47 years as a tyre specialist, the SP4 was "a lot worse than any other tyre I can think of."

But Dunlop expert David Payne denied the tyre was defective. He claimed a cut in the worn nearside rear tyre, which is no longer made, caused the crash.

Charles Harris, 30, his wife Margaret, 30, and their daughter Lauren, ten, died after the tyre burst on the A30 near Exeter. Their car careered across the central reservation and hit oncoming traffic. The hearing continues.

● LATER a spokesman for Japanese-owned SP Tyres, who manufacture Dunlop tyres, also denied any design fault.

Marketing director Peter Soddy said: "Our own technicians have examined this particular tyre and are happy that it was not a design fault which caused the accident. "We say it was more the unfortunate result of inadequate tyre inspection and maintenance."

Wogan... threat

Tel Boy faces TV blackout

By CHARLES RAE
Industrial Editor

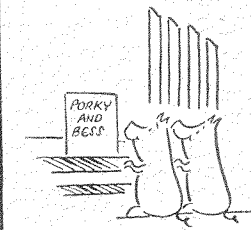

TOP TV chat show host Terry Wogan faces a blackout on Monday in a BBC pay war. Union bosses representing 25,000 Beeb staff have warned they will start a series of one-day strikes then if the Corporation does not come up with a better pay offer. Staff are demanding a 16 per cent rise—but the BBC has offered just seven per cent. Other chat shows, live news bulletins, Breakfast Time, Newsnight, sport and outside broadcasts will be hit by the stoppages.

Final

Beeb bosses say they will try to avoid blackouts by using management to run programmes. A BBC spokesman said: "Our pay offer is final. We have to operate within the constraints of the index-linked licence fee." He added: "If there is industrial action, we'll do our best to provide as normal a service as possible."

HOW SPIDER ADNAN SPUN WEB OF RICHES

From ALLAN HALL in New York

ADNAN KHASHOGGI, the man used to drinking £1,000 bottles of wine and eating off solid gold plates, was eating prison rations last night and sipping coffee from a tin mug.

Khashoggi, 53, has been dubbed The Spider by the FBI because of his web of important contacts, clandestine deals and secret investments. Now he sits in a Swiss jail accused of helping exiled Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos in a £100million swindle and faces extradition to America.

Adnan Khashoggi started life as the son of a doctor to the Saudi Arabian royal family.

But he dreamed of becoming the richest person in the world.

His first break came after he moved to America to study economics and history at the University of California.

When he was 18 his father gave him £1,000 for a car but Adnan used it to buy flashy American pick-up trucks, which he exported to Saudi at a huge profit.

He had made his first million by the time he was 20.

But his quest for untold wealth took off in the Seventies when Khashoggi came to control 80 per cent of the defence products shipped to Saudi Arabia.

Pride

He made £300million pounds in commission alone from 1971 to 1976.

At one time he was earning £700 a minute—that's £1million a day. And he knew how to spend it.

HOMES: Khashoggi had 12 houses all over the world, including New York, Paris, Monte Carlo, London, Rome, Riyadh,

The Nabila... dinner plates made of solid gold

California, Geneva and Marbella.

His New York apartment on Fifth Avenue was valued at £25million—it had a private swimming pool and a special baby bed for his teddy bear.

PLANES: Khashoggi's private airline cost £1million a year to run. The pride of his fleet was a £40million Douglas DC8. Fittings included two drawing rooms and three en suite bathrooms.

YACHT: The fabulous Nabila cost £25million and had 70 telephones and a solid gold dinner service.

CLOTHES: A warehouse near his Marbella house bulged with 3,000 shirts, all made to measure at £70 each, and 2,500 pairs of crocodile skin shoes.

PARTIES: He has spent millions on celebrity bashes. Guests included Elizabeth Taylor, Brooke Shields, Ryan O'Neal, Farrah Fawcett and Christopher Reeve.

His £500,000 50th birthday party lasted three days and guests guzzled 12,000 bottles of champagne and 250lb of caviar.

GIRLS: Khashoggi was spotted with scores of beautiful women and he had a passion for £1,500 call girls, who were entertained lavishly on his yacht Nabila.

Troubled tycoon... Khashoggi, with his wife Lamia, faces his worst crisis

His lifestyle was so fantastic Harold Robbins based the hero of his book The Pirate on him.

But behind the spending was business sense. He says: "It's like catching flies with honey. I'm an artist with my wealth."

When asked if he was the richest man in the world he said: "I never count my money. Anyone who does that is not truly rich."

His first big loss was his divorce battle with his British-born wife Soraya, who took him to court for a chunk of his £2.5billion fortune. She settled out of court for £20million. He is now married to Italian beauty Lamia, his second wife.

Lost

In the past three years Khashoggi's fortune has been severely dented. He lost millions on a property venture in Salt Lake City. His beloved jets were repossessed after he defaulted on a French loan. And American contacts have avoided him since he was named as a key figure in the Iran-Contra scandal.

A former aide said: "No one could make it as fast as Adnan—but no one could spend it quicker, either. He's the last of a dying breed."

pocketed came from U.S. Government handouts.

Saudi-born Khashoggi's personal wealth was once estimated at up to £2½BILLION.

Middleman

But falling oil prices, stricter control of arms dealing and loss-making deals recently have reportedly left him in financial straits.

He figured in several bribery scandals, with U.S. aircraft manufacturers paying him large amounts for arranging defence contracts.

He was named as middleman in the Iran-Contra affair, where proceeds from sales of U.S. arms to Iran allegedly were funneled to rebels fighting Nicaragua's Leftist government.

Police in Berne arrested Khashoggi at the downtown, five-star Hotel Schweizerhof in a "gentlemanly" way without using handcuffs, manager Jean-Jacques Gauer said last night.

He was taken to the nearby district jail, the Swiss justice ministry said. Any bail was likely to be set "exceptionally high."

Hope

Swiss authorities were tipped off by the U.S. embassy when Khashoggi booked in on Monday for rejuvenation treatment at a Berne clinic.

Khashoggi has 10 days to file an appeal and request his release.

LLOYD WEBBER'S TWO ASPECTS OF LOVE

By RICHARD WALLACE
COMPOSER Andrew Lloyd Webber reveals the two sides of his own amazing private life as his latest musical Aspects Of Love is voted a smash hit.
BOTH his wives joined him on the opening night of the £2million show which follows the tangled love lives of five main characters. Delighted Andrew, 41, and his present partner Sarah Brightman, 27, posed with his former wife Sarah Norris, 36, and their two children Nicholas, 10, and Imogen, 12. Andrew had specially sent tickets for the new blockbuster to his former family. His ex-wife's new husband, Jeremy Norris, came too—but didn't join the "happy families" picture session. The show, at London's Prince Of Wales Theatre, has already taken a massive £5million in advance bookings. Celebrity guests including Prince Edward, Michael Parkinson, Jenny Seagrove, Anke Rice and Esther Rantzen were at the opening night. That's Life presenter Esther said afterwards: "It was magic. Quite wonderful."

cops get their man

FIVE police cars pursued a drunk motorist for 80 minutes yesterday — at speeds which NEVER topped 20mph. The tipsy driver of a pick-up truck weaved his way along country lanes for about 20 miles unaware of the snail-pace cop convoy behind. The "chase" ended near Maidstone, Kent, when the truck trundled into a parked car. Police inspector Alan Butterfield said: "This was a little different to the high-speed chases we hear about. But it was still too dangerous to overtake." The driver was charged.

Catriona Snow, 22, was working as an au pair there and dreamed of using the money for a life of luxury with her French boyfriend. She smeared rat poison on a Suchard bar, left it on a supermarket shelf and phoned her demands to the chocolate makers. But the calls were traced and Snow was arrested with her boyfriend and another French couple, the court in Strasbourg was told.

SOLDIER DIES SNIFFING FIRE EXTINGUISHER

Gas craze plagues Army

EXCLUSIVE by JOHN KAY

A ROOKIE soldier died after sniffing the gas in a fire extinguisher to get "high" — victim of a sick craze which is plaguing the Army, The Sun can reveal today.

Signalman Gary Pendlebury, 19, inhaled a whiff from the extinguisher during a NATO exercise.

Mates in the 7th Signal Regiment found Gary, from Manchester, dead in his relay van during the Iron Hammer manoeuvres at Rinteln, West Germany. They earlier saw him take a sniff.

The liquefied gas can make the heart beat more rapidly — and is so strong a small amount can kill.

A postmortem showed the gas in Gary's blood.

Top brass was told that squaddies inhale the extinguishers to relieve boredom.

An inquiry has now recommended that all army fire extinguishers carry a warning against inhaling their contents.

A soldier told The Sun: "I didn't know it was dangerous until I heard about Gary. I used to get high on a little spurt." An inquest is to be held.

His wife Doris, 33, drowned in a whirlpool bath at their holiday villa in Portugal.

PC Waldo, 35, from Ellington, Northumbria, was acquitted of her murder 12 days ago.

Now the prosecution is to appeal, and he could be extradited to go in the dock a second time. He has already spent a year in jail.

Bizarre

By GARRY BUSHELL

Rik's a B'Stard to Ben

NEW Statesman star Rik Mayall was once a real B'Stard to fellow comic Ben Elton and told him: "You are not funny."

Elton, 29, who penned the hit comedies Blackadder and The Young Ones, said Mayall warned him to stay away from stand-up comedy. He said: "To his everlasting shame, Rik tried to persuade me not to become a comedian."

