

Halloween a Great Time to Teach Soul Winning

Halloween is a wonderfully easy time to break your own kids in on witnessing with tracts. One large family set up a rotation of members who would next answer the doorbell. That way each got a face-to-face contact with the other kid who was standing at the door. When they saw how easy it was to hand a tract to someone, they became more bold in one-to-one witnessing.

One boy in the family happened to meet another boy at school who had received a Halloween tract. The boy told him that, when he read the tract, he got saved and showed the tract to his dad. Now his dad was taking him to church.

Another family did the reverse process of making “trick or truth” bags of tracts and candy. Instead of waiting at home for the kids to come, they took the bags to the neighborhood. When they knocked on a door, instead of

Our Children Are the Next LGBT Target

The demons released by the legalization of homosexual behavior are, understandably, targeting the young. Government schools are the battleground. Manhattan Public Grade School 96 is an example. At the end of a student talent show, the male president of the Parent Association, a local drag queen performer, concluded the show in a sparkly black dress and pumps. After gyrating to “Iris Chacon mambo” music, he began a sexually-suggestive writhing on the floor exposing his G-string.

The talent show was emceed by a district superintendent. Apparently, school

Can You Trust ‘Oldest and Best’?

When you see in your New King James Bible (NKJV) or even in some notes in the KJV that Mark 16:9-20 is not in the “oldest and best manuscripts, the Sinaiticus and Vaticanus,” do you ever ask: “Who says??” Obviously, those notes were not in the original written by Mark. So who put them there and are they right?

Using modern research methods, linguist and author David W. Daniels has attempted to shed some light on that vital question. In an upcoming book on his research on the Sinaiticus, he relates a story that demonstrates the process of verifying the age of old manuscripts.

It seems that there is an old book of the Gospel of Mark that surfaced in the early 1900s. For want of a better name it is called Codex 2427 by paleographers (the scholars who claim expertise in dating old books and manuscripts.)

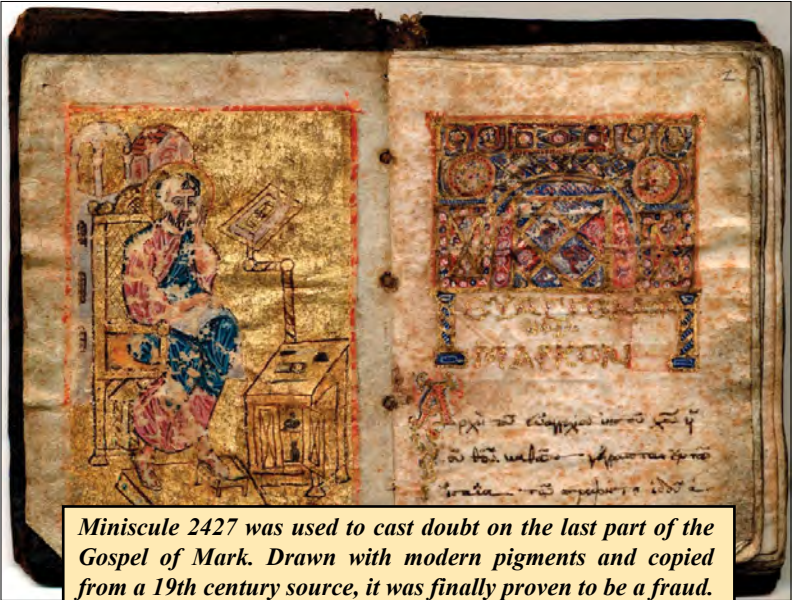

The history of 2427 was obscure but after “careful” examination, it was declared quite old and authentic — maybe more than 500 years— and put in the top category of Bible source manuscripts. It was presented as possibly closer to the original than anything else available. This reputation got it included as evidence in scholarly journals and text books.

Though wrinkled with age, it had little, painted illustrations. These piqued the interest of some other scientists who specialized in scientifically dating original art. They subjected the pigments of the ink to scientific analysis and discovered that the artist had used Prussian blue which was not invented until 1704. Further analysis discovered other pigments not known until the late 1800s.

