BEST ESCAPE MOVIES

"The Defiant Ones" (1958) Tony Curtis and Sidney Poitier are linked – literally – in director Stanley Kramer's Oscar-winning classic about inmates on the run.

"The Great Escape" (1963) This list wouldn't be complete without the fact-inspired story of Allied prisoners of war conspiring to get out of a German camp.

"The Naked Prey" (1965) Director Cornel Wilde put himself through a grueling challenge by also starring in this saga of a lone safari survivor hunted by tribesmen.

"The McKenzie Break" (1970) In this tense drama starring Brian Keith, the overseers of a Scottish camp for German prisoners of war fear the captives are plotting a mass breakout.

"The Poseidon Adventure" (1972) Passengers in an overturned ocean liner make their way through the upside-down ship in producer Irwin Allen's drama that launched the disaster-movie craze of the '70s.

"Papillon" (1973): Though the true story had a recent remake, the more effective version remains the first one, casting Steve McQueen as a Devil's Island inmate determined to regain his freedom.

"The Towering Inferno" (1974) Irwin Allen went bigger by historically uniting two major studios (20th Century Fox and Warner Bros.) to make this long but effective suspense tale of a fire that devastates a San Francisco skyscraper on its inaugural night.

"Breakout" (1975) Some may consider it standard Charles Bronson fare, but this adventure has at its core a terrific jail-escape-by-helicopter sequence, with Robert Duvall (or his stunt double) hanging on for dear life.

"Midnight Express" (1978) Arrested in Turkey for trying to smuggle drugs, a young American (Brad Davis) sees his only recourse as an attempt to escape from the brutal prison to which he's been sentenced for at least 30 years.

"Escape From Alcatraz" (1979) Clint Eastwood teamed with director Don Siegel for the last time on this true drama about the only successful escape ever made (as far as is known) from the island prison.

"Escape From New York" (1981) The antiheroic Snake Plissken (Kurt Russell) enters a futuristic Manhattan – converted into a maximum-security prison – to retrieve the captured U.S. president (Donald Pleasence) in director John Carpenter's adventure.

"The Year of Living Dangerously" (1982): A harrowing final sequence, in which an Australian reporter (Mel Gibson) tries to board a plane to leave a chaos-wracked Indonesia, is a highlight of director Peter Weir's drama.

"Runaway Train" (1985) A thrilling combination of action tale and psychological drama casts Jon Voight and Eric Roberts as prison escapees aboard an out-of-control locomotive.

"The Running Man" (1987) In 2017 (!), a framed and convicted policeman (Arnold Schwarzenegger) tries to survive a televised game show in which the players are hunted down as sport.

"The Fugitive" (1993) Harrison Ford is the wrongly murder-accused doctor on the run from Oscar winner Tommy Lee Jones in this big-screen version of the 1960s television series.

'Today's' Savannah Guthrie and Hoda Kotb go Thanksgiving Day parading

"Today's" Savannah Guthrie and Hoda Kotb host coverage of the 92nd annual edition of the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, Thursday on NBC.

By Jay Bobbin

Like countless other people, Savannah Guthrie and Hoda Kotb love a parade.

Unlike many people, though, they have a prime position to enjoy one of the most famous of such processions. The weekday "Today" co-anchors will share television-hosting duties at the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade for the first time as NBC airs the 92nd annual edition from New York on Thursday, Nov. 22. They'll be joined by "Today" colleague Al Roker, with featured performers scheduled to include Diana Ross and her family, John Legend, Martina McBride, Pentatonix, Sugarland, the cast of "Sesame Street," the Rockettes and (of course) Santa Claus.

In preparing for the long line of floats, singers, marching bands and character balloons — punctuated by production numbers from current Broadway shows, performed in front of Macy's flagship store at Herald Square — Guthrie predicts that "it's going to be really fun" beside Kotb. "We always have a good time together, and the parade is just sheer joy. As long as you can keep your fingers and toes warm."

Kotb adds, "I can't wait to do this with Savannah. For the last however many years, I had a great place to watch the parade, on 81st Street and Central Park West. I'd go with my mom and my brother and Joel (Schiffman, Kotb's significant other), then I'd go back home and catch Savannah and those guys (on TV). I just thought it was the coolest to watch all the acts and things go by, so I'm looking forward to my first time (broadcasting it) with Ms. Guthrie."

