Relief of Oppression.

From the Journal of Commerce. THE DOCTRINE OF INSTRUCTIONS. The people of the States are beginning to look upon the doctrine of instructions as a relic of the past.

THE WILMOT PROVISION.

It is truly impossible that the good sense of the American people should be so easily deceived as to suppose that the Wilmot Provision is a mere formality.

THE UNION.

How much do Northern men love the Union? We say that the Union is the life of the Nation