"He told me, 'You're a great writer, and one day everyone will recognise it—so don't make a ****head out of yourself.'"

Personally, I reckon Rik got it dead right from the start!

BOND GIVES FREDDY £20,000 NIGHTMARE

EYE SPY... Bond sees red

JAMES BOND has defeated movie monster Freddy Krueger in a battle over the razor-nailed villain's £20,000 poster campaign.

Lawyers acting for the 007 production company, Eon, have put the block on the design of adverts for the latest Nightmare On Elm Street shocker.

They argued that comic posters for Nightmare 4: The Dream Master were a Bond rip-off because they were shot through a camera shutter "eye" in exactly the same way as the early Bond film posters, and featured the words: "The name's Krueger... Freddy Krueger"—a parody of the famous 007 line.

High Court judges in London agreed—and ordered Palace Pictures to WITHDRAW their ads and PULL DOWN all posters that had been distributed.

A movie insider said: "The new Bond film Licence To Kill has a 15 certificate and they don't like any suggestion that Bond is getting tougher to jeopardise that."

A spokesman for Palace Pictures, who distribute the Nightmare series, said last night: "We took our lead from something our director said—that he looked on Freddy as a cross between James Bond and Rocky."

Freddy, alias actor Robert Englund, said: "It's funny to think Bond needed his lawyers to beat me."

You gotta have sole!

TRAINER MANIA is sweeping the nation as fashion fans trade in their Doc Martens for a sleek pair of running shoes.

Comfort is the name of the game now as everyone from city slickers to rock n' rollers make the most of a pair of trainers for serious jogging or just plain posing.

But it costs pounds to start pounding the pavements. Picking a dodgy set of footwear can leave you with a range of injuries from simple sore feet to broken bones.

And as we all walk a whopping 75,000 miles in our lifetimes it's pretty important to keep tracks on your footwear.

Top athlete Steve Cram says: "People don't realise how important it is."

"Every time you put your foot down when you run you are exerting six to ten times your body weight in terms of force. That impact can affect your knees, shins and back if the foot is not properly supported."

You may not be going for Olympic Gold—perhaps just a few admiring glances in the High Street. I sent a team of Bizarre investigators to put their best feet forward and find out what's hot and what's not in the trendy trainer ratings.

We hit the streets and put six pairs of the best selling shoes through a road test. Here's what we kicked up.

SAUCONY

Gleem
£34

GOOD grip but little else. These are reasonably priced for a beginner, but for serious runners they are a definite no-no. The shoe doesn't allow the foot to flex at all and left our road tester feeling worse for wear. RATING: FIVE

AVIA

2010 Cushion Control
£29.99

WITHOUT doubt the best bet for the budget runner. Flexible, good looking—and cheap. There are stretch panels to allow the shoe to expand and contract while the foot changes shape when exercising. RATING: NINE

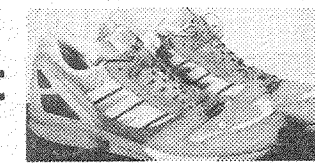

ASICS
GIII For Men
£79.99

THE makers reckon their Asics gel, moulded into the sole, reduces the risk of injury so we really put them through their paces. They took more punishment than Frank Bruno and came through with flying colours. RATING: SEVEN

ADIDAS

Tortion ZX8000C
£65

THIS shoe is snug and light, and after our tar-mac test it was still looking pretty good. Ideal for getting down on the dance floor or getting on around the racetrack. Allows feet to move as if they had no shoes on. RATING: SEVEN

NIKE
Air Pegasus 89
£39.99

AIREY fairy! Nike reckon their air cushion sole is the answer to pain problems but after our tough two-hour test we were left wondering what all the fuss was about. You'll look good in these—as you slip slide away! RATING: THREE

REEBOK
Energy Return System
£39.99

IT sounds good, but it won't turn you into Seb Coe overnight—even though the makers say it makes you run faster. The Reebok name is still number one with fashion fans but our tester still ended up totally exhausted! RATING: SIX

Ozzy's even batter now

ian fans in Milan, Ozzy—celebrating 21 years in the business—took the crowd to heavy metal heaven.

Bizarre Rating: Ozzy's BATTER than ever.

Mandy names the day

LOVELY Mandy Smith has named the day for her marriage to Rolling Stone Bill Wyman.

Mandy, 19, will tie the knot with old Bill on June 6—which is her sister Nicola's 20th birthday.

The teenage temptress says she has found a Catholic priest to perform the service—but she won't name the church.

A friend of Bill, 50, says: "Mandy wants to have a real Cockney wedding, with jellied and stewed eels and pie and mash."

KNIFE FIEND WHO HATED ALL WHITES

He tortured 7

By JAMES LEWTHWAITE
A WEST Indian was jailed for nine years yesterday after he tortured five women and two men... for being WHITE.

After cutting one girl victim with a knife, Joseph Archibald, 19, licked the blade and told her: "I like to drink blood."
The sadistic six-footer and a henchman burst into the group's flat as they slept and held them prisoner for six hours while he: SLASHED them with a knife, a jagged broken bottle and scissors; LASHED them viciously with a belt until they bled; BURNT them on their legs with lighted cigarettes; HACKED some of their hair off, tearing some out by the roots; THREATENED to kill and burn them. Four of his victims needed hospital treatment.

Screams

They included four Spanish girl students, a girl youth worker, an Irishman and a Spanish tourist.
Yesterday the Old Bailey heard that the only motive for the attack was that he had told them: "I hate all white people."

The judge told him: "You assaulted your victims in a most bizarre and cruel way."

Archibald, who admitted false imprisonment and grievous bodily harm, lived near the group at Shepherd's Bush, West London.

His henchman, Terence Leach, 24, also from the estate, got 7 1/2 years for false imprisonment, wounding and robbery.

GOLF ace Nick Faldo was hugging another big prize in his arms yesterday - his six-week-old son Matthew.

FALDO'S LITTLE MASTER!

Hot-shot Nick, 32, was home again after scooping the US Masters title - which could earn him around £3million. Sounds like he's hit the jack-pot!

SUN

GRROOM Karl Mumford, 28, had to be freed by firemen after staying overnight in a police station after he was whipped off his trousers at Aylesbury, Bucks.

Boos over free booze on express

FREE booze given by British Rail to first class passengers on a delayed train did not go down well with travellers in standard class.

For as toffs sipped gins and tonics during the hour-long hold-up, cheap seat passengers on the Sheffield to London express got only a complimentary tea or coffee.

BR spokesman Brian Ward said yesterday: "First class passengers paid considerably more for their tickets."

QUAKE KILLS 11
Eleven Chinese villagers were killed and 42 injured by an earthquake in south-western Sichuan province.

TOP FORM... a big cup for Jenny.

WHO'S A CLEVER GIRL? PAGE 3 GIRL?

Sun beauties really have got a lot on top

THE CLASSY 12

■ GAIL McKENNA, age 20, 5ft 5in tall, vital statistics 34D-23-34: Went to the all-girls Broughton Hall Convent of Mercy, Liverpool, where she got eight O-levels.
■ KATHY LLOYD, 21, 5ft 4in, 35C-22-35: Attended Warwick Bolam High School in Liverpool. Passed nine O's. Loved Kim school apart from a biology master who used to ping her bra-strings.
■ KIM BINGHAM, 17, 5ft 4in, 32DD-23-34: A pupil at St Ivo Secondary School, St Leonards, Cornwall. Kim sailed through eight O's and three CSE's.
■ GAYNOR GOODMAN, 21, 5ft 5in, 34B-22-35: At St Katherine's C of E School in London. Gaynor got seven O's. Hated school because she was teased about her boobs.
■ TRACEY ELVIK, 20, 5ft 4in, 34B-21-34: Tracey left

Great Sankey High School in Warrington, Cheshire, at just 15, but had seven CSE's tucked under her slender belt by then. She would love to go back... for the hunky sixth-formers!
■ RACHEL GARLEY, 19, 5ft 8in, 36B-24-36: Went to school in France, where she got the Certificate D'Etude for bright sparks from the Lycee d'Argeles, West Perpignan... and several Ooh-la-la Levels among the local lads.
■ SANDRA JANE MOORE, 25, 5ft 7in, 36G-24-34: A school sports champ who legged it straight on to Page 3 from All Hallows Secondary School in Farnham, Surrey, with five O's.
■ MIA FORD, 20, 5ft 5in, 34B-24-34: At Bridgedean Convent in Windsor, Mia got into trouble with the nuns for bleaching her hair, but clocked up eight O's before going to college and getting two A's.

■ JENNY BLYTH, 23, 5ft 4in, 34B-23-34: A star at Queen Elizabeth's Girls Grammar School in Barnet, Herts, where she got eight O's and two A's.
■ KAREN BRENNAN, 20, 5ft 2in, 34D-23-34: When she wasn't bunking off Glenmore Girls School to sunbathe on the Bournemouth beach, Karen was busy swotting for her seven O's. She passed them all - and got a great suntan!
■ JULIE DESMOND, 19, 5ft 6in, 34C-22-34: Attended Ingatstone Anglo-European Comprehensive, Brentwood, Essex, where she got four O's including French and German.
■ SARAH HOLLET, 19, 5ft 6in, 34C-22-34: Attended Fitzwimarc Comprehensive, Rayleigh, Essex. Got six O-levels and two CSE's. She gets full marks for modelling, too!