With their "Today" partnership about to mark its first anniversary, Guthrie claims great comfort in being paired with Kotb: "We know what it's like to work together on live TV. Of course, it's always a high-wire act, but the thing that Hoda and I really love about each other is that we always have each other's back. We know that we will always carry each other, and this (parade) is about being in the moment. I don't want to say you can't mess it up, but it's such a privilege to feel like you're in everybody's home on Thanksgiving Day."

From having watched him as a spectator, Kotb knows how much Roker — who has moonlighted in the cast of Broadway's "Waitress" lately — embraces the parade. "The floats get attention, but no one gets more attention than Roker," she muses. "He's walking down the parade route, and people are freaking out. He has an absolute ball from beginning to end."

Overall, concludes Guthrie, "To get to be a part of such a tradition is really special. And Hoda's going to love every second of it. I just know it."

celebrity q&a

Taran Killam

OF 'SINGLE PARENTS' ON ABC

What drew you to "Single Parents"?

It was interesting to me because I think parenting itself is quite a challenge, but to do it on your own is incredibly admirable, and I couldn't believe there hadn't been a show sort of focused on that plight. Once I said I was interested, I know that they tried to sort of write to some of my strengths – which (are) being an idiot – and (my character) just kind of having his heart on his sleeve.

I have two daughters, and I have a daughter in the show. And Marlow (Barkley), who plays my daughter, is the same age as my oldest child, so there's a lot that I can draw from. But I dress much cooler than (the character) Will.

How do you find the children on the show as co-workers?

These kids, they're real pros. They have to tell us, "Hey, focus up, all right? I didn't believe you in that last take."

Had you envisioned a next step like "Single Parents" while you were on "Saturday Night Live"?

I think "SNL" is all-consuming and you're literally living day-to-day, so I don't know that at the time, I would have foreseen what was to come next. I know as soon as I was off the show, a project just like this was exactly what I was looking for.

I guest-starred on "New Girl," and I was a fan of "New Girl" through the whole series – so when I got to come work with them for a week, it was such a joy and a pleasure that when I got to sit down with Liz and Katherine (Meriwether and Pope, two of the executive producers of both that show and "Single Parents") that first time, it was exciting, the prospect of working together.

Actors have different ways of getting into a character.

For some, it's shadowing someone who does what their character does, like a cop or firefighter. For others, it's meeting the person they're portraying, if possible. And for still others, donning the get-up will do it.

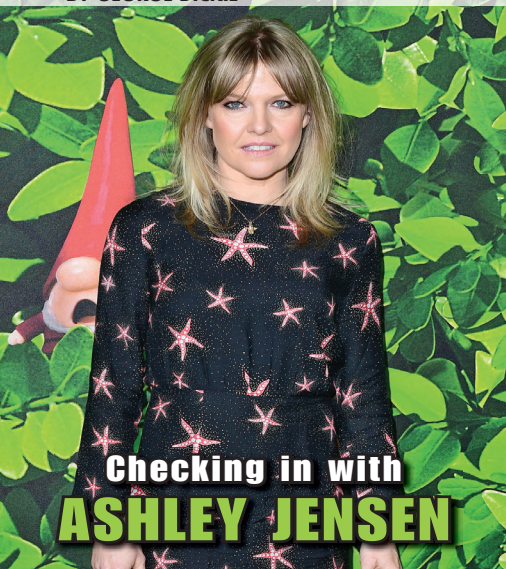

Ashley Jensen, who portrays the chic PR maven-turned-amateur sleuth of the title in "Agatha Raisin and the Wizard of Evesham" – the Season 3 opener of the British "Agatha Raisin" mystery series that begins streaming Monday, Nov. 19, on Acorn TV – falls into the last category.

"(It has) a lot to do the silhouette and the costumes and the makeup," the 49-year-old Scottish actress explains. "And I think my hair wasn't in the Agatha Raisin bob before I did this job. So as soon as I got that haircut, the very high maintenance hairdo and the full makeup, I felt different because Ashley Jensen is not hugely high maintenance. ... I felt and moved and stood differently when I wore the figure-hugging clothes and the heels and held the bag and stuff."

