Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review (UPR), established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 of 18 June 2007, held its twenty-third session from 2 to 13 November 2015. The review of Australia was held at the 12th meeting on 9 November 2015. The delegation of Australia was headed by First Assistant Secretary, International Law and Human Rights Division, Attorney-General's Department, Mr John REID. At its 17th meeting held on 12 November 2015, the Working Group adopted the report on Australia.
2. On 13 January 2015, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Australia: Germany, Japan, Namibia.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Australia:
 - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/23/AUS/1);
 - (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/23/AUS/2);
 - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/23/AUS/3).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Czech Republic, Liechtenstein, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and United States of America was transmitted to Australia through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation expressed Australia's support for the Universal Periodic Review and noted Australia's long tradition of robust commitment to supporting and promoting human rights internationally. In line with this tradition, Australia is seeking a seat on the Human Rights Council from 2018-2020 to strengthen its global leadership on human rights.
6. Australia thanked its National Human Rights Institution, the Australian Human Rights Commission, and civil society organizations for their involvement in the Universal Periodic Review process, and reaffirmed its commitment to engage in a wide-ranging and balanced human rights debate in Australia.
7. As part of Australia's positive engagement with the Universal Periodic Review, the delegation announced nine voluntary commitments. These commitments are outlined in further detail in Section III below.
8. Two members of the Australian Federal Parliament were part of the delegation, the Hon Philip Ruddock MP and Senator Anne McEwen, the Chair and Deputy Chair respectively of the Human Rights Subcommittee of the Australian Parliament's Joint Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade. Mr Ruddock is also the Chair of the Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights.

9. Mr Ruddock explained the role of the Joint Committee in promoting human rights domestically, through the requirement for laws to be accompanied by a Statement of Compatibility with human rights.

10. Mr Ruddock and Senator McEwen also discussed two current Subcommittee inquiries, on Australia's advocacy for the abolition of the death penalty, and into challenges facing women and girls of the Indian Ocean – Asia Pacific region. The former inquiry builds on Australia's longstanding position as an advocate for global abolition of the death penalty, exploring options to enhance this advocacy. The latter inquiry is investigating barriers and impediments to enhancing the human rights of women and girls, especially the impact of family and sexual violence, women's leadership and economic opportunities.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

11. During the interactive dialogue, 104 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

45. Mozambique noted the National Disability Strategy and Insurance Scheme which were in line with human rights conventions.
46. The Australian delegation responded to recommendations regarding the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture. The delegation noted that Australia is actively considering the ratification of OPCAT and its implementation in a federal system.
47. In addressing observations and recommendations relating to immigration, the delegation explained Australia is committed to ensuring its position as one of the top three UNHCR referred resettlement countries continues. Australia's strong border protection mechanisms have been successful in damaging the people smuggling trade, and saving lives at sea.
48. Regarding regional processing arrangements, the delegation explained that the Australian Government respects the jurisdiction of both Nauru and Papua New Guinea as sovereign countries and noted that both countries have agreed to treat transferees with dignity and respect and ensure that relevant human rights standards are met, as well as the principle of non-refoulement.
49. The delegation explained that mandatory immigration detention is not exercised arbitrarily. The delegation noted that there has been significant headway in reducing the numbers of children held in detention in Australia. It is the Australian Government's position that children are not held in immigration detention centres but are accommodated in alternative places of detention. The delegation explained that Australia's immigration detention network is under independent scrutiny by a range of bodies, including the Commonwealth Ombudsman and the Australian Human Rights Commission.
50. Turning to human trafficking, the delegation noted Australia's National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2015-2019. Australia reaffirmed its commitment to efforts which strengthen regional frameworks on irregular migration and human trafficking, including the Bali Process on People Smuggling, Trafficking in Persons and Related Transnational Crime.