By INGRID MILLAR, MA (Edinburgh)
★ WHO'S got the most up top? It's obvious that Page 3 girls are top of the form for body language. But we wanted to know - are our favourite glamour girls bimbos or boffins? So we took 12 top-toppers favourites and set a Sun exam, based on O-level standard questions, to find out if their brains are bigger than their boobs.
★ There were 60 tricky questions in six categories - French, biology, English literature, geography, history and general knowledge.
Clear winner was Jenny Blyth, with 60 points out of 65, followed by Gail McKenna with 56 and Kathy Lloyd with 55 1/2.
Jenny collected The Sun Cup for Brainiest Page 3 Girl and said: "I hope this puts an end to the idea that Page 3 girls are brainless bimbos. We DO have something to say for ourselves."

★ But some of the girls got ten out of ten for their pretty CHEEKY answers. Out in front when it came to laughs was Karen Brennan.
Question: How do frogs breathe underwater? "With aqualungs," was Karen's answer.
Question: Name the Queen's great grandmum. Karen plumped for the obvious - "Nanny!"
Complete the other half of this famous couple: Marie Antoinette and... "Her head."
★ Sarah Hollet showed her Shakespeare was a bit shaky when she plumped for Cyril Smith wanting his pound of flesh - and not Shylock in The Merchant Of Venice.
Kathy Lloyd was up right there with the winners... but she could do with brushing up on her biology. According to her, the length of gestation in humans is NINE INCHES!

THE EXAM PAPER

'Safety' prize cut a tot's finger

LITTLE Charlotte Buck gashed her finger opening a teddy bear in a tin - a prize she had won in a SAFETY competition.
As blood poured from the wound, her mother patched it up from a first aid kit which was ALSO part of the prize.
The safety contest which backfired, landed the promoters in court yesterday.
Magistrates heard how Charlotte, six, spotted the competition in a women's magazine. It was promoted by Care Laboratories, makers of Savlon antiseptic.
Charlotte identified 15 hazards found around the home and garden - sent off her entry and won one of the 200 prizes.

Gash
When it arrived at her home in Kempshott, Hants, it was "a happy new friend" - the teddy bear - and a first aid kit.
But Mr Chris Smith, for the Hampshire Trading Standards Office, told magistrates that as Charlotte opened the teddy tin, a sharp edge tore a laceration in her finger.
The company admitted breaching part of the Consumer Protection Act and was fined £800.
The magistrates at Basingstoke, Hants, also ordered them to pay £231 costs.

VICE GIRL REVENGE MURDER

THREE Arabs, one of them a 4-year-old prostitute, have been murdered by fellow Palestinians for "collaborating" with Israel.
Sources in the occupied West Bank said the woman, Nadira al-Boulos, worked for Israel's Shin Bet security service and tried to recruit girls as informers.
She was taken from home and stabbed.

Firemen 'in blast boob'

FIREMEN who raced to put out a blaze on a Gary carrying explosives yesterday, branded "fools" yesterday.
Driver Peter Norman, whose engine caught fire as he delivered to Derbyshire quarries, said they could have been "blown sky high."

MACHETE SWOOP
A dozen men were last night being questioned by police over a machete and gun raid on a security guard in Royton, Greater Manchester 12 days ago.

THE NAME GAME

I want to be alone

I LIKE being on my own, so working at home would be perfect.

I'd like to take in office work but unfortunately I can't type. Any ideas?

JULIE, aged 20, Lincoln

■ SUE SAYS: Ask your library for teach-yourself typing books. Then borrow a friend's typewriter or hire one and get practising.

BELLY NICE IDEA

★ I WANT a coloured stone in my navel, like a belly-dancer. How does it stay in? Is it dangerous and where do I get it done?

LESLEY, aged 15, Manchester

■ SUE SAYS: You can harmlessly attach a stone to your navel with spirit gum, stocked by theatrical make-up suppliers.

JOB SPOT

★ I AM 19 and would like to become a careers officer. How do I get started?

MARK, aged 19, Ipswich, Suffolk

■ SUE SAYS: Careers officers need good communication skills as well as a Diploma in Careers Guidance.

You can get this with recognised teaching qualifications or a degree or relevant experience in industry.

Contact: Institute of Careers Officers, 27a Lower High Street, Stourbridge, W. Midlands DY8 1TA.

SUE SORTS IT OUT

By Sue Cook

Folks slap a ban on my dream holiday

I AM 17 and my boyfriend is 23. We have booked a holiday abroad together but my parents say I can't go.

It's so unfair. I consider myself mature and they know my boyfriend will take good care of me, so why won't they let me go?

The holiday is paid for and we stand to lose £1,000 I am becoming so ill with worry that I have already lost nearly a stone.

I keep mentioning it but they don't even listen anymore. I know that if I can't persuade them, I'd rather kill myself than tell my boyfriend he has wasted all that money.

TRISH, aged 17, Newport, Monmouth

■ SUE SAYS: What possessed you to let your boyfriend pay £1,000 before either agreeing things with your parents, or making a decision to go without their consent and taking the consequences?

No holiday—or boyfriend's anger—is worth killing yourself for, so put that out of your head. Tell your boyfriend now of the fix you're in and ask him to see your parents with you.

Perhaps at a meeting they can give the reasons for their opposition and you can calm their fears.

If they are still against it, you will have to decide whether to go without their approval, or ask your boyfriend to take a friend instead of you.

Haunted by girl's death

I AM 14 now, but had a girlfriend at 11. Despite our ages, we were very much in love and when she was killed in a car smash involving a drunk-driver, I was devastated.

At 13 I began drinking and a couple of months ago after drinking myself silly at a party I hurt my two best friends and blacked out for about five minutes.

They have forgiven me and I have given up drinking altogether. But I just can't help connecting my girlfriend's death with what I have been doing. And I haven't been able to love anyone since my girl's death.

CHRIS, aged 14, Bristol

■ SUE SAYS: Contact a bereavement counsellor through the Citizens' Advice Bureau.

Talking will bring you some relief now. Later you will remember your girlfriend without anguish and make new relationships without regret.

TEEN LINES

DARYLE: Good job it wasn't raining. See you 14th. Love—Your KC Lady

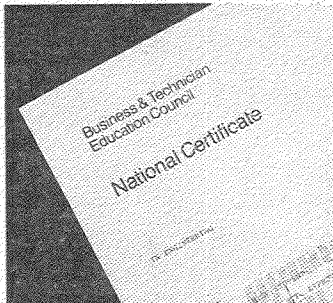

MATTY: You didn't have to love me, but you did—Caddy

ROGER BLANT: Don't know why I love you but I do. Please go out with me. Love—Nicola Potter

IF YOU'VE GOT IT IN YOU, OUR APPRENTICESHIP WILL BRING IT OUT.

The Army flies. REME keeps it flying.

BTEC. A certificate they're crying out for in British Industry can be yours 2 years before any civilian.

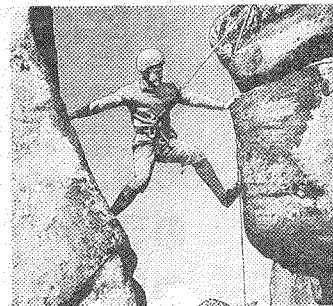

Electronic Technician. Keeping the Army's lines of communication clear, sharp and distortion free.

The Army Catering Corps. 150,000 customers. Up to three times a day.

The Royal Engineers. One of the world's oldest firms of map makers. Survey the world.

Who else pays you to play your favourite sport?

Today's Army has some of the most powerful and sophisticated equipment in the world.

Telecommunications equipment like Ptarmigan provide the Army with its own telephone and data network. Rapier ground-to-air missiles rely on complex electronics technology.

And tanks like Challenger are fitted with laser target acquisition systems.

The responsibility for maintaining such equipment falls squarely on the shoulders of Army technicians.

Which is why all these young men are trained at the Army's own Apprentice Colleges.

There are over 15 types of Technical Apprenticeships on offer. To qualify for some you'll need to have, or expect to get 3 good GCSEs (or equivalent), one of which should be in a technical subject.

But not all our apprenticeships are technical. We have courses for cooks, carpenters, joiners, plumbers, even accountants.

But first you've got to show us you can take on a challenge.

Because that's what being a Professional is all about.

I am between 15 and 17½ years of age and would like to know more about Army Apprenticeships.
Or I am between 15 and 25 years of age and would like to know more about other Army Careers.

BIG BROTHER BEATS ME UP

WHENEVER my brother, who is 15, is in a mood he takes it out on me. Sometimes I have so many cuts and bruises I look as if I have gone five rounds with Frank Bruno.

I tried to leave home over it once because it got so bad, but my dad came and got me from school before I could go through with it.

He looked so upset and I hate myself for what I have put my parents through. I blame my brother but he just laughs.

SARAH, aged 12, Oxford

■ SUE SAYS: Your parents obviously do care, so arrange a quiet time with them to discuss your problems—and show them your injuries in case they think you're being over-dramatic.

New pals by post

THERE'S not much to do in our village and I'd like to make new friends through writing and receiving letters.

KATHERINE, aged 13, Roade, Northants

■ SUE SAYS: Write (enclosing SAE) to the International Friendship League, British Section, PO Box 117, Leicester LE3 6EE. They can put you in touch with people in Britain and Ireland who want to do the same.