But in Monday's opener, Agatha looks anything but glamorous. She's down and disheveled after her on-again/off-again relationship with her ex is off again and she's in need of change. This sends her to her local hairdresser, a charming man who gives her a whole new look while lending a sympathetic ear. But it turns out he's done this with more than a few women in their small English village and he's privy to a few dark secrets. Secrets dark enough to get him killed.

Megyn Kelly's other show that vanished

Q: Megyn Kelly's weekday hour of "Today" is over now, but what happened to the weekly primetime show she was doing for NBC? – Alex Howard, via e-mail

A: "Sunday Night With Megyn Kelly" quietly went away after the eight episodes that aired in the summer of 2017, which had the extra purpose of being a prelude to the start of her "Today" run that September.

The program drew immediate attention, if not overwhelming ratings, for Kelly's interviews with Russian President Vladimir Putin and conspiracy theorist Alex Jones – and even though it was meant to resume after the NFL season and the Winter Olympics, it never did. Still, Kelly did make prime-time appearances during the past summer with reports for "Dateline NBC."

Q: I've heard that there's going to be another crossover story among The CW's superhero shows. When will that be on? – Dave Wolfe, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: Bearing the theme "Elseworlds," the three-night, three-show event starts Dec. 9 on "The Flash," which will exchange nights with "Supergirl" that week ... with "Arrow" in the middle. A lot of the details are being kept secret – which is nothing new for the crossover tales – but Tyler Hoechlin will return as Superman and "Grimm" alum Elizabeth ("Bitsie") Tulloch will make her first appearance as Lois Lane. Another major aspect of the saga will be the introduction of Ruby Rose as Batwoman. Even though it's not participating in that story (as far as we know), "DC's Legends of Tomorrow" reportedly has its own surprise in store that week. It certainly has its own cast of superheroes, so anything is possible there.

"She's just such a confident, brash, forthright character and she's a woman of a certain age and stands up and is counted," Jensen says. "... A three-dimensional character who is a woman in her 40s who is a bit vulnerable sometimes and we sometimes see her behind the mask of makeup and the heels. And I think that that helps the character resonate with an audience."

Showtime drama recounts a true-life prison 'Escape at Dannemora'

Benicio Del Toro and Patricia Arquette star in the true drama series "Escape at Dannemora," premiering Sunday on Showtime.

It was a prison break unusual enough to inspire a cable movie, and now, it's the source of a series.

Executive-produced and directed by Ben Stiller and making its Showtime debut Sunday, Nov. 18, "Escape at Dannemora" recalls the mid-2015 upstate New York flight by convicted murderers Richard Matt and David Sweat (played by Oscar winner Benicio Del Toro and Paul Dano). They had a surprising conspirator in their getaway: Joyce "Tillie" Mitchell (fellow Oscar recipient Patricia Arquette), a married prison employee involved with both men. Additional stars include Bonnie Hunt, Eric Lange and David Morse.

The eight-episode "Escape at Dannemora" was filmed largely at the maximum-security Clinton Correctional Facility and other locations where the actual events unfolded. "I think, at first, they were a little bit (wary)," Stiller allows of locals' reaction, "how we were going to portray the story. Knowing that I was directing it, they probably assumed it was going to be comedic or attempt to be comedic, so it took a little bit of time to explain to them what we were doing.

"They were very open and very clear about how they felt about what happened," adds Stiller. "The two times that the media has descended on this town was when the escape happened, then when we did this. It's a very small place, so I think there was a fear of being exploited ... which was something I could understand. Eventually, I think, there was a good relationship that developed with the people around there."

The role of escape enabler Mitchell – played last year by Penelope Ann Miller in a Lifetime movie – gave Arquette an opportunity she embraced. "I was excited to explore a lot of themes," the "Boyhood" Academy Award winner says. "I started off as an ingenue, as a young actress. That's a certain kind of story, a certain limitation of a box that you can work within. And then I started to play mothers. To be able to do character work and explore human sexuality as a middle-aged woman, with not a kind of body that Hollywood is used to, I thought was a really interesting conversation to have."

