

Editorial 4
Newsbites 6

> OUR MEDIA

Cooking up newsworthy comedy 5

By Alex Lee
When switching from TV news to satire, reporting experience comes in handy

In with the new 9

By Amanda Meade
Julian Disney on the Press Council's revised digital-era principles

Death of the scoop 10

By Conal Hanna
What's an "exclusive" worth in the dog-eat-dog online space?

Bush bashing and city slicking 21

By Matthew Cawood
Media has a role to play in bridging the divide between agriculture and the cities

Reporting on the death of a child - a mother's perspective 23

By Michelle McLaughlin
Thoughts on covering trauma and grief

New NZ centre under investigation 25

By Dr James Hollings
Investigative reporters are banding together in New Zealand

Pip pip, tally ho! 26

By Kim Griggs
Reflecting on Geoff Robinson's distinguished career at Radio New Zealand

Living in the golden glow 27

By Joanne McCarthy
The 2013 Gold Walkley winner knew she couldn't walk away, even though it meant taking on the Catholic Church

Doing it tough but fair 49

By John Coleman
Remembering some legendary newspaper editors

> CARTOONING FOCUS

Where journalism is really jumping 11

By Erin Polgreen
Symbolia's illustrated journalism has discovered a wealth of opportunity in collaboration

A very specific organism 12

By Eric Lobbecke
Digital publishing and social media have transformed opinion page illustration

The neatest of tweets 13

By John Shakespeare
Feedback from Twitter fans brings political animals to life

This loaf of bread represents a loaf of bread 14

By Sam Wallman
A two-page comic exploring the symbols and shorthand of cartooning

Meet the cartooning crowd 16

Nine cartoonists, five questions, countless gags, endless inspiration

Time to end the comic silence 20

By Lindsay Foyle
It's no coincidence newspaper circulations drop as comics disappear

> OUR NEW STARS

Walkley Young Australian Journalist of the Year Awards 32

Walkley Grants for Innovation in Journalism 37

> FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE

Opening the doors to West Papua 38

By Michael Bachelard
The Indonesian government may finally be easing restrictions on reporting in West Papua

Unjust justice in Cairo 39

By Ruth Pollard
Peter Greste and his colleagues are the victims of the bitter falling out between Egypt and Qatar

Two sides to the story 41

By Meena Menon
An Indian journalist bids a bittersweet farewell to her time as a correspondent in Islamabad

The challenges of a female reporter in Pakistan 42

By Nadia Saboohi
Suicide blasts and institutional sexism; when daily life is a battlefield

> PHOTOGRAPHY

A lens on the world 44

By Daniel Berahulak
An Australian photographer captures poignant, iconic images far from home

> PAYING TRIBUTE

Guy Hebblewhite 46

By Phillip Mangelsdorf

Peter Jeppesen 46

By Bruce Phillips

Harry Potter 47

By Adam Walters

Ian Ross 48

By Steve Liebmann

> BOOKS & REVIEWS

Surveillance - the new terrorism... 50

By Christopher Warren
Edward Snowden, the man and his legacy, explored in two new books

Premiers on parade 51

By Peter Kennedy
Tales From Boomtown highlights characters from WA's political history

The complex notion of news in the Pacific 52

By Brent Edwards
David Robie's new book is part autobiography, part history and part journalism treatise

Bridget Jones, Karachi style 53

By Alan Kennedy
Chick lit and realpolitik meet in a Pakistani reporter's novel

> TEN THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW ...

... to understand your Asian mother 54

By Benjamin Law and Michelle Law
A rather politically incorrect interpretation guide

> 59TH WALKLEY AWARDS

A note from the Chair 29

By Quentin Dempster

2014 Walkley categories explained 30

> ON THE COVER

Cathy Wilcox, 2013 Walkley winner for best cartoon, unpacks the cartoonist's tools of the trade in a cheeky look behind the artist's process.