CAN SUE HELP YOU?

★ ARE you a young person with a problem you can't sort out or talk about? Write to me, Sue Cook, The Sun, 1 Virginia Street, London E1 9BW. An SAE for a leaflet.

GRANDDAD HAS LOST MY TRUST

EVERY Friday I stay with my nan and granddad.

One night, while my nan was at bingo and I was in bed, my granddad came into the room.

The next thing I knew, he was trying to touch me. I screamed but he hit me and said he would kill himself if I told my nan.

I haven't been round there for a few weeks now—I keep making excuses that I am ill.

CLAIRE, aged 16, Wembley, Middx

■ SUE SAYS: Your grandfather was wrong to abuse your trust. But before doing anything, talk to a counsellor.

Ring Richard or Barbara of The Incest Crisis Line—on 01 422-5100—or write, enclosing a SAE to: PO Box 32, Northolt, Middx, UB5 4JG.

Facing a dilemma

I HAVE a facial hair problem and have to use hair-removing cream.

I am considering buying an electrolysis kit for my holiday in the States this summer. Is this a good idea?

JAHINE, aged 16, High Wycombe, Bucks

■ SUE SAYS: Before buying a kit, try electrolysis at a beauty salon.

You will need to re-do the same area several times and you may find this too difficult or painful to do yourself.

2-Go BINGO

★ EYES DOWN, folks. It's Day Three of GAME 413 in £31,000 2-Go Bingo, and your LAST CHANCE this game to win a share of our £3,000 line prizes payout.

Remember, we give away £1,000 a day for a horizontal line of five published numbers—but only on the first three days of the game. After today, we're playing for Full Houses ONLY.

That means £25,000 for the reader who completes a Full House on the earliest possible number published in The Sun—to be shared by more one reader claims on the same number.

PLUS £3,000 to be shared by all other valid Full House claimants.

★ Check off today's numbers on the two grids immediately below the game number on your 2-Go Bingo Card. A list of different numbers will be printed each day, in the order they are drawn, to a maximum of 70 a game.

If any of the numbers appear on EITHER of the grids for GAME 413, cross them off. DO NOT cross off any numbers for other games.

★ A Full House can be claimed only if all the 15 numbers in one set have been crossed off. It CANNOT be a mixture of numbers from the two cards.

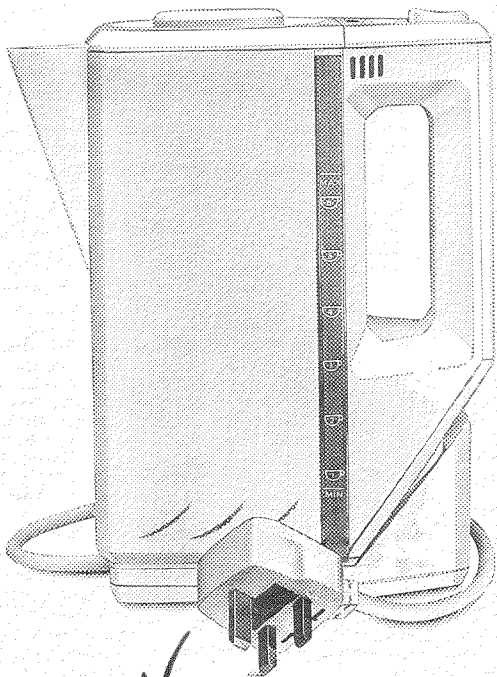

A COMPLETE LINE must be one horizontal line in either grid, where ALL FIVE numbers have been published. Each completed single line is eligible for ONE PRIZE ONLY.

If, with today's numbers, you get a FULL HOUSE or a COMPLETE LINE you must call the Bingo Hotline phone number on your Sun 2-Go Bingo Card before 4pm today.

ARIES (March 21-April 20): At first glance, it would seem you are in a tight spot financially and strapped for ready cash. However, once a sale, transaction or financial settlement has been agreed, everything else in your life will fit into place.

LIBRA (Sept 24-Oct 23): What you earn or possess appears to be someone else's problem. There's an awful lot of resentment and sour grapes around at the moment. This is not a day for extravagant gestures or indulging in risky schemes. Best by far to wait until after Friday, when you can almost name your own price.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21): Others go on and on about their woes and troubles with never a thought for your plight. Sometimes it takes a showdown if only to clear the air. And, despite what someone says, they would be lost without you.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21): You are at your most changeable, active and no doubt fed up with others' pettiness and selfishness. However, your current jaundiced view of life and particularly work, largely stems from the fact that you are run down and in need of a rest or vacation.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): This really is a decisive period for any kind of partnership. Although someone has obviously rattled your cage, remember all the fun times, what has been achieved and above all appreciate that your present circumstances are not without a touch of humour.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21): This could well be one of those days when you feel decidedly under the weather. But overall, your prospects have seldom appeared so full of promise and once this full moon is out of the way, the remainder of this month ought to be quite exceptional.

CANCER (June 22-July 23): Take much of what is implied today with a pinch of salt and tell others to stop interfering. How you decide to run your life and who you see is your affair. It's time to flex your muscles and exert your independence.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 20): Mercury now opposes the mighty planet Pluto and there may well be a minor hiccup or disappointment. But you have other friends, and one in particular will come to your aid to help you out of a tricky situation.

LEO (July 24-Aug 23): Both home and career issues are stressed now—and stressed is likely to be the operative word because of the influence of the full moon. But don't get yourself into a state or imagine that Dame Fortune has completely deserted you. Some marvellous and far-reaching changes on all fronts are just around the corner.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19): Everyone seems a bit on edge at the moment. A wrong word or thoughtless action could spoil things for yourself and others at a time when you are on the brink of something infinitely more rewarding.

VIRGO (Aug 24-Sept 23): Others seem to be taking far too many liberties and dragging their heels over things that you assumed were settled and decided weeks ago. All the same, there should be a happy ending to one bizarre saga or drama this week. So just hang in there.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20): Don't expect everything to run on oiled wheels today. Others continue to chop and change and generally give you the runaround. If you are adamant about certain ideas—especially those which would entail travelling further afield—you had better get your skates on.

Gateway suspends takeover bosses

By MIKE RIDLEY Sun City Editor

FOUR top bosses at the troubled Gateway chain were suspended yesterday after they were unmasked as partners in a plot to take over the company.

The men are part of a consortium bidding £1.7 billion for Britain's third largest food store group. And it was disclosed that deadly rivals Asda have agreed to buy 62 Gateway superstores if the consortium's bid is successful. Gateway chief Alec Monk dismissed the 195p share offer as derisory.

■ TIE RACK, hit by a series of disasters, saw profits rise by only £400,000 to £3.1million last year.

Drivers go spare

HALFORDS owner Philip Birch believes he will end up making money out of hard-up drivers.

For he reckons motorists struggling to make ends meet will do their own car repairs, boosting sales of spare parts at his 400 shops. Last year profits for Ward White, which owns Halfords, rose 17 per cent to £76.6million. But the City was not impressed and shares fell 10p to 262p.

★ PEOPLE who do not send their tax return forms back on time could face fines of up to £300. The present maximum fine is £50. And they may have to pay another £60 A DAY if they still delay.

RED SUCCESS STORY FOR JAMES

JAMES DRISCOLL has turned the bedtime stories he made up for his children into a multi-million pound business.

In a £1million deal, the Russians have order 26 MILLION copies of his Shoe People books.

Driscoll, 42, invented the characters to entertain his children Holly and Adam in the 1970s. And he let the stories gather dust for 10 years before trying to get them into print in 1987.

Driscoll gave up his job running a mail order business and has now rung up sales of £9million from his books and a TV series sold to 53 countries. He said: "When the Russians ordered 26 million books I thought they must have got the numbers wrong. I never set out to make a business. I only wanted to have a book published."

Cheats con millions out of insurance firms

By JOHN PULLMAN

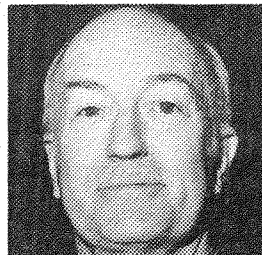

INSURANCE watchdog James Haswell yesterday attacked householders for cheating firms out of millions of pounds.

Haswell, the insurance ombudsman, accused policy-holders of treating insurance companies as "fair game."

And he said everyone with an insurance policy ended up paying for the cheats when premiums rose to meet the cost.

Boast

Haswell said it had become "socially acceptable" to steal from insurers. "People boast about conning their insurance company into paying up, but it costs us all in the end," he said.

"Too many people treat insurance firms as a limitless source of wealth."

He singled out builders and mechanics for encouraging fraudulent claims.

He said: "If it is an insurance job, they increase their bill."

"I have even heard of builders looking at a pile of rubble from a collapsed ceiling and saying, 'Let's throw a bucket of water over it and call it flood damage.'"

Haswell said insurance firms should check claims more thoroughly.

But yesterday a Legal & General spokesman admitted firms were AFRAID to launch aggressive investigations into dubious claims.

They fear they will lose customers to rival companies if they have a reputation for not paying up readily.

Pay

Haswell said holiday insurers suffered heavily from rip-offs.

He said: "I sometimes think people only take out travel insurance to pay for their holiday."

"Once people realise that we ALL pay for insurance fraud it will start to fall."