Del Toro also delved deeply into the psyche of inmate turned fugitive Matt. "It's a sad story," the actor who won his Oscar for "Traffic" reflects. "In order for him to survive, it was all about fear, cruelty, dealing in lies. But in the end, he was a human being. He had many feelings, just like anybody else. Just because he was (the way he was), he didn't turn purple or some color. He had, at least, a talent to organize something. Even if it was a wrong thing."

Kathie Lee Gifford

OF 'A GODWINK CHRISTMAS' SUNDAY ON HALLMARK MOVIES & MYSTERIES AND 'TODAY WITH KATHIE LEE & HODA' ON NBC

You've mentioned the notion of a "Godwink" in other ways, so is the plot of "A Godwink Christmas" – of which you're both a star and an executive producer, and in which a budding relationship seems to get heavenly approval – natural for you?

I think a lot of people think the world is random, and that everything is sort of coincidental, with no divine intervention involved ... but that's just the opposite of the way I see it. I believe that nothing is random in this world, and that the Creator of the universe is still in control of it.

This is the first of these movies that we're doing, and they're based on real stories. I think that there's a place for those to be told, and that to watch what happens in other people's lives in a way where the divine intersects with the human is encouraging for people.

What do you think the overall theme of "A Godwink Christmas" speaks to?

There's such an underappreciated, overlooked demographic of people out there that is not embarrassed by things of a spiritual nature. They want them and they desire them, but they're afraid to bring it up because of the politically correct world we live in today. I hear from literally hundreds of thousands of people all the time about faith and a spiritual component to life, and I'm happy to share it with them.

Since you also wrote and starred in the feature film "Then Came You" recently, is it easy for you to get time off from your weekday work on "Today With Kathie Lee & Hoda" to do other projects?

I had already given my notice to my wonderful friends and bosses at NBC. I told them, "Listen, I'd love to stay, but you're going to have to let me do my movies. They're already in the pipeline, and they mean the world to me. If we can't work that out, I can't stay."

And they were awesome! They said, "Kathie Lee, you've got it." I'm happy to stay (at "Today"). Some people think I'm no longer interested, but it's not that. (Making movies) has been my long-term plan, and doing "Then Came You" has been the greatest professional experience of my life.

Country star McBride invites you to dine at 'Martina's Table'

BY GEORGE DICKIE

We all know Martina McBride as a Grammy-nominated country artist with a laundry list of hit recordings to her name.

But the 52-year-old Kansas native is also a wife and mother who likes to grow her own vegetables and cook for her family when she can. And it's that Midwestern sensibility she brings to a new series she hosts on Food Network beginning this week.

In "Martina's Table," premiering Sunday, Nov. 18, McBride gives a glimpse into how she entertains at home, sharing recipes and cooking tips as she prepares meals for her family and friends including Sheryl Crow, Faith Hill and Karen Fairchild and Kimberly Schlapman.

"My cooking is pretty simple and straightforward," McBride explains, "no crazy, exotic ingredients or nothing too complicated. And so I cook things like pot roast and cheddar and bacon biscuits and hash brown casserole and we did a turkey because we had a Thanksgiving episode. So just kind of a variety of different meals and different kinds of food."

In Sunday's opener, McBride prepares a Thanksgiving dinner complete with a sausage, cherry and cornbread stuffing, roasted cinnamon "Harrisburgs," romaine salad with pear, smoked blue cheese and candied pecans and, of course, a roasted turkey.

"I did a dry brine," McBride says of how she prepares her bird, "so I did baking powder and salt and just let it brine in the refrigerator for 24 hours. And then I made an infused oil with garlic and spices and I just rubbed that all over the turkey and put it in the oven and blasted it for about 30 minutes at a higher heat and reduced the heat. And I stuffed it with citrus, orange and lemons and sage and rosemary and it was delicious. ... The flavor gets down in the turkey, the salt flavor, and then it also makes the skin really crispy."

In subsequent episodes, McBride does a Mexican spread of black bean enchiladas, confetti rice and avocado hummus, and a casual holiday brunch for friends.

