Published weekly at No. 11, Merchants' Hall, Boston, Massachusetts.

OUR COUNTRY IS THE WORLD OUR COUNTRYMEN, ALL MANKIND.

That if a state were to design the propagation of immorality, it could scarce devise a better plan for the accomplishment of such design than in that of our present system of slavery.

- AGENTS. MAINE: John C. Lovejoy, Bangor; Nathan Winslow, Portland.

It is opposed to domestic peace. Slaves, as we have before shown, are generally raised without moral instruction, and consequently possess a low degree of moral feeling, and therefore are not very conscientious in regard to the preservation of domestic peace.

- NEW-HAMPSHIRE: Rufus E. Cutler, Exeter; David Campbell, Acworth; David Campbell, Wintham.

Idleness is generally one result of slavery. Necessity is the parent of industry—few are willing to labor when necessity does not impel them.

- NEW-YORK: Philip A. Bell, New-York City; George Hoar, Brooklyn; Charles Marriott, Hudson.

Ignorance is another result of slavery. It is seldom that persons who are brought up in idleness and without moral and religious education.

- PENNSYLVANIA: Robert Casey, Philadelphia; Joseph Shurtleff, Pottsville; J. B. Peto, Pittsburg.

Slavery weakens the moral and intellectual powers of the people by the neglect of education.

- INDIA: Jonathan Shaw, Nettie Creek; Nathaniel Field, Jeffersonville.

Slavery weakens the moral and intellectual powers of the people by the neglect of education.

LETTERS ON SLAVERY, ADRESSED TO MR. THOMAS RANKIN, Merchant at Middleburg, Augusta Co. Va.

LETTER I. BROTHER—In the preceding letters, I have it is clearly shown that involuntary slavery is opposed to the strongest principles and feelings of human nature, and that it forms a reproach, for which the God of nature, in the organization of the human system, has made no provision.

retain this unjust principle as affects a strong pro- portion for the usurpation of power. And this circumstance shows that they have in them the spirit of tyranny.

TOUR OF THE EDITOR. LETTER III. PORTLAND, Sept. 24, 1832. On Wednesday last, I took advice to Boston, for this city, in the Chancellor Livingston, a somewhat celebrated in former years for her speed and size, but which is now only a third rate one.