83. Timor-Leste appreciated progress on the establishment of a Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights and on recommendations to refer explicitly to indigenous people in the Constitution.
84. Trinidad and Tobago noted the full-time Human Rights Commissioner and Australia's commitment to closing gaps in health, education and employment opportunities for Indigenous Australians.
85. Tunisia encouraged ratification of ICPED and OP-CAT, reform of the juvenile justice system, review of Australia's migration policy and strengthened efforts towards combatting and preventing racist violence.
86. The delegation noted Australia's ongoing implementation of the National Disability Strategy, and the creation of the National Disability Insurance Scheme, which is designed to provide lifetime support to people with significant and permanent disability and their carers.
87. Australia assured delegates of its support of the right of people with disability to exercise their legal capacity and recognized that in some cases, people with disability may require support in exercising that capacity. Regarding forced sterilisation, the delegation noted that a sterilisation procedure may only occur with the person's consent, or if the person is unable to give valid consent, with authorisation from a court or guardianship tribunal.
88. The Australian delegation responded to recommendations and concerns regarding violence against women, explaining Australia's National Action Plan to Reduce Violence against Women and their Children 2010-2022. The delegation gave an overview of the newly announced Women's Safety Package and national campaign to accelerate the efforts to reduce violence against women.
89. The delegation explained Australia's efforts to promote women's workforce participation and economic security, providing an overview of investments to improve the accessibility and affordability of childcare, support women in small business and support unemployed women to become job ready.
90. Responding to recommendations on Indigenous Australians, the delegation noted Australia's commitment to closing the gap between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Australians. The Government is committed to building a partnership with Indigenous Australians and consulting on decisions that affect them. A new Regional Network has been established that allows the Prime Minister's Department's officials to work directly with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities on the ground.

91. The delegation discussed the Indigenous Advancement Strategy and initiatives to improve outcomes in education, health, employment and to provide economic development opportunities for Indigenous Australians. The delegation outlined initial outcomes from activities to improve school attendance rates in remote areas. The Australian Government is funding initiatives to directly tackle Indigenous incarceration rates and provides substantial funding to Indigenous interpreting services, to combat language barriers faced in relation to law and justice matters.

92. Turkey applauded the commitment to constitutional recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples, encouraged efforts to eradicate violence against women and remained concerned about rights of migrants.

95. United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland encouraged the Government to work with Indigenous communities through the Indigenous Advancement Strategy and welcomed the commitment to implement the Moss Review's recommendations.

96. United States of America encouraged Australia to ensure humane treatment and respect for asylum seekers and noted the concerns of some remote Western Australian indigenous peoples about Government support for their communities. It welcomed the package addressing domestic violence.

97. Uruguay encouraged Australia to continue its good work on reducing violence against women and children and adopting policies including for women's economic empowerment and leadership and hoped that CAT would soon be ratified.

98. Uzbekistan noted with satisfaction the intention to hold a referendum, the reform of criminal legislation, and adoption of national action plans.

99. Viet Nam appreciated recent human rights achievements and commended Australia's bilateral dialogue and provision of technical assistance.

100. Afghanistan welcomed efforts undertaken by Australia to empower persons with disabilities through the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

101. Albania commended progress on freedoms of speech and religion, the appointment of a full-time Human Rights Commissioner and measures towards multiculturalism. It encouraged further improvement of indigenous people's human rights.

102. Algeria noted that, despite measures taken, the gender pay gap persisted and encouraged the stepping up of efforts to protect the rights of migrants and asylum seekers.

103. Angola noted Australia's solid human rights protection system in a multicultural country where each state and territory had its own body responsible for combating discrimination and promoting equal opportunity.

104. Argentina commended the launching of the Second National Plan to Reduce Violence Against Women and their Children and noted efforts to support different groups of the population.