Many of the recipes prepared on "Martina's Table" can also be found in her new cookbook "Martina's Kitchen Mix: My Recipe Playlist for Real Life," which she says is a reflection of how she and her family eat.

"I eat healthy about 90 percent of the time," she explains, "but you just every once in a while have to have a decadent, cozy comfort-food dish. I think the book has a good balance of those recipes. We have some really healthy vegetarian (recipes) and things that are on the healthier end and then I have chocolate cheesecake.

"I think it's the way people eat," she continues. "I think most of us like to splurge now and then. So yeah, I'm really proud of the cookbook. I cook out of it all the time and I still make those recipes over and over again, so I think people will really (find it) enjoyable. It's approachable."

OF 'THE CHRISTMAS CONTRACT' AND 'TIS THE SEASON: A ONE TREE HILL CAST REUNION' ON LIFETIME

"The Christmas Contract" also features fellow "One Tree Hill" veterans Robert Buckley, Daneel Ackles, Antwon Tanner and Tyler Hilton. How was the experience for you?

Rob and I specifically had been pushing for a reunion for about five years, so it was great that everything came together. A lot of the time, these films shoot in Canada – and given the Canadian tax incentives, there are restrictions on how many American actors you can have. And because we shot with a (producer) friend in Louisiana we were able to bypass those rules and invite all the friends we wanted!

You've done holiday movies before, so is it safe to say you enjoy the genre?

The thing that I really like about these jobs is that they shoot over three weeks. You make a whole movie in 15 days, but what's very difficult about these projects is ... you do the whole thing in 15 days. In order to create chemistry with people, these lifelong friendships or romances that you're putting up on the screen, it really helps to have your real friends on the job with you. It kind of takes the pressure off.

"The Christmas Contract" is followed immediately by you and many of your co-stars in the special "Tis the Season: A One Tree Hill Cast Reunion." Was getting back together for that also fun for you?

You know what? Rob (Buckley) and I never actually worked together on "One Tree Hill." He showed up as I was leaving, and the very first time I ever spoke with him, Daneel was working on the show – and I was off pregnant with my first child, and she called me and said, "Oh, I'm hanging out with this kid (Buckley). You two would be best friends if you knew each other."

I laughed and said, "OK. Whatever." And she put him on the phone, and I ended up having a half-hour conversation with this stranger, thinking, "Oh, he's quick-witted. What a fun fellow." Then we met years later at a "One Tree Hill" convention in Paris, and he's incredible ... a fun person to spar with.

THANKSGIVING DAY FOOTBALL PART OF NFL NOSTALGIA

Thanksgiving Day football is anchored in history and part of the nostalgia that is associated with the sport of football. It's a long-standing tradition that the Detroit Lions and Dallas Cowboys host Thanksgiving Day football games, mainly because they were willing to do so at a time when no other teams would. But when the NFL began to prioritize Thanksgiving Day football, they were only capitalizing on something that was already happening in America.

Fans will get three games on the holiday this year. Khalil Mack and the Chicago Bears visit the Detroit Lions on CBS. Then on Fox, the Dallas Cowboys hope to redeem a Week 7 loss when they host the Washington Redskins. Thanksgiving evening on NBC, Drew Brees and the New Orleans Saints host the Atlanta Falcons.

Getting back to history, in the early days of college football, conferences sometimes held their championship games on Thanksgiving Day, and high school leagues did the same. Prior to World War II, NFL clubs often played on Thanksgiving Day, including the New York Football Giants. NFL action in Detroit has taken place on the holiday since 1934 when owner G.A. Richards decided to hold a Thanksgiving Day game to promote his team in a city dominated by its baseball team, the Detroit Tigers. Eventually, the American Football League (AFL) began hosting a holiday game in 1960.

In 1966 the upstart Cowboys began hosting Thanksgiving football. As the NFL's popularity grew, they likewise hosted traditional holiday games and some became classics. In 1974 rookie backup quarterback Clint Longley stepped in for an injured Roger Staubach and led the Cowboys to a come-from-behind victory over the Redskins. The Cowboys weren't so lucky in 1993 when defensive lineman Leon Lett tried to pounce on a blocked field goal in the snow at Texas Stadium and handed the game to the Miami Dolphins. In Detroit, in 1998, a referee's botched coin toss awarded the Lions the ball in overtime, helping them to an eventual victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

In 2006 the NFL Network got on board adding a third game, an evening broadcast, to the holiday football lineup. This somewhat pleased other owners who sometimes complained that Detroit and Dallas got all the glory from hosting the games on a regular basis, and in some cases, a home-team advantage. With Thursday football a regularity, nearly every NFL team now plays on a Thursday at some point in the season.