SHAME CLAIMS

HERE are three of the most common insurance rip-offs:

■ MR X conned £150 out of his insurance company by getting a false receipt from a builder for repairs to a damp patch. The work cost £50, but he claimed £200 and spent the rest on a new kitchen floor.

■ MR Y claimed £4,000 for a stolen hi-fi. His sound system was found—and it was worth just £400.

■ MR Z pretended his £300 camera had been stolen on holiday. He used the money to pay for his trip.

Steve's gripe escape!

By DICK SAXTY

A PRISONER in a police cell collapsed in agony and was rushed to hospital—then did a runner from the X-ray table.

Bobbies called an ambulance when they found Steven Ineson, 21, clutching his sides in pain.

They escorted him to Royal Lancaster Infirmary in Ineson's home town and waited outside while he went for X-rays.

But Ineson—who was remanded on burglary charges—leaped up and dashed through a rear office door. Nurses jumped back in amazement at the "miracle" cure.

Ineson was being hunted by police last night.

BLINDED BY AN EGG

Exclusive

By MARTYN SHARPE

A PRETTY teenager was blinded when laughing yobs hurled an EGG at her from their 70mph car.

The missile hit 17-year-old Kerry Moffatt in the face with such force it nearly knocked her left eye from its socket.

Doctors fought to save her sight but after removing tiny splinters of shell they said delicate membranes behind the eye were damaged beyond repair.

Kerry, from Darfield, South Yorks, was walking home with boyfriend David Jordan when the thugs struck.

She said: "An orange Ford Capri raced up the road doing at least 70mph and suddenly David was hit on the shoulder by an egg."

"We heard lads in the car laugh, then I felt a tremendous pain and I knew I'd been hit."

"It sent me dizzy but it was only when I got to hospital that I found out what they'd done."

"Doctors said the force could actually have knocked my eye straight out of its socket."

Bullet

"Now I can't see anything from it and all I can do is sit in a darkened room."

Boyfriend David, 20, a chef, said: "If I get hold of the lunatics who did this I'll tear them limb from limb."

"The egg that hit me was like a bullet."

Now police are hunting the egg-throwing maniacs who have pelted other youngsters in the area recently.

A spokesman said yesterday: "We are treating this attack very seriously."

ZULU FOUR SHOT

Two men and two women were shot in Natal, South Africa, yesterday in a clash between Zulus and anti-apartheid fighters.

Children put dad in cooler

A FORGER was caught when his children took two of his fake coins to buy ice creams.

Russian Alex Ilchenko made a pile of 20-kopek coins, worth 20p each, and passed them off in vending machines around Leningrad.

But his son and daughter tried to spend two coins which had rolled under the TV set.

The shopkeeper spotted they were fakes and Ilchenko was arrested.

Charles . . . Juventus star

Fire blow to jinxed ace John

JINXED soccer legend John Charles has been made homeless by a fire.

Charles, 57, and his wife Glenda, 42, were on holiday when the blaze swept their semi.

An electric blanket caught fire as Glenda's teenage sons Gary and Dean slept.

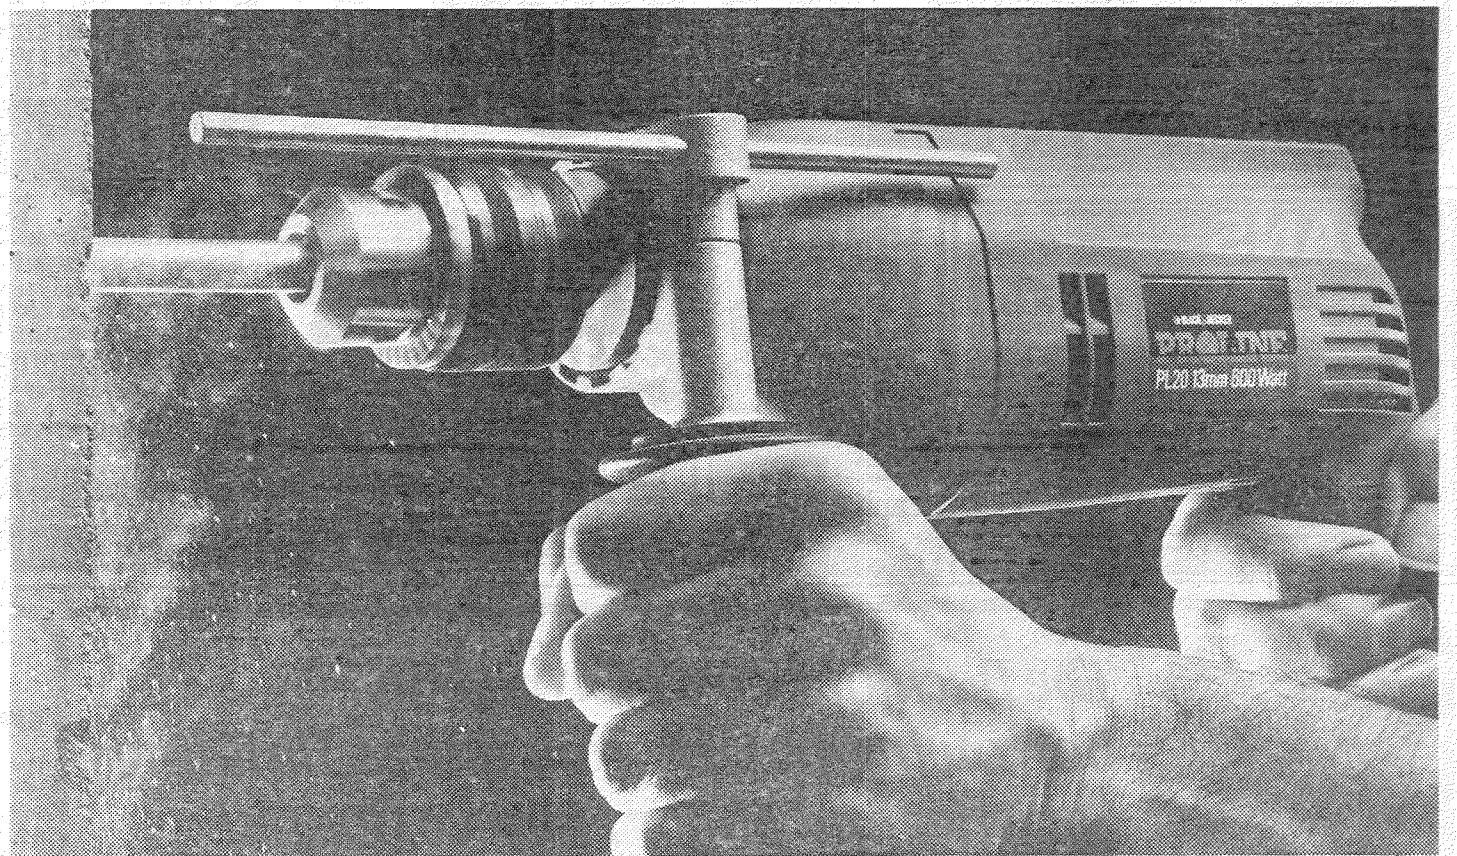

They woke and raised the alarm, but the house in Birkenshaw, near Bradford, was badly damaged.

Failures

Charles, a Leeds and Juventus star in the 50s, has been dogged by business failures since his playing career ended.

And a year ago, an unpaid rates bill nearly landed him in prison.

He was spared a 60-day sentence when Leeds chairman Leslie Silver settled the debt for him. Weeks later, divorced John married blonde Glenda Vero.

THE MOST FAMOUS AGONY AUNT IN THE WORLD

Dear Deidre

Secret haunts jealous lover

Q FOR 25 years my man has refused to marry me—and I've just found out why. We have four children but I think he knows that only three of them are his.

I thought everyone believed that he was the father of all four, but my brother-in-law said my lover knew that he was not my eldest daughter's father and apparently he is now waiting for me to tell him the truth.

Should I confront him and also let my daughter know who her father is?

I know this is all he is waiting for. He has hinted he will marry me "when the time of deceit is over." Please point me in the right direction.

DEIDRE SAYS: I am very wary of agreeing that you should tell your partner he is not your eldest daughter's father.

Home

You have had three children by him and presumably run his home for 25 years. If he weren't an obsessively jealous man, he would have married you long ago.

Maybe it has nothing to do with "deceit" and telling him about your daughter could cause a lot of bad feeling.

If it is, then confirming his suspicions could just as easily lead to him leaving you as marrying you. Jealous people are like that.

★ If you have a problem, write to Deidre Sanders, The Sun, PO Box 488, Virginia Street, London E1 9BZ. Enclose an SAE if you want a personal reply or one of my leaflets.

Jolly lunch costs Earl his licence

A POLO-playing chum of Prince Charles was nearly double the drink-drive limit as he drove home from a race meeting, a court heard yesterday.

Multi-millionaire Lord Bathurst, 61, had enjoyed a "jolly good lunch with friends".

The Earl—owner of the 15,000-acre Cirencester Park Estate in Gloucestershire—was breath-tested after complaining about traffic delays to a policeman, who smelt drink on his breath.

Bathurst... banned

Yesterday Cirencester JPs banned him for 15 months and fined him £300 after he admitted drink-driving.

After the case Bathurst said his lunch had lasted four or five hours but "certainly wasn't a beer-swilling session."

REDS KILL SIX

Six soldiers were killed when Communist rebels attacked an army post in the central Philippines yesterday.

