

INTERNATIONAL MIGRATION LAW

Developing paradigms and Key Challenges

Edited by

Ryszard Cholewinski

International Organization for Migration

Richard Perruchoud

International Organization for Migration

Euan MacDonald

Institute for International Law and Justice, New York University

(The Hague: TMC Asser Press, 2007)

This book encapsulates the law of international migration, including emerging issues such as the protection of human rights where tension between anti-terrorism legislation and immigration measures increases. The human rights of vulnerable groups of migrants, such as migrant workers, women, victims of trafficking, and stateless persons are also addressed. Forced migration warrants a consideration of the International Migration Law relating to groups such as internally displaced persons, as well as the international community's response to secondary movements of asylum-seekers. Questions of state responsibility concerning, for example, stranded migrants and provision of consular protection and assistance to migrants are also discussed. Moreover, the expansion of regional legal frameworks concerned with migration, such as EU immigration and asylum law and policy and the growing case law on European citizenship, as well as developments in free movement regimes, are added to the analysis of the growing body of international migration law.

CONTENTS

Part I. State Sovereignty and Responsibility

1. Anti-terrorism laws and the legal framework for international migration Andrew I. Schoenholtz
2. The legal protection of stranded migrants Stefanie Grant
3. Detention of irregular migrants and asylum seekers Shyla Vohra
4. Consular protection and assistance Richard Perruchoud
5. Multiple nationality: the practice of Germany and the Netherlands Betty de Hart and Kees Groenendijk

Part II. Trade and Labour Migration

6. GATS mode 4 and the mobility of labour Michele Klein Solomon
7. Global remittances and the law: a review of regional trends and regulatory Issues Manuel Orozco
8. Migration and Free Trade Agreements: lessons from NAFTA and perspectives for CAFTA-DR Gustavo A. Flores-Macías

Part III. Forced Migration

9. Changing paradigms in refugee law Rosemary Byrne
10. Addressing secondary refugee movements Stephen H. Legomsky
11. Responding to the challenge of internal forced migration: the guiding principles on internal displacement Simon Bagshaw
12. Claims for restitution and compensation Norbert Wühler

Part IV. Human Rights of Specific Migrant Groups

13. The protection of non-citizens in International Human Rights Law David Weissbrodt
14. Migrant women Nicola Piper and Margaret Satterthwaite
15. The rights of migrant workers Ryszard Cholewinski
16. Trafficking of human beings and their human rights in the migration context Ryszard Piotrowicz
17. An evaluation of international instruments that address the condition of statelessness: a case study of Estonia and Latvia Nida Gelazis

Part V. Free Movement Regimes and Other Regional Developments

18. Free movement of EU Nationals and Union citizenship Kay Hailbronner
19. Legislative harmonization in European Immigration policy Philippe De Bruycker
20. Moving freely on the African continent: the experiences of ECOWAS and SADC with free movement protocols Jonathan Martens
21. Free movement regimes in South America: the experience of the MERCOSUR and the Andean community Ana María Santestevan
22. Free movement of persons in the Caribbean community Sophie Nonnenmacher

Part VI. Continuing and Emerging Issues of Significance

23. Co-operation mechanisms Anne-Grethe Nielsen

24. Biometrics and international migration Jillyanne Redpath

25. Enhancing cooperation on border controls in the European Union Steve Peers

Part VII. Conclusion

26. International legal norms on migration: substance without architecture T. Alexander Aleinikoff