

Dear Friends,

We hope your 2018 is off to a great start and that you are gearing up to a 12 months full of new goals to achieve and challenges to overcome. At Better Work Bangladesh, we believe that only with your precious and continuous help, new milestones across the country's garment and footwear sector can be reached.

Inside this newsletter you will find a selection of activities we carried out in 2017 and an initial two-page information leaflet shedding light on the unique value our programme brings to businesses, workers, and the sector at large.

Researches show that with the support of Better Work, improved compliance has the benefit, among others, of reducing absenteeism among employees and decreasing multiple buyer audits. The latter saves management time in preparing for and responding to audits, and also saves costs associated with paying for multiple audits.

BWB had the pleasure of hosting some 300 national and international garment sector representatives at its stakeholders' forum last April, including partners from government, employer associations and unions, as well as 80 international brand representatives.

We would like to see even more actors participating this year to help the sector attain the government's own goals: for Bangladesh to become a middle-income country with good compliance by 2021.

To do so, we must start to see compliance not as a mere obligation, but a business necessity that makes factories more competitive.

Bangladesh's 28 billion USD a year garment export industry has the potential to forge the future of the country's development. Let's write this story together.

Thank you and enjoy the read!

Improved working conditions in the apparel industry make workers' lives better and businesses stronger

An independent review of the Better Work programme shows significant gains in quality of life for workers in factories they advise, as well as enhanced productivity and profitability for those businesses involved.

GENEVA (ILO News) – A joint International Labour Organization and International Finance Corporation programme has dramatically improved working conditions in hundreds of garment factories across seven developing countries, an independent review has shown.

According to the study by Tufts University, the Better Work programme moves factories away from practices leading to long working hours, extremely low pay, dismissal threats, or abuse of probationary contracts. Workers are seeing an increase in their weekly take-home pay and are less and less concerned with excessive overtime and poor wages.

The review also notes progress in closing the gender pay gap, particularly among garment factories receiving Better Work advisory services in Haiti, Nicaragua and Vietnam.

The programme has made significant progress in diminishing coercive labour practices and limiting harassment and verbal abuse. In Jordan reports of sexual harassment fell by 18 per cent and the incidence of workers feeling fearful in the workplace declined markedly as well.

Training women supervisors – a shortcut to big gains

Researchers found that Better Work's Supervisory Skills Training (SST) is a very effective strategy for improving working conditions, and empowering women in the industry. The analysis showed that production lines overseen by Supervisory Skills-trained female line supervisors increased factory productivity by 22 per cent, when compared to lines overseen by supervisors who had not yet received such training.

Business benefits

The report concludes that these gains in working conditions do not come at the expense of business performance. The research establishes a direct link between better working conditions and higher profit firms. Across all factories tracked in Vietnam, after four years of participation with Better Work, average profitability increased by 25 per cent.

"Evidence of a win-win outcome – improving working conditions while boosting profit margins – has to date largely been anecdotal. Tufts University's impact assessment has made significant strides in establishing evidence of this relationship," said Professor Drusilla Brown, lead author of the report

About Better Work

Better Work, established in 2009 by the UN's International Labour Organization and the International Finance Corporation, a member the World Bank Group, aims to improve working conditions and promote competitiveness in global garment supply chains. The programme operates in 7 countries: Bangladesh, Cambodia, Indonesia, Vietnam, Jordan, Haiti, and Nicaragua and currently engages 1300 factories employing more than 1.6 million workers.

With some 5,000 workers, a six-story building for another 5,000 in the pipeline and a history of upgrading standards, Crown Wears is a company setting the bar higher for the garment sector in Bangladesh.

Belonging to Sparrow Group, which supplies top international brands, the factory joined Better Work in 2015 and improvements to working conditions haven't stopped since.

Located in the country's central region of Mymensingh, some 75km north of the capital Dhaka, the factory provides full terms and conditions of employment, medical services and coverage of rent and living costs included in its workers' salaries, starting from the national monthly minimum of 67 US dollars.

Crown's Human Resources and Compliance Manager Nayim Ahmed said that, based on the factory's reports, the situation inside the facility has improved over the years and, mostly, after the company joined Better Work. "Since then, we elected participation committees (PC), established a new medical ward and a childcare facility to host up to 35 children," Ahmed said. "Before, the nursery was very small and not well equipped, and the only doctor in the facility was often overwhelmed. We have now a female as well as a male doctor and have built two medical rooms, one for women and one for men. We also bought a fridge to keep vaccinations for the children."

Also, following Better Work's advice, the factory distributes food to breastfeeding mothers and their children twice a day.

Crown Wears is trying to apply the country's legal limits on overtime hours by allowing only two extra hours on top of the worker's eight-hour day.

BWB holds joint summit with major UK buyer

n October, a major UK buyer with significant presence in Bangladesh, introduced 60 of its local suppliers to the Better Work Programme, said BWB Programme Manager Louis Vanegas.

Participants to the summit also included officials from the Ministry of Employment and Labour and existing members factories, who shared their experience with BWB in regards to its core service model, of advisory, assessment and training services, and initiatives beyond its core services.

Bangladesh's Deputy Inspector General, Mahfuzur Rahman Bhuiyan, lauded the programme and called on the factories attending the event to become part of it.

Bhuiyan told the audience that joining the programme was a positive step to help reach an enhanced level of compliance on the factory floor, thus improving the industry as a whole.