JUST WED BUT HE'S OFF SEX

Q I HAVE been married for four months but for the past four weeks my husband has not wanted to make love to me.

I am 20 and he's 25. Before we married we had an active sex life.

I have talked to him and asked him if there is something wrong with him but he keeps putting it down to his job as a driver.

Tired

He says that he does love me but he is just too tired to do anything. Can you tell me if this is usual for newly weds?

DEIDRE SAYS: It is fairly common for couples to find that "making it legal" has an effect on their love life.

But tiredness would not stop a healthy young man from making love for a month.

Something else is definitely troubling him.

My leaflet How to Revive Sex Drive will help you work it out.

Affair with trucker has ruined my life

Q I USED our CB radio to escape boredom and ended up having an affair with a married lorry driver. Now my life is in ruins.

I left my husband and lived with my daughter until my lover and I could set up home. But he would not leave his wife and I was left feeling shattered.

Then one evening when my daughter was out her husband found me in tears. He comforted me and we made love.

I am 43. My husband is a good man but all he did was work, eat and sleep.

We married when I got pregnant at 16.

I felt I'd never seen any life and wanted to scream sometimes. That's why I started using the CB.

I knew the lorry driver was married with kids but we just clicked. Now I hate him and his wife so much I want to split them up.

DEIDRE SAYS: You had a reliable husband who left your passionate side unfulfilled.

Saving

You must take stock now. Trying to hurt your lover will only add to your bitterness.

You took a risk getting involved with a married man and it didn't pay off.

You might be better with the safe dullness of marriage. Your husband may consider saving the marriage but with a few changes so you don't feel stifled. If you need help, contact Relate.

Incest dad sickens me

Q I FEEL like I am going mad. My dad abused me from when I was about seven to when I was 12. He thinks I have forgotten and keeps coming round to visit, but I can't stand it.

I am 36 and have always wanted to tell someone about my father having sex with me. It happened each time my mum went out.

I am now married with a boy and girl of my own. I am very happy but I can't make love to my husband because all I can see is my father's face. It makes me feel really sick.

I couldn't tell my husband because he can't stand my dad—and I could never tell my mum because it would have killed her.

I want to tell Dad that if he doesn't get out of my life I will tell the police and my mum what he did to me.

DEIDRE SAYS: I am sorry you have suffered so much alone for so long. You have every right to tell your father that you have never forgotten how he abused you and don't want to see any more of him.

It is too late for legal action—unless there is a chance he could be abusing other children in the family—but it's not too late to get help to undo the damage to your emotional and sexual life.

Phone Incest Crisis Line (01-422 5100 or 01-890 4732) who can give you sympathy and understanding.

JUST FOR YOU

PERSONAL HOROSCOPES By Justin Toper

Nick King, Kensington, W. London. Gemini. June 7, 1953. LIKE so many Gemini, you live on your nerves. Sometimes vague and indecisive, at other times inspired and ingenious. In just one area—relationships—does your heart rule your head. Anyone who bothers to find out what makes you tick will discover pure gold. But you waste too much energy, emotion and talent. THE FUTURE: The month prior to one's own birthday is always difficult. You in particular have a number of awkward situations to resolve. The second half of 1989 promises to be quite special. The sun close to Jupiter on June 9 will trigger off an amazing chain of events and a new association is sure to play a vital role in your life. Important discussions are started around August 17 and 31. You and your family will benefit in a way you never dreamed possible—the outcome of which will be around November 3. Money aside, your joy this year will be more of a personal nature, and June 19 stands out by a mile.

5.00—WILY trainer Luca Cumani knows he has next month's 1,000 Guineas in his pocket! Cumani's unbeaten Enconse crashed from 10-1 to 3-1 favourite for the fillies' Classic after landing Newmarket's Nell Gwyn in stunning style yesterday. "She will improve a lot from this," grinned Cumani. "I told Ray Cochrane to get her boxed in a pocket to give her some experience." Michael Stoute's Mythaar drifted from 4-5 to 2-1 and went out like a light to finish seventh of eight. Stoute said: "She ran too free and perhaps hasn't trained on". His other hope, Musical Bliss, is now 9-2 second favourite. Brush Aside is as low as 8-1 Derby favourite after a winning debut at Newmarket. Trainer Henry Cecil said: "I like the horse a lot, but he's still a baby and making him favourite is a bit premature."

Pay The Wimbledon champ £190,000

By JAMES CONNOR
WIMBLEDON prize money shot through the £3 million mark for the first time yesterday.

That means a massive inflation-busting 15 per cent pay rise for this summer's men's champion.

Stefan Edberg will net a whopping £190,000 jackpot if he retains the title that brought him £165,000 last year.

And Steffi Graf will also collect a huge rise — from £148,500 to £171,000 — if she is crowned queen of tennis again.

Total Wimbledon prize money is more than £3million for the first time.

Even early losers will profit, with players beaten in the first round earning nearly £2,550 compared to £2,215 last summer.

Wimbledon chairman Buzzer Hadingham said: "The 1988 Championships were the most successful financially to date and we were able to provide the Lawn Tennis Association with a record £7.6million.

Major

"The players, of course, make a major contribution to that success and it is only right that they should be well rewarded for their efforts."

These latest pay rises represent an amazing leap

Prize money goes through £3m barrier

MONEY FILE

HERE are some of the other individual big-money prizes in sport...
Golf - Sun City: £555,000. Tennis - WCT Tournament of Champs (men): £275,000; Monte Carlo (men): £230,000; US Open (men): £200,000. Snooker - World Championships: £105,000, plus £100,000 for 147 and £10,500 for highest break.

...ince tennis went 'open' 21 years ago.

Rod Laver, Wimbledon champion in 1968, picked up only £2,000, while women's champion Billie Jean King earned just £750.

Total prize money then was £26,150.

At present, that makes Wimbledon the richest Grand Slam tournament, although it is likely to be overtaken when the US Open announces its new figures later this year.

Wimbledon's contributions to the pre-Championships grass court tournaments at Bristol, Birmingham and Eastbourne will also rise, from £300,000 to £400,000.

Help

Players' daily allowances have been increased from £55 to £75 to help them with their hotel and travelling expenses.

And three-row temporary stands will be added alongside three outside courts, bringing the total seating capacity to 27,000.

MANSSELL

NIGEL MANSELL... he battled through a killer sea to save his pal Peter Collins from drowning

By STAN PIECHA

TOP motor racing boss Peter Collins last night revealed: "I owe my life to Nigel Mansell."

Collins will never forget the day brave Mansell dived into a killer sea and saved him from drowning.

He recalled: "I was a goner until Nigel came to my rescue. He risked his life to save mine."

"His strength and determination plucked me from a watery grave."

Collins heads the crack Benetton Ford team, whose British driver Johnny Herbert scorched home fourth on his Formula One debut in this season's opener in Rio.

Coincidentally, the death drama happened when Collins decided to go swimming off the beach at Rio before a Brazilian Grand Prix.

The day he just missed death fall

NIGEL MANSELL has had a lot of near misses but one of his closest brushes with death was on two wheels — in his own back garden!

Mansell loves to tear around the grounds of his hill-top Isle of Man home on a powerful 350cc motorbike.

But last year his bike hit a concealed boulder and Mansell was flung to the ground.

As he lay there battered and bruised he watched in horror as the bike carried on over the cliff edge — plunging 350 feet into the sea.

Australian Collins, a strong swimmer, decided to go out to reach some big waves so he could body surf back to shore.

He made his way out to the breakers unaware that 10 people drowned along that stretch of treacherous coastline the day before.

Trouble

Collins said: "As I reached the waves a whirlpool started and I found myself caught in a rip tide. I repeatedly tried to catch a wave to carry me back in but I was going nowhere."

"I started swimming flat out to get back into shallow water and still I was making no progress."

Botham bowls in

● IAN BOTHAM yesterday grabbed his first wicket since his back operation.

● Botham bowled Robin Smith to finish with 1-36 off 20 overs of medium pace, as Worcester drew with MCC at Lord's.

● He also took two stunning catches in the slips.

SAVED MY LIFE

Nigel's bravery stopped race pal from drowning

I realised I was in serious trouble."

Collins was with the Lotus team at the time and his two drivers, Mansell and the late Elio de Angelis, were sitting on the beach.

Mansell was the first to realise Collins was in danger. In a matter of minutes he had reached struggling Collins and started to pull him in.

Collins said: "Elio also came out to help but, after a few seconds, he realised the current was too strong for him. He was in trouble and, as he let go, my heart sank."

"I honestly thought we were all going to drown. Nigel was still holding on to me tightly and although I tried to kick as much as I could to help I'd been in the water so long my arms and legs felt like lead."

One thought which flickered through Collins' mind as he floundered in the surf was what Lotus boss Colin Chapman was going to say when he heard his two drivers had drowned.

Collins added: "As Nigel held me and battled against the current, a wave broke on me and I got a mouthful of water. I was convinced I was a goner."

"I was coughing and spluttering and saying to Nigel that I couldn't go on any more when I felt the sand in my toes."

Strength

"I got a new lease of life, pushed my toes into the sand and a wave carried us in. We staggered up the beach and collapsed."

"Nigel had held on to me all the way through. It was his strength and determination which saved me."

While Collins lay on the beach exhausted, Mansell took a few deep breaths and ran back into the water to look for Elio.

Luckily, the rip tide had carried Elio into shallow water.