Next, a search was made to find which document it had been copied from. This kind of analysis involves identifying missing words, lines or other copying mistakes. In 2005 the entire copy of 2427 was posted on line and noticed by researcher Stephen Carlson. He found three verses: Mark 6:2; 8:11; and 14:14 where whole lines of text were missing. From the length of the lines, Carlson suspected that 2427 had been copied from a recent book instead of from the supposedly older Vaticanus, which was written

See ‘Oldest and Best’... p. 8

Miniscule 2427 was used to cast doubt on the last part of the Gospel of Mark. Drawn with modern pigments and copied from a 19th century source, it was finally proven to be a fraud.

Are You a Hater?

One of the growing tools in Satan's kit is labeling anybody who stands for righteousness or religious freedom as a "hater." Years ago, when Chick Publications first began to point out the pope's unbiblical doctrines, Roman priests visited many local Bible bookstores. If they found Chick tracts and comics, they would demand that the owners immediately remove the "divisive hate literature."

Chick countered that it was not "hateful" to warn precious Roman Catholics that a wafer god and the Virgin Mary goddess could not guarantee eternity in heaven.

Today, Chick is not alone. The Devil has kicked up a storm of false accusations that threatens many efforts to stand for Truth. One organization originally established to counter racial discrimination has morphed into a self styled authority on "hate groups."

The Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) maintains an interactive US "hate map" showing the location and details about hundreds of organizations it considers purveyors of "hate." Listed are obvious groups such as skinheads and anti-Semites. But to show how far the SPLC has become a tool of the enemy, Chick Publications also has its own dot on the map at Ontario, California. It is

The 'New Rome' is Still the Old Rome

Seemingly unrelated incidents continue to pop up testifying to the fact that Rome never fundamentally changes. Where they dominate the politics, persecution of believers emerges, especially if in some backwater area away from likely publicity. News continues to slip out of the Chiapas area of Mexico where Protestants are denied water and electricity for refusing to support a local Roman Catholic Festival. Converts were especially targeted with harassment and broken windows.

Another news item exposes Rome's strange wafer worship.

With the discovery of celiac disease, an immune disorder triggered by eating wheat gluten, the question rose about the recipe for the Catholic Eucharist. Since

Children "adore" the sun-round wafer god that they are told is the "real presence" of the "body, blood, soul and divinity of Jesus."*
 *See Catechism of the Catholic Church, 1374.

the wafer becomes the actual body and blood of Jesus when the priest "consecrates" it, Vatican rules specify only wheat flour. Since the worship of this wafer god is so central to Catholic ritual, changing the recipe became a big deal. A settlement was finally reached using wheat flower which had most of the gluten removed but still contained at least 20 parts per million of gluten.

officials have succeeded in stonewalling attempts by infuriated parents and curious reporters to investigate the incident.

OneNewsNow quoted cultural analyst Janice Crouse who pointed out: “The LGBT activists have gone about as far as they can go in terms of indoctrinating the public, and so now they’re turning to our children.”

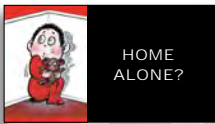

An Agenda at the Cost of Innocence

The homosexual activists have succeeded in establishing same-sex marriage as normal in most of the Western World. They are moving on to championing the “transsexual,” someone who believes that they were born with the wrong body parts.

Using the sexual immaturity of children, they are pushing the “born that way” theory showcasing preteen youngsters who show discomfort with their birth sex. They conveniently ignore scientific studies demonstrating that most children who seemed confused, normally grow out of it come puberty.

Parents are being duped into allowing gender-altering hormones and even sex-change surgery. Schools such as the one cited above are the arena. The Minnesota Department of Education provides a “toolkit” advising teachers “how to implement gender identity instruction into the classroom.”

This “toolkit” instructs teachers to stop using gender language such as “boys” and “girls.” Instead, gender-neutral names such as “scholars” and “students” were to be used. Pronouns such as “him,” and “her,” are to be avoided, and whenever other students use them, they are to be reprimanded. These rules are supposed to apply all the way down to kindergarten.

Students are free to choose, based only on their personal feelings, which gender they prefer, the name they wish to be called, and which bathroom or changing room they want to use.