Management teams from a string of BWB-partner factories highlighted their experience with BWB, including the initial challenges they faced after understanding some of the policies they had been following needed to change.

By WB organized late in September a tripartite event that saw the attendance of government officials, factory owners, and union leaders in Chittagong, Bangladesh's largest port and financial centre in the country's southeast.

The UN programme is set to expand its services into the thriving ready-made garment industry of Bangladesh's second largest urban centre.

BWB started providing its assessment, advisory and training packages in the area in late 2016. So far, six factories from Chittagong have joined the programme.

But last month's BWB factory outreach meeting and social dialogue session were set to change this and increase the number of partner factories in the region.

Some 60 factories attended the BWB's event in which members of its team outlined the programme pillars, while partner brands explained the importance of its core services for their operations and how both them and their factories benefit from their partnership in Bangladesh.

Members of the Bangladesh Knitwear Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BKMEA) and the Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA), two of the largest trade associations in the country representing the sector, attended the event.

Shahid Uddin Ahmed Azad, Director of the BKMEA, told the audience about the needs of his affiliated factories and how they were expecting BWB to meet them. Shahidalso called on the UN programme to focus on small and medium enterprises whose lack of resources makes compliance extremely low.

Both members of trade associations and brands highlighted the uniqueness of the BW assessments across the audit market in Bangladesh, due to its advisory-based, solution-oriented strategy and calls for continuous improvement.

BWB also conducted a workshop on social dialogue with the participants, stressing the pivotal role social dialogue plays onwork inside the factory. Unregistered factories from Chittagong showed interest in joining the programme at the end of the event, while BKMEA-affiliated factories called for additional meetings with BWB to further pin down and tackle the industry's challenges.

BWB launches its first seminar on Human Resources Development

WB kicked off late in September its first seminar on Human Resource Development aimed at prompting an easier and faster recruitment process across the country's ready-made garment industry.

Dubbed "Industry Seminar on Human Resources: Easy and Faster Worker Recruitment Process in the RMG Factories," the one-day meeting is set to show participants ways of improving recruitment processes, which ultimately would save factories time and help lower costs.

14 management members from eight BWB-affiliated factories attended the seminar discussing challenges of the existing worker recruitment process and opportunities to ease and speed up its mechanisms and policies.

But the BWB programme showed that following its advice on how to improve the recruitment process would significantly lower the recruitment cost per worker. Money saved could be then diverted into staff training, incentives to increase compliance and benefits for the production team.

etter Work Bangladesh and the International Finance Corporation (IFC) are implementing a project funded by Japan and the World Bank Group, providing 240 female garment workers in Bangladesh with the training they need to reach their full potential inside their factories.

Known as the "Women productivity toolkit," the project covers 30 factories enrolled with the ILO/IFC Better Work programme and offers technical training, as well as soft skills coaching, to the factories' best machine operators interested in occupying supervisory positions.

The training also aims to raise the workers' knowledge of the different processes carried out inside the factory, which eventually reflects on their task and leads to an overall increase in productivity. "In Bangladesh's RMG sector, four out of every five production line workers are female whilst only one in ten supervisors is a woman," said Eleonore Richardson, IFC's Programme Manager.

"This means 90 percent of the managerial talent in factories emerges from 20 percent of the workforce, resulting in the inability to fully exploit the potential of its workforce. This training will allow factory managers to tap into the full potential of the workforce by allowing greater career progression opportunities for women."

BWB's Sexual Harassment Prevention training sparks changes in attitudes and behaviour.

our hundred employees spanning factory managers, supervisors and workers have so far received Better Work Bangladesh (BWB) sexual harassment prevention (SHP) training.

In line with the programme's philosophy of creating a snowball effect of better practices across its affiliated factories, more programme participants are expected to follow.

"We started delivering SHP training in two pilot factories in August last year through December," said BWB's training officer Shipra Chowdhury, who conducted the seminars. "So far we've reached all the factories managers, half of the supervisors and one quarter of the workers. We are here to build capacities so that they can continue on their own, thus making the training and its teachings sustainable."

The Human Resources and Compliance General Manager at the company said they had always had a zero-tolerance policy concerning sexual harassment, but that BWB's work was really helping to spread awareness of guidelines many workers and management members were unaware of.

He said he had started noticing large improvements following BWB's training. In the past few months, only a few cases were reported instead of the previous five to six a month.

Healthy Mother Healthy Child advocacy project brings good nutrition practices to the factory floor

Under a project dubbed "Healthy Mother Healthy Child," Better Work Bangladesh(BWB) Enterprise Advisors use their regular factory visits to call on management to distribute food among pregnant workers and mothers who breastfeed in the workplace, as well as provide time and space to do so.

Based on the premise that pregnant women and mothers who breastfeed need special protection in a factory, the UN programme unfolded an action plan in July spanning policies and procedures that plants should follow to guarantee the health of workers and their babies. Eventually, these measures should contribute to lower maternal and infant mortality rates across the country.

The project emphasizes nutritional needs, maternity protection and childcare assistance. It also organises trainings for the factory clinic's staff, welfare officers, managers, line supervisors and childcare specialists.

Five months into the project, 11 BWB-affiliated factories—making up a roughly 40,000-person workforce—started to provide 49 pregnant women and 149 breastfeeding mothers with energy-boosting food like bananas, milk, eggs, biscuits and cake.