A doctor examined all three and found Collins and de Angelis had both strained their hearts a little.

Mansell, one of the world's strongest and fittest drivers, was given a clean bill of health. The terrifying ordeal in 1981 had not physically affected him in the slightest.

Collins said: "I will never be able to thank Nigel enough for being alive to tell the tale. It took a very brave man to do what he did."

"Not only is he a great racing driver, he's also a bloody good lifeguard."

'He is a bloody good lifeguard'

PETER COLLINS... 'I honestly thought I was going to drown. My arms and legs felt like lead.'

Jailbird Jose to be barred from Mason title tilt

By COLIN HART

GARY MASON'S European heavyweight title clash against Spaniard Jose Antonio Castro Afonso may be blocked by British boxing chiefs.

They are concerned that Afonso, nominated by the European board, appears to have had only ONE FIGHT in the last 18 MONTHS.

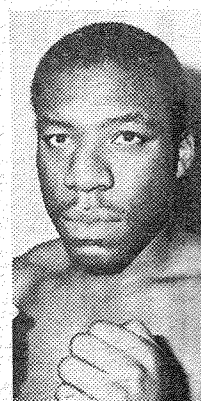

His inactivity is not surprising as I discovered he has just got out of jail after serving a seven-year sentence for theft.

Board secretary John Morris said: "I have written to the European Boxing Union telling them we are unhappy with Afonso."

"In view of some recent unsatisfactory imports we are cracking down on foreigners we don't consider good enough."

Spanish boxing agent Lorenzo Sanchez said: "If they meet, Jose will be knocked out in the first round."

Mason should really face Francesco Damiani but the Italian is expected to relinquish his crown soon to challenge for the ridiculed WBO title.

TERRY GRIFFITHS... 'It was like playing bagatelle out there'

GRIFFITHS FURY AT TABLE OF TORMENT

By ALASDAIR ROSS
TERRY GRIFFITHS slammed the playing conditions in the Embassy World Snooker Championships as 'ridiculous' after easing into the last 16 yesterday. Griffiths wrapped up a nervy 10-6 first round win over Canadian Bob Chaperon in Sheffield's Crucible before delivering an angry blast at tournament organisers. Griffiths stormed: "This is the World Championships and conditions should be absolutely spot on. They weren't and that's not good enough. "When I went out for the first session the table was freezing cold but overnight somebody switched on some heaters in the arena.

Difficult

"By the time we started the second session the table was red hot. You could have fried an egg on it and when I picked up the rest it was warm to the touch. "The top cushion on the table was also bouncing out and with all the kicks we were getting it made the game even more difficult. "During my match the conditions went from one extreme to another. It was like playing bagatelle and that's ridiculous because the practice table is perfect. Perhaps we should play the championships on there!" Terry, 7-2 up overnight, lost the day's first two frames but breaks of 81 and 47 put him 9-4 clear.

Chaperon bravely clawed back two more frames but further Griffiths breaks of 44 and 35 clinched victory.

Griffiths added: "It was hard but my play in the first session won it for me. I played as well in the first four frames as I have for some time."

Tony Meo had former champ Joe Johnson on the run after their first session, including a 101 clearance as he raced into an 8-0 lead.

Meo was always in control once he pinched the second frame 78-62.

'Thank God I don't play now... I just couldn't bear to kick a ball again'

I CAN'T believe what has happened to my club - I can't believe what they have done to my city.

On Saturday morning you could hail a cab and the driver wanted to talk about the Championship, or another Mersey Cup Final.

Now they ask if you want to go to Hillsborough to lay a wreath.

And if you haven't got the money, they'll take you - free.

I won't go. The same way I didn't go to the service they held in memory of the dead on Sunday night.

I don't think I could face it. In fact, I don't even know if I can face another football match again - certainly not this season.

Liverpool have suspended their fixtures indefinitely. To be honest, I wouldn't care if they called an end to the football season here and now - scrapped the lot.

I wouldn't miss it. And I just thank God I'm not a Liverpool player any more because I wouldn't be sure if I could bear to kick a ball again.

How must the players feel? They went to play football and saw it end with 95 dead.

What are they supposed to do the next time the boss asks them to play their hearts out?

Stunned

I travelled back to Liverpool on the executive coach after the game. Those who weren't crying sat in stunned silence and every car we passed looked the same. It was like a wake.

When we left Sheffield the death toll was said to be nine - then it jumped to 50. The figures went up mile by mile - 74, 86, 93, 94 until I began wondering 'Oh God, when will it stop.'

We pulled up at Anfield next to the team coach and the Liverpool players were there, just milling around bewildered.

And I thought - this is worse than Heysel.

Somehow Liverpool Football Club got over the deaths of those 39 fans four years ago.

Interview by MARTIN SAMUEL

But don't ask me how they are going to survive the tragedy at Hillsborough.

Bill Shankly once joked that football was more important than life and death - how do those words sound now?

That's not Shankly's fault. No-one from his era could ever have envisaged anything like this.

I love football. And I love Liverpool. But I'm not sure if I can bear to watch either again.

My wife was searched by police before she went into Hillsborough and when she left she was sobbing - that's not the game I grew up with.

As a kid, I enjoyed football in crowds of 72,000, without worrying about so much as a cut finger.

But next time I leave home for a game will I find myself watching a football match or a requiem mass?

I don't know any more and I don't want to go under those circumstances.

Trap

I don't want to have to sit in the stand, like I did on Saturday, watching people die and knowing there was nothing I could do to help them.

And I don't want to hear about charitable organisations, set up by the FA to help the bereaved 24 hours too bloody late.

If they wanted to help people they should have organised proper facilities before they let 54,000 into the ground, so that Hillsborough couldn't become a death trap.

They should have allocated the most tickets to the club with the most supporters.

I'm angry that half-cocked incompetence has left 95 people dead and near-destroyed a city.

But someone has to be accountable for what happened. Someone has to admit: 'We made a mistake - and people died because of it.'

Tears

I won't forgive them for what they have done to my club and my city.

I won't forgive them for the way they have made me feel since Saturday.

I woke up on Sunday morning, and my wife was crying again. She had been listening to a local radio phone-in and the eye-witness accounts of those in the crowd at Hillsborough.

I've shed tears and so have my friends.

We're talking about death, when we should have been talking about the Double and I'm at a loss to accept that.

I've done the garden, potted around the house in a desperate attempt to occupy myself - but I still feel distraught and physically sick.

Those feelings are meant to wear off with time...

I don't know if they ever will.

UNITED: WE'LL HELP KOP PALS

By ALAN NIXON

MANCHESTER UNITED have offered to help their Liverpool mates overcome the Hillsborough tragedy.

The United players and manager Alex Ferguson, have contacted Liverpool to offer condolences and say: "If you need help, of any kind, just pick up a phone."

Ferguson, who once traded insults in a much-publicised battle with Anfield boss Kenny Dalglish, wants to bury the hatchet as English football's two biggest clubs unite.

And his United players are all available for a quiet chat, a shoulder to lean on at a funeral or company for visits to the bereaved.

Feelings

Fergie said: "Liverpool and Manchester United have spent years fighting for the same cause - being No.1."

"But we are all football people and we now share their grief. Old Trafford has been silent since Saturday.

"If you had seen our dressing-room as the news came in you would understand the depth of our feelings."

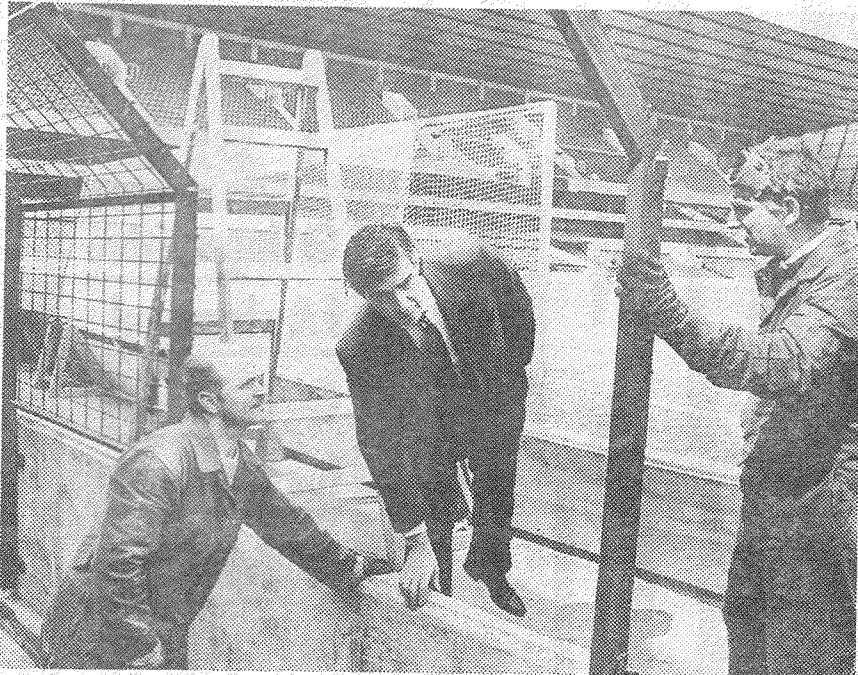

Ferguson added: "The Liverpool lads will be going through so much and we want to help. All it needs is a call."

"Whenever we are wanted we will answer. Training schedules will be organised around the arrangements."

THEY'RE DOWN! Spurs rip out fencing

By BRIAN WOOLNOUGH
SPURS pulled down the fences at White Hart Lane yesterday to give Everton fans peace of mind on Saturday.

Everton have decided they want to play again following the Hillsborough disaster and Tottenham brought forward the dismantling as a gesture to the Merseyside supporters.

The removal of the last fence — at the visiting fans' end of the ground — was not scheduled to be completed until next week.

But local police chief, Chief Supt Dick Stacey, admitted: "We thought it appropriate the fence should come down for the Everton game."

"It makes Tottenham fence-free and I am delighted. We have monthly meetings with Spurs and on Monday it was quickly decided to bring the last one down."

Spurs first erected fences in 1980 after a UEFA directive but there has been no trouble inside the stadium — though Stacey admitted: "If trouble returned we would have to reconsider."

Spikes

Club secretary Peter Barnes added: "It is up to us and the police to make sure the fans stay behind the existing perimeter wall."

Derby began an operation to make their Baseball Ground fence-free.

Managing director Stuart Webb said: "We do not want a Hillsborough here. Now it is up to the fans."

Leicester are removing spikes from the top of Filbert Street's fencing and Scottish club Hearts decided to rip down their fences.

SPARKS FLY . . . a workman cuts through the fences with an acetylene torch.

IT'LL BE MURDER

FOOTBALL would have witnessed murder at Chelsea last season had there not been fences around Stamford Bridge.

That's the sensational view of Bournemouth manager Harry Redknapp, who has no intention of ripping down his Second Division club's fences.

Redknapp was at Chelsea at the end of last season for the play-off match against Middlesbrough.

What he saw made him believe that Spurs, Derby and others who are taking down their fences are being too hasty.

Redknapp said: "For that play-off game at Chelsea I witnessed the worst scenes of hooliganism in my life."

"If there had not been fences the Chelsea fans would have charged into the visitors' enclosure and there would have been murder on the pitch, absolute carnage."

He added: "No way should we take down fences even after what happened at Hillsborough."

"The hooligans who forced us to erect barriers in the first place are not suddenly going to behave."

"They did not behave after Bradford and they won't do so now."

KENNY'S TEDDY OF TEARS

Bear is tragic symbol

A TEDDY BEAR yesterday became the personal symbol of Kenny Dalglish's grief at the Hillsborough tragedy.

The Liverpool boss arrived at Anfield with the red and white bear early in the morning to pay his private respects.

And, in the most poignant of gestures, Dalglish tied the bear to the goal posts.

Kenny's teddy was just a tiny addition to the vast number of scarves representing clubs from all over the country that have made the Kop end of the ground into a shrine to the 95 dead.

But it did more than words to represent the sorrow of Dalglish and his players.

Liverpool officials estimate a staggering quarter of a million people have already visited the Kop.

The ground will remain open for 10 hours every day until Sunday and the crowds are growing bigger by the hour.

Sorrow

Police have closed roads around Anfield to cope with the numbers of men, women and children who have made the stadium the focal point of their sorrow.

Dalglish said: "I know that none of us is sound enough at the moment to think about football and making decisions."

"I have said all along the only people who count are the families of the victims and the injured."

Among the thousands who walked around the to Liverpool, they can decide, in their own good time, what happens to the remnants of the competition."

Mostly, I want them to say, as I did on Monday, that the remaining fixtures should be scrapped and the trophy displayed on Merseyside as a memorial to those who will never see another match.

It disgusts me to think that another ball should be kicked over their dead bodies.

If they persist, if moral decency is set aside and the games are completed . . .

Then no-one should profit from the charade. Not Forest or Everton, the FA, TV or Wembley Stadium. Every last penny piece should go to the disaster fund.

next week. Our only thoughts at the moment are for the families of the victims."

Liverpool's plight has reached out all over Europe as offers of help flood in.

Bayern Munich and Celtic are both willing to play games for the relief fund.

Liverpool have already begun moves to turn the Kop into an all-seater area by asking architects to submit plans.

HILLSBOROUGH referee Ray Lewis has bravely volunteered to take charge of any re-scheduled semi-final.

An FA spokesman said yesterday: "It is normal for a referee to stay with a Cup-tie through replays. We would have understood if Mr Lewis wanted to drop out but he says he is willing to carry on."

FINAL SWITCH

a Cup Final because we believe it will be useful. But we will not be in a situation to say there will be one until next Tuesday.

"Everton are also very much involved in this. They haven't reached a decision yet either."

"If they both say no then there will be no Cup Final. So far the only committed club of the semi-finalists is Nottingham Forest."

Unity

Liverpool themselves are torn by the conflicting requests of fans, who are split 50-50 on the semi-final issue, and are anxious not to offend anybody's feelings.

That is why the the board are refusing to play any match before the May 3 clash with Everton.

Chief executive Peter Robinson said: "If everybody is mentally attuned, the Everton match would seem to be the appropriate game to play."

"It would show the sense of unity in the city and it is already scheduled to be shown live on television."

"Come what may, we would want our first game back to be on television so as many people as possible who wanted to watch it could do so."

"But we have to take into account the feelings of everybody."

"At the board meeting this morning, not one of us felt we were capable of making a decision about the Forest game. It was far too early."

Yesterday, there were heart-rending scenes as some of the families of the bereaved made their way to the Kop with their floral tributes.

Club officials asked them tactfully for their views as they attempt the almost impossible task of getting an accurate reflection of what they want the club to do.

JOHN SADLER SAYS The FA should be ashamed

THE FOOTBALL industry in England should feel ashamed this morning.

How dare they concern themselves, so soon, with details and dates of the unplayed semi and final of the FA Cup?

Their indecent haste yesterday forced Liverpool's grieving bosses to meet and discuss playing Nottingham Forest again and, if necessary, Everton at Wembley.

What a cruel, disdainful intrusion that was upon a club devastated by the wasting of 95 of their supporters.

Liverpool rightly accused the FA of being insensitive. But the insensitivity of the authorities has been their readiness to plan ANY further action in their tournament.

I've been longing for football, as a whole, to forget the Cup and concentrate their concern completely on the interests of the bereaved families and dependents.

Mourning

Even to talk of restaging the semi-final that brought carnage to the cages at Hillsborough exposes the sport as a business...

WITHOUT much of a heart. WITHOUT much of a soul. And WITHOUT a conscience.

The League have called for "business-as-usual" or as near as possible this Saturday. Surely all grounds should be empty and silent.

No-one who walked, as I did, among the victims of Britain's worst sporting disaster could contemplate the resumption of the competition.

The FA, curse them, were talking about it within 24 hours!

I want to hear them say: "Forget the Cup, let's see the dead buried first and the relatives taken care of." I want to hear them say: "We'll leave it

JOHN SMITH... 'insensitive of FA to make request so soon'

LIVERPOOL will refuse to play the FA Cup Final this season.

That emerged after the Anfield board met yesterday to discuss the FA's request to re-stage the semi-final that ended in the deaths of 95 Liverpool fans.

At that dramatic meeting, the board labelled the FA request to play the fateful semi against Nottingham Forest on May 7 as "insensitive."

And still reeling from the horror of Hillsborough, they decided that...

● The earliest date they would play ANY match is May 3 — against Mersey rivals Everton on TV.

● They would not play the FA Cup semi against Nottingham Forest four days later — as suggested by the FA — because there would be insufficient time.

By MIKE ELLIS

● They would press for the semi, should they decide to play in it, to be staged at Wembley on May 20 — FA Cup final day.

● They would push for the final itself, should they be in it, to be played at the start of next season on Charity Shield day.

Liverpool chairman John Smith said the Board would meet again next Tuesday to make a final decision on taking part in the semi-final.

Regret

Smith said: "We regret that we feel unable to make any decision as to the future of the FA Cup competition so close to the events when there are supporters lying seriously ill in hospital and funerals to be arranged."

"We consider it to be insensitive of the FA to make this request so soon, so placing us under additional pressure at a time of grief."

The FA confirmed last night that they would consider Liverpool's extraordinary plans as soon as they officially receive them next Tuesday.

FA spokesman Glen Kirton said: "There is absolutely no precedent for delaying a Cup Final. But there is nothing more that can be said until we know exactly what Liverpool expect."

"All we are aware of officially is that Liverpool have deferred any decision until next Tuesday, April 25."

"We have said and will say again that we'll listen to, discuss and respect any plans put to us by Liverpool."

And FA chief executive Graham Kelly answered Liverpool's "insensitive" charge by saying:

"I fully understand their views but we have to get on and lay plans. If the Cup is to proceed then things have to be organised now."

"We do not regret announcing our decision when we did. If there is tension between Liverpool and ourselves it was not apparent when I spoke to John Smith this morning when he read out Liverpool's statement to me."

"We were fully aware of the possibility of causing offence. We hope in the fullness of time that it is understood."

"All I wanted to do was publicise our thinking. I feel we owed it to people."

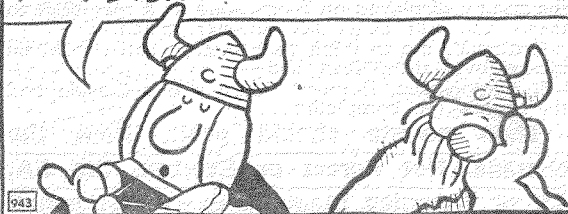

"It would have been more sensitive to delay any announcement until later this week. But every minute is vital