Thanksgiving Day football games are special, nostalgic and reflect one of the oldest-celebrated holidays on the North American continent. So, enjoy some football with your turkey, stuffing and pumpkin pie. Happy Thanksgiving!

"CRAZY RICH ASIANS"

Director Jon M. Chu's hit comedy takes an old-fashioned love story and gives it freshness through its ethnic sheen and its casting – in this case, one of the most fully Asian and Asian-American casts in a good number of years. At the center of the story is the New York couple played by Henry Golding and Constance Wu ("Fresh Off the Boat"), who take a trip to Singapore for a wedding – subjecting the woman to all sorts of scrutiny from her boyfriend's family and friends, and eventually making her wonder if she'll be able to handle it over the long haul. It's a treat to see Michelle Yeoh out of her martial-arts mode as Golding's mother, and Ken Jeong ("Community"), Awkwafina and Nico Santos ("Superstore") also turn up. DVD extra: "making-of" documentary. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

Longmire (Robert Taylor) – initially unaware of his deputy Vic's (Katee Sackhoff) pregnancy – looks into the disappearance of his friend Henry Standing Bear (Lou Diamond Phillips), then faces a murder accusation and gives serious consideration to retirement. Cassidy Freeman also stars as Longmire's attorney daughter Cady. A "Complete Series" set also is newly available. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"KIN"

A very special metallic box and its contents may be the only hope for a recent parolee (Jack Reynor) and his family to evade the wrath of a criminal (James Franco) in this combination of science fiction and melodrama, an expansion of an earlier short film. The box becomes a weapon and helps the former convict recognize and embrace his real identity ... which is much lofter than he could have imagined. DVD extras: audio commentary by directors Jonathan and Josh Baker and screenwriter Daniel Casey; "Bag Man" short subject; two "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; roundtable discussion. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"KEVIN SMITH: SILENT BUT DEADLY"

This stand-up-comedy special has quite a back story ... since "Clerks" filmmaker Smith suffered a massive heart attack right after the first of the two scheduled performances at the Alex Theater in Glendale, Calif. That wasn't anticipated during his set that sees him reflect humorously on his life and career. In sequences recorded after his medical treatment, Smith reflects on the related events of that night and beyond. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray)

"DOG DAYS"

Canines have pronounced effects on several Los Angeles residents in director Ken Marino's comedy-drama, which links several stories as the movie literally goes to the dogs. One subplot features Nina Dobrev as a television newscaster whose interview with an ex-basketball star (Tone Bell) has surprising results. Another tale casts Vanessa Hudgens as a barista enamored with a self-centered veterinarian (Michael Cassidy), though an animal-shelter operator (Jon Bass) pines for her. ★★★ (PG: AS, P) (Also on On Demand)

"BLINDSPOTTING"

A popular attraction on the film-festival circuit earlier this year, this serio-comic tale follows an Oakland, Calif. parolee – played by Daveed Diggs, of "Hamilton" and "blackish" – as he heads toward the end of his probation trying to stay on the right side of the law. He might not make it, though, thanks to a friend (Rafael Casal, who also wrote the film with Diggs) who becomes involved in a police shooting ... driving a wedge between the longtime pals. Janina Gavankar, Ethan Embry, Tisha Campbell-Martin and fellow "Hamilton" veteran Jasmine Cephas Jones also star. DVD extras: two "making-of" documentaries; audio commentary by Diggs, Casal and director Carlos Lopez Estrada; deleted scenes. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"LONGMIRE: THE SIXTH AND FINAL SEASON"