105. Armenia underscored Australia's engagement in the prevention of crimes against humanity. It welcomed adoption of the National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery.
106. Azerbaijan welcomed the National Human Rights Action Plan and establishment of a public online database of recommendations from UN human rights mechanisms.
107. Bahrain was concerned with reports on the conditions of refugees and asylum seekers and denial of their rights and the lack of efforts to respect the rights of indigenous peoples and disabled persons.
108. Bangladesh commended the Family Tax Benefit and Australia's engagement in the Nansen Initiative. It was concerned at reports of discrimination and racism.
109. Belarus expressed concern over the unsatisfactory situation of women in political and professional life, domestic violence, and non-compliance of the migration policy with international standards.
110. Benin appreciated the priority given to economic emancipation of all Australians and encouraged continued implementation of the National Framework for Protecting Australia's Children.
111. Bhutan recognized Australia's contribution to supporting human rights internationally and commended its strong national framework for protecting children.
112. The Plurinational State of Bolivia recognized progress made since Australia's first review.
113. Botswana commended measures to address trafficking and family violence and noted reports of mandatory sentencing disproportionately affecting indigenous peoples.
114. Brazil noted the deteriorating treatment of refugees and asylum seekers and encouraged stepped up efforts to eradicate poverty.
115. Canada welcomed the National Disability Strategy and encouraged continued governmental work to reduce indigenous imprisonment.
116. Chad appreciated Australian advances in civil and political as much as economic, social and cultural rights, particularly for gender equality, rights of persons with disabilities and children.
117. Chile valued the studies undertaken to ratify international human rights instruments and progress in the promotion and protection of the rights of indigenous peoples.
118. China welcomed increased efforts in the field of indigenous affairs, gender equality, protection of persons with disabilities and the commitment to further assist refugees and asylum seekers.
119. Colombia noted the adoption of national policies to combat racism and trafficking and the National Disability Insurance Scheme.
120. Costa Rica recognized progress on women's rights and was concerned about allegations concerning the situation of older persons in residential homes, the indefinite detention of persons with disabilities and discrimination against indigenous peoples.
121. Croatia noted many positive actions and asked about steps to increase the minimum age of criminal responsibility and cease the detention of children in adult facilities.
122. Cuba noted the high level of indigenous in prison, the excessive use of force by police and that the concerns expressed by UNHCR about the response of Australia to the arrival of migrants by sea should be fully taken into account.

123. Czech Republic appreciated the response to some of its advance questions.
124. Democratic People's Republic of Korea remained concerned at the reported maltreatment of refugees and asylum seekers and violations of the rights of Australia's indigenous people.
125. Denmark noted that Australia had still to ratify OP-CAT.
126. Ecuador welcomed Parliament's proposed constitutional reform to include a reference to Australia's indigenous peoples and the 2010 legal amendments on prohibiting torture and the death penalty.
127. The Australian delegation addressed the rights of older persons, noting Australia's strong legal protections for the rights of older people and the prohibition of age discrimination in areas of public life, including accommodation, education, employment, and the provision of goods and services.
128. The delegation discussed Australia's commitment to addressing barriers to workforce participation, the role of the Age Discrimination Commissioner and Ambassador for Mature Age Employment in raising awareness of age discrimination and of the business benefits of hiring older workers.
129. Responding to recommendations on sexual orientation, gender identity and intersex status, the delegation noted the Australian Government's commitment to hold a plebiscite on marriage equality after the next election. In 2013, Australia amended its Sex Discrimination Act to provide protection from unlawful discrimination on the basis of SOGII status. The delegation reported that temporary exemptions from these new laws to facilitate any necessary amendments to state and territory laws will not be extended beyond 31 July 2016.
130. Responding to recommendations on business and human rights, the delegation noted that Australia encourages businesses to apply the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights in their operations. Australia encourages industry-led discussions on the implementation of the Guiding Principles and is considering further what role government might play to support this. There are already comprehensive domestic laws in relation to anti-discrimination, privacy, employment conditions and criminal offences for serious misconduct such as forced labour, slavery and torture.
131. Turning to racism and multiculturalism, the delegation explained the role of Australia's dedicated Race Discrimination Commissioner in promoting social harmony and community resilience, including through the successful 'Racism. It Stops With Me' campaign. The delegation noted Australia's Multicultural Access and Equity Policy, which acknowledges an obligation on Australian Government departments and agencies to provide equitable access to services regardless of the cultural or linguistic background of clients.
132. Responding to comments on children within the criminal justice system, the delegation explained that the minimum age of criminal responsibility in Australia is 10 years of age. However, the application of the safeguard principle of doli incapax between the ages of 10 and 14 provides a gradual transition to full criminal responsibility. Mandatory minimum sentences do not apply to any offences committed by children under federal law, and in states and territories where mandatory sentencing does apply to children, it only applies in very limited circumstances.
133. Regarding concerns on the treatment of prisoners, Australian states and territories deliver corrective services in line with the Standard Guidelines for Corrections in Australia, which are generally consistent with internationally accepted standards, such as the UN Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners.