Illinois is joining this attack on children through new rules for foster parents and child welfare workers. These workers must “support and respect” the children under their care who may be “exploring” gender identity or sexual orientation. They are forbidden to “impose personal, organizational or religious beliefs on LGBTQ children.”

The Family Research Council sums it up: “If you can’t celebrate the gender confusion of a struggling child, you’re unfit to care-give in the state of Illinois.”

Validation at the Cost of Freedom

This whole drive to validate transgenders takes bizarre turns. In California, a new bill being considered would provide jail time and fines for any employee of a long-time-care facility who uses the wrong pronoun for a person who has chosen a different gender. This follows a recent state regulation forcing businesses to allow transgenders to use any public restroom or changing room of their choice.

Canada has already imposed a number of similar laws. Canada also has the distinction of issuing the first birth certificate without an assigned gender.

Sports teams are experiencing frustration when very robust male-bodied athletes show up against normally female teams. One lady wrestler suffered a few broken bones after being overpowered

Adopted* Tract + the Lord = a Baby's Life Saved

This tract was at the right place at the right time, thanks to someone who cared enough to give it out:

"I just had to let you know that the Lord used your Adopted tract today to encourage a young woman to change her mind about ending the life of her baby. I live on Long Island, New York and was standing outside the Planned Parenthood in Smithtown this morning. A group of us were on the sidewalk holding signs exhorting those who were driving in to choose life for their babies.

"Most people have their windows rolled up and pull in quickly so we don't have an opportunity to give a tract or information from a pregnancy center that can help them. (And we can't enter the property and follow them into the lot). But one car with a young man and woman pulled in more slowly and had the windows down. I was able to hand the woman the pregnancy center's flyer plus your tract.

"I pleaded with her to save her baby and told her that if she couldn't afford to keep it that there were loving couples ready to adopt. Also, how much God loved both her and her baby and wanted to adopt them both into His family. I said, "Please, before you go inside, won't you read this tract after you park, and pray to God, asking Him what He would have you do?" She said she would and they continued down the driveway.

"About 20 minutes later they came back. She told us she had decided to keep her baby. Praise God!! I truly believe He used the Adopted tract to touch her heart. I encouraged them both to receive Jesus as Lord and Savior and told her that God was so pleased with her today for this joyous decision.

"Thank you for the wonderful work that you at Chick are doing for God's kingdom, and for the lives of these little ones."

In Christ's love,
Kathy B., New York

I was sitting at the coffee counter at the Petro truck stop near my home. I always take a handful of Gospel tracts with me when I go in there and don't plan on leaving until they are all gone. A truck driver was sitting at a nearby booth, wearing a Marine Corps cap. I had been in the Marines also so it was a good point to start a conversation that I planned on leading to my conversion testimony. He took a tract and read it.

When he got to the sinners prayer, he sincerely prayed it. Praise the Lord that this precious soul found the Saviour, who did ALL the work for him! I then gave him a King James New Testament and some material, "The Next Step" book. Thanks for your prayers.

listed in a category of “general hate.” Fortunately, their extremism has landed the SPLC in court over their inclusion of other widely known, highly respected organizations.

Unfortunately, when a deranged man stormed into the offices of Family Research Council with a gun, only to be stopped by a security guard, his motivation was traced back to FRC’s listing on SPLC’s map.

For over 200 years, the freedom of speech and freedom of religion guaranteed by the US constitution was respected. Today, that security is being eroded by godless leaders of organizations such as the SPLC and in public and government schools.

Facebook is currently being pressured to censor some posts. They are struggling to determine whose criteria to use. In a world with no moral standards it becomes a shouting match. As more and more sins become legal and accepted, God’s Word will be painted as “hate literature.”

Many now believe that those freedoms are doomed. But that doesn’t cancel the Great Commission. Jesus came into a world far more hostile than we live in. Yet he never hesitated offering eternal life to anyone who would listen—and some who wouldn’t. Should we do any less?

If we give just three tracts out a day, in a year over 1000 people will have been exposed to the good news. Some will scream, “hate literature,” but they will be without excuse on judgement day if they ignore it.

Following his theory, he searched a number of libraries containing manuscripts of Mark. Finally he found a match in a translation of a copy of the Vaticanus by Philipp Buttmann in 1860. The line length matched the missing words from 2427. In addition, Buttmann had taken some liberty in his translation making some “personal choices” in his copy. These also showed up in 2427 confirming that Carlson had found the source document for 2427.

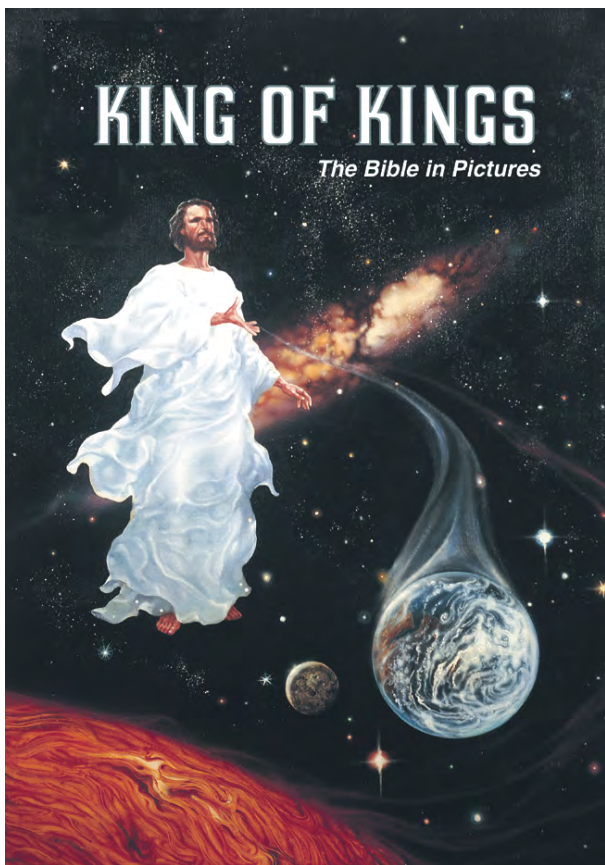

So, 2427 was not an early 14th century “Category 1” manuscript, but the product of some enterprising forger late in the 19th century. Yet, the best of the elite, modern “text scholars” had bought into the fake and included it in official journals and text books. Some publishers have, to date, neglected to remove the reference.

Daniels uses this story to illustrate the detective work necessary to validate “oldest and best” manuscripts.

Oddly enough, neither Vaticanus nor Sinaiticus have been subjected to these rigorous tests. In fact, Daniels discovered in his research that someone was poised to do exactly these kinds of tests on the Sinaiticus in April, 2015, but was mysteriously pulled off the project and reassigned to something else. There are no records of any further attempts, adding to Daniels’ conviction that text scholar Constantin Tischendorf’s claim that the Sinaiticus is “oldest” is highly suspect.

You can see why Daniels cautions Bible readers to take the notes in their Bibles with a grain of salt. They are not part of the preserved scripture, but the flawed opinions of uninspired men.

How glad that we have a whole, preserved Bible in the KJV, but we must be careful to put our faith in nothing but the Bible. When you distribute Chick tracts, you can be confident that you are delivering powerful scriptures from the Bible preserved by Christ’s promise in Matt. 24: 35.

Honduras - Missionary Daniel LaVita writes: "Last week a man that I had given tracts to 3 weeks ago came to talk with me as I was having a Bible study downtown. He was not interested the first time but recently his mother died and got him thinking about eternity.

Thanks to God, he received the Lord after realizing that he would be burning in hell while his saved mother would be in glory with Jesus. His name is Troy. Without the tracts, maybe the door would not have been open."

Kenya - Joetta Smith in Kenya writes: "I am just SO excited! I just received a call from a pastor who comes for tracts; he is about an hour and a half from us. He called to tell me that because of the tracts, people are coming back to the Lord en masse!

Pastor in Kenya with a precious box of tracts to take back for his church to distribute.

He told me many have been on drugs and alcohol and have turned their lives over to God after reading the tracts and in August he asks for me and our team to come and hold a meeting for the new believers."

Mexico - Missionary Timmy Oakes writes: "Yesterday, I was at the bus stop and was passing out tracts. I gave one to a young lady as she passed by. When she realized what it was she came back and wanted to talk. She asked if witches were real. I told her they were, but no power on earth is greater than Jesus Christ. She began to cry like a baby. She told me that her children were being tormented and she wanted to pray right then and there."

Philippines - Pastor Greg, working with Donnie Whitlock of Mass Media Outreach Ministries writes: "We've distributed thousands of gospel Chick tracts to the people who we've met. Thankful for the youth in the church who are willing to join this outreach ministry reaching thousands.

"We are so thrilled that many people are coming to know the Lord through these efforts." Pastor Agpoon reports that "over 400 had come to know the Lord in public schools, prisons and government ministries, mainly because of the tract distribution."

Current projects:

1. Just completing the printing of 350,000 tracts for Missionary Kathy Smith, working with the Independent Church of India. The last 45,000 are being delivered now.
 2. Requests for nearly 300,000 tracts have been flooding in from missionaries in the Philippines. Right now, this is probably the most wide-open door on earth!
 3. Workers in China have requested 110,000 tracts. Thanks to Chick donors we're able to say YES!
 4. Zambia - two shipments totaling 48,000 tracts are on the way to missionaries there.
 5. In addition to these, there are more projects going on in India, Liberia, Romania, Mexico, Japan, Dominican Republic, Canada, Brazil, Guyana and others.
- The Chick Mission Fund has already shipped more than 18 million Chick tracts worldwide.v

Chick Tracts Work —Where Religion Doesn't

Mexico - Missionary Mike Wallace writes: "I continue to be amazed at how effective Chick tracts are here. Most Mexicans have had their fill of religion and realize that there is no change in their lives. I believe they often feel hopeless — until they finally are confronted with the truth, which they are finding in the gospel through Chick tracts. My experience is when they begin reading Chick tracts here, they become mesmerized and they flip through the pages.

After passing out tracts for several hours one day, as I returned home, there was construction on the main road on which I was traveling. As the traffic moved slowly, I glanced out the passenger window to see why a man was standing so close to the road and traffic. I barely missed him as did the other cars passing by. And what could have been distracting him so much? I snapped a picture to show you —it was one of the Chick tracts you sent us.

Later that week, we took a lady in our church to the hospital. As we sat in the waiting room, we passed out Chick tracts. A boy sitting next to my wife was very glad to receive a tract. We had to leave a few minutes later but his eyes were still glued to the pages when we left. The blessing is that not only do people just read the tracts but some get saved after reading them.

Thank you for supplying us with such powerful "ammunition" on the front lines of the battle field (mission field). I know the Lord will reward you and those who give to help missionaries with tracts, for all of eternity."

'The Best Tracts That We Get!'

Hispaniola - Missionary Wesley Lane writes that the Chick tracts you provided for him "are the best tracts that we get and use, without a doubt. And they do get read —more than once. One way that we use them is during a church service we will give each adult present one Chick Tract (we let them select between two or three).

"We tell them they have to think of a specific person, think of their name and their face. It may be a family member or a neighbor or someone else, but they have to have a specific name of the person they are going to give the tract to before they take the tract.

"Then we explain how to use the tract as a soul winning tool, especially explaining the last page and how to use it to lead someone to pray to accept Christ as Savior. When they come to the next service, we asked how many have given away their tract and the ones that have can take some more.

"Another thing we do is give each child in the children's program a tract to take home to their family. Of course, we use them on visitation too and they are very popular, a very good door opener. Right now I am supplying tracts to four different congregations, two Dominican and two Haitian in three different cities."

Readers' Comments:

- Daniels will prod you, shock you, and inspire you to faith.
- When you see some of the things that modern Bible publishers have left out of their Bibles, it is just jaw-dropping! How can they do that?
- Don't start reading it until you have some time. It will disrupt your schedule.
- Daniels shows that Bible translators often didn't believe the scriptures themselves!
- After delivering the bombshell of how Bible translators removed Jesus' teaching about hell, Daniels observes in his entertaining way, "there is something about hell that makes these people really nervous!" He certainly appears to be right.

asking for treats, they would say, “trick or truth,” and hand the homeowner a bag containing the tracts and candy. The surprised adults would take the bag with a chuckle. “It was great fun and a terrific opportunity for our six children to be involved in sharing the gospel,” the parent said.