The modern Western inspired by Craig Johnson's novels doubled its life span by getting three additional seasons out of its Netflix pickup after its A&E cancellation ... and it did much to establish the streaming service as a place where some shows can continue after their original networks part with them. In this concluding round, Wyoming lawman Walt

soap synopses

Tyler Christopher stars as Stefan DiMera on "Days of Our Lives" weekdays on NBC.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL Ridge assured Brooke that no one will find out he bribed the judge. Bill was thrilled when Ken was able to hack into the judge's cellphone. Ridge and the judge were distressed when they realized they were duped. Eric reminded Quinn that Pam is family. At the Spencer building, Justin played a recording that proved Ridge and the judge were in cahoots. Pam apologized to Donna. Brooke pleaded with Bill for mercy so he wouldn't press charges against Ridge. Katie agreed to Bill's request for a change to the custody agreement. Bill made an admission to Brooke about their past and future. Wyatt was stunned to learn Katie and Thorne were complicit in Ridge's crime.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES Chad helped Abigail as she went into labor. Stefan caught Gabi with incriminating evidence. Ben admitted his feelings to Ciara. Paul was tempted to read Will's journal. Ciara confronted Claire about her lies. Chad made a bold move. Brady confessed to Paul. Chad made a deal with Stefan. Rex tried to reconcile with Sarah. Gabi grappled with telling the truth. Paul confronted Will about his feelings for Sonny. Rex made a difficult decision. Lucas said goodbye to Chloe. Kayla was suspicious about Gabi. Abigail felt betrayed by JJ. Claire's plot unraveled as Ben got the truth out of Wyatt.

GENERAL HOSPITAL Sonny wondered what might have been. Julian seemed to have the upper hand. Alexis offered insight. Carly was outraged. Jason had an update. Jordan and Curtis discussed wedding details. Monica shared her experience. Julian grew suspicious of Alexis. Elizabeth's patience was tested. Franco sought Scotty's help. Michael and Stella had a heart-to-heart. Anna had words of encouragement. Sonny paid Margaux a visit. Ryan got close to Jordan. Elizabeth was heartbroken. Sonny made a plea to Margaux. Sasha defended herself from Kiki's accusations. Liz tried to help her son. Nina became defensive.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS Despite being worried about Rey's investigation, Phyllis focused on running Jabot. But despite her successes, Billy continued to resist her leadership. Mariah moved into Tessa's tiny apartment. Seeking to avoid Rey's suspicions over JT's murder, Phyllis suggested to Sharon, Nikki and Victoria that they stop meeting. Sharon and Rey had a hard time keeping things professional. Lola stepped in in a pinch to cater the Jaboutique party, where Nick and Phyllis showed up as a couple – as did Billy and Sharon.

What if the original thriller "Halloween" hadn't yielded several decades of follow-ups, and just had a direct, decades-later sequel?

That's the refreshing conceit of the newest "Halloween," which basically erases all those other movies and plugs back into the very first one, especially in terms of the famously spare style shown then by director John Carpenter. Current franchise-keepers David Gordon Green and Danny McBride clearly are huge fans of that film, and they hold very true to it as murderous Michael Myers again wreaks havoc on the small Illinois town of Haddonfield.

If that's the case, you know former babysitter Laurie Strode still has to be around, and Jamie Lee Curtis obviously embraces returning to the part – with the character's rather disheveled physical appearance mirroring the torment she's retained over the past 40 years. And original co-star Nick Castle also is back to share the part of Myers.

Laurie has new reasons to be wary of the newly escaped Myers, and not only for herself but also for her daughter and granddaughter, played by Judy Greer and Andi Matchak. They aren't merely about to play victim, though:

In keeping very much with the times, by the time all of them have weighed in on their shared plight, "female empowerment" is a thoroughly relevant phrase.

Carpenter is back as an executive producer on this "Halloween," a credit Curtis also gets this time, and his son, Cody, handles a music score that channels the haunting theme Dad also contributed the first time. There are loads of other nods to the original round, which helps make it easier to leap from that film to this one, particularly for those who have seen a lot, if not all, of the other chapters in-between (including the Rob Zombie-directed remakes).

This picture basically requires you to forget about those, even the couple for which Curtis came back. That's a pretty self-assured demand to make, but also one that deserves respect, just for how unusual it is. It's even bold to use just the original title, with no sequel number nor subtitle added.