134. In closing, the Australian delegation thanked all delegations for their constructive and considered comments, questions and recommendations. The delegation expressed its thanks for the active involvement of civil society and noted the further consultation process.

135. The delegation expressed Australia's hope that Australia's future responses to the recommendations will highlight Australia's steadfast and ongoing commitment to the Universal Periodic Review process, human rights mechanisms more broadly, and to the protection and promotion of human rights in Australia, the region and the world.

136.287. Give full protection to asylum seekers in accordance with international law, and abolish the practice of pushing the boats of asylum seekers back at sea (Nigeria);

136.288. Cease its practice of interceptions and “push-backs” in its borders (Bangladesh);

136.289. Proceed with the adoption and implementation of a code of conduct for the treatment of asylum seekers, and stop the practice of intercepting and pushing back the boats of the asylum-seekers into international waters, with the implementation of measures consistent with the provisions of international law and international standards (Bahrain);

136.290. Instil a transparent, human rights-based approach related to the treatment of asylum seekers following their arrival, including the cessation of transfers to third countries (Turkey).

137. All conclusions and/or recommendations contained in the present report reflect the position of the submitting State(s) and/or the State under review. They should not be construed as endorsed by the Working Group as a whole.

III. Voluntary pledges and commitments

138. The Australian Government committed to holding a referendum to recognize Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians in the Australian Constitution in the next term of Parliament. The Government will undertake a national consultation process to ensure all Australians, and especially Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, have an opportunity to engage in this important national conversation.

139. Australia committed to resettling 12,000 refugees fleeing conflict in Syria and Iraq. Australia will also provide humanitarian support to more than 240,000 Syrian and Iraqi people who have been forced to flee their homes or seek refuge in neighbouring countries.

140. The Australian Government committed to addressing the scourge of family violence. A $100 million package of measures announced on 24 September 2015 will provide a safety net for women and children at high risk of experiencing violence. The package will improve frontline support and services, leverage innovative technologies to keep women safe, and provide education resources to help change community attitudes to violence and abuse. The package includes $21 million for specific measures to help Indigenous women and communities.

141. Australia committed to improving the way the criminal justice system treats people with cognitive disability who are unfit to plead or found not guilty by reason of mental impairment. As part of this, the Government committed to a national effort to analyse existing data and develop best practice resources for our jurisdictions.

142. Australia committed to taking further steps to strengthen advocacy for the worldwide abolition of the death penalty. This will be informed by the outcomes of a recently established inquiry being undertaken by the Australian Parliament.

143. Australia committed to promoting and protecting the rights of older people internationally by modelling and advocating better use of existing UN human rights reporting mechanisms. Australia committed to including a dedicated section on the rights of 'older Australians' in all relevant human rights treaty and UPR reports. Australia will seek to have the rights of older persons reflected in UN resolutions and encourage existing Special Rapporteurs to consider the application of their mandate to older persons in close collaboration with the Special Rapporteur on the enjoyment of all human rights by older persons.

144. Australia will continue taking steps to end unlawful discrimination on the grounds of sexual orientation, gender identity and intersex status under Australian law. The Australian Government committed to removing exemptions for Australian state and territory laws from the operation of Australia's national anti-discrimination laws. This commitment will take effect from 31 July 2016.

145. Australia committed to supporting the protection and promotion of human rights through its foreign aid programme by promoting prosperity, reducing poverty and enhancing stability. The delegation welcomed the adoption of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and affirmed Australia's commitment to advancing this agenda. The Australian Government committed to applying its Development for All: 2015-2020 strategy to strengthen disability-inclusive development and its international Indigenous Peoples Strategy 2015-2019 to advance the interests of indigenous peoples in Australia and around the world.

146. Finally, the Australian Government committed to work with Australia's National Human Rights Institution, the Australian Human Rights Commission, to develop a public and accessible process for monitoring Australia's progress against UPR recommendations. This will include a periodic statement on progress against the recommendations on behalf of the Australian Government. Australia will also designate a standing national mechanism to strengthen Australia's overall engagement with UN human rights reporting.