So many churches are no longer training people in witnessing. We have to find every way possible to introduce the next generation to the joys of soul winning. Younger children are more bold and free from self consciousness, so we need to get them started early in sharing the gospel. When they are older, they will remember how easy it was with good gospel tracts.

New Rome...

From p. 4

Many “Evangelicals” have swallowed the deception that Roman Catholicism is “just another denomination with a slightly different worship style.” But when you probe to the core of that worship style you find a baptized pagan wafer god mysteriously called the “Eucharist.” With all the warm, fuzzy ecumenism, this practice of bowing to a sun-round wafer is far more reminiscent of the worship of Ra, the Egyptian sun god than anything resembling the Biblical concept of worship in “spirit and truth.”

But the power of the bondage of this ritual is well illustrated in the next story. In Canada, the Ottawa Archbishop is threatening to withhold the sacraments from Roman Catholics who participate or support euthanasia. In this case it is the Last Rites and a Catholic funeral that is in question if the person chooses assisted suicide. Of course, the eating of the wafer god is central to both of these “sacraments.”

This is no idle threat. All the rituals from infant baptism to last rites are designed to make the Roman Church the only source of grace and eternal life. Thus the threat to withhold “sacraments” presumes that the priest has the power of heaven or hell.

Several times in history, kings have been brought to their knees before the pope because they believed that he had such power. This counterfeit “church” preaches a false gospel of works-based salvation, substitutes ritual for righteousness, cancelling out the notion of the indwelling of the Spirit and friendship with Jesus.

Few tools are available today for soul winners to bring biblical truth to the precious Roman Catholics caught in this web of counterfeit Christianity. Years ago, God challenged Jack Chick to provide witnessing tools that expose this Great Whore described in Revelation 17 and 18. Over the years, Chick Publications has consistently exposed this prostitute church, both in gospel tract and paperback form. Go to www.chick.com and click on Catholicism on the side bar for a complete line of tracts and other literature.

LGBT Target...

by a male-musclled opponent. Track and field competitions are also becoming unbalanced by transgenders.

Part of the drive is to undermine parental rights. That will be necessary for a one-world government.

As believers we must stand for the biblical pattern for the family. Saturating your neighborhood with no-nonsense gospel tracts can go a long way toward turning people back to the Bible.

Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Parents are subjecting their children to irreversible body mutilation, because their teachers tell them they may not be the gender their body says they are. Celebrities are parading their children around dressed as the opposite gender. And the sheep are listening.

A decade ago, Jack and I prepared a book called Hot Topics. In chapter one, I quoted the chant from the 1993 Washington March for Gay Pride: "We're here! We're queer! And we're coming after your children!"

They weren't kidding. Research for the book turned up a database of an organization of pedophiles, but a decade ago I couldn't print 1/10 of what I found. It was too shocking! So, I scaled down the information. But people still didn't do anything about the information.*

Now it's happened with amazing speed. What was unthinkable 10 years ago is commonplace today. And still almost nothing is being done to stop it.

Take a look around, Brothers and Sisters. Movements are underway to take your children for the LGBTQ etc. cause. One is to lower, then remove the "age of consent," so pedophiles can do horrible things to all ages, including babies, without fear of prison. It's no joke! NAMBLA (the North American Man Boy Love Association) has admitted that is their purpose from the beginning.

They want children to feel "liberated," so they may have their way with them. It is almost impossible to protect children's innocence. So, please teach them the truth. Understand that public schools and LGBT groups are fighting to make biblical sexuality against the law, and insist on teaching the most depraved things to these children, starting even in preschool. There are places where it's already happening.

Don't be fooled! As I wrote in Hot Topics: "Remember: gays don't reproduce; they must recruit!" Let's get the gospel to our kids. They need to know the truth, before they, too, are recruited.

Including gospel tracts with candy in Halloween bags is a prime way to reach the most kids (and their parents) at once. They are growing up in a world that is determined to deceive them and then abuse them. They need Jesus. Remember: if we don't tell them the gospel, who will?

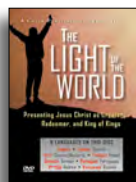

In Christ Jesus, and for His service,

David Daniels