"Halloween" not only is one of the most obvious tributes to a classic movie, it's also a very logical one given how the update achieves it. Not many films could get away with it, but it's a treat for fans of the original that this one does ... and with reasonably successful effect.

DeMarcus Lawrence putting the 'D' back in Dallas

The Dallas Cowboys currently have the best defense they've had in years, thanks in part to defensive end DeMarcus Lawrence who tends to terrorize opposing quarterbacks. Lawrence and the Cowboys will host the Washington Redskins Thursday, November 22 on Fox. The game, of course, is the traditional Thanksgiving Day event in Dallas.

Lawrence enjoyed a career high 14.5 sacks last season and started off this year with a bang before cooling down, all the while enduring a shoulder injury. Opposing offenses must account for him, especially now that he rushes from the left side where he is most comfortable. The Cowboys had a bye week in late October, giving Lawrence a chance to get a bit healthier and ready for a second half run on the season. The Cowboys finally have a defense to go with an offense that is underachieving thus far in the season. Lawrence and the defense have been keeping them in games.

Lawrence was drafted out of Boise State by the Cowboys in the second round of the 2014 NFL Draft. A pre-season injury forced him to miss much of that season, but he did get some snaps in the second half. He also missed time with a suspension in 2016, but blossomed last season, resulting in the Cowboys putting the franchise tag on him. Come this off-season, they'll have to decide his future in Dallas.

For now, Lawrence and the Cowboys are focused on the remainder of this season, and what lies ahead in its final stretch.

BY JAY BOBBIN

ALEC BALDWIN

Alexander Rae Baldwin was born in Long Island, N.Y., on April 3, 1958. He is one of four Baldwin brothers who are actors ... the others being Stephen, William and Daniel.

Formerly wed to actress Kim Basinger – with whom he has a daughter, Ireland – he now is married to wife Hilaria. They have three sons and a daughter.

Baldwin began his acting career in two television serials, “The Doctors” in daytime and “Knots Landing” in prime time. His movie work started in the late 1980s in such films as “Beetlejuice,” “Working Girl,” “Married to the Mob” and “Talk Radio.”

Baldwin’s movie stardom was cemented by 1990’s “The Hunt for Red October,” which made him the first of several actors to play novelist Tom Clancy’s CIA-analyst character Jack Ryan.

The 2000s have proven quite fruitful for Baldwin, who typically seems to be working on several things at once. “The Departed,” “It’s Complicated” and “The Boss Baby” (as the voice of the title character) have been among his many other movies, and he won two Emmy Awards as a series regular on “30 Rock.”

Having made many appearances on NBC’s “Saturday Night Live,” Baldwin is now known for his recurring impersonation of President Donald Trump (for which he won an Emmy last year) on that show.

After a short-lived MSNBC talk program, Baldwin is trying that genre again with the current “Alec Baldwin Show” Sundays on ABC. He also continues as host and an executive producer of ABC’s revival of “Match Game,” and he voices the New York Philharmonic’s national radio broadcasts. He and his wife run the philanthropic Hilaria & Alec Baldwin Foundation.

3:00 p.m. HGTV Love It or List It William and Ashley bought their cozy 1950s home in a prime neighborhood when their family was much smaller, but their three growing sons are testing the limitations of the house; Ashley believes they can add square footage to meet their needs.

4:00 p.m. HGTV Love It or List It The decision to start a family prompted Ben and Courtney to buy their first house, a 1930s-era, ivy-covered brick home with a lot of charm and a lot of issues, including a flooded basement.

5:00 p.m. HGTV Love It or List It A family of five has outgrown their home; Quincy is ready to move, but Don loves their neighborhood and wants to make their house work for them again.

6:00 p.m. HGTV Love It or List It A couple with an idyllic yet quirky house near a lake is now feeling cramped after their family doubled in size; while Hilary’s mission is to make them fall in love with their property again, David searches for a better fit for their family.

7:00 p.m. HGTV Love It or List It Their family home on a large horse farm is a dream for this horse lover, but her city-raised husband has had all he can take; she loves the amazing views and abundant outdoor space, whereas he no longer feels like there’s enough space indoors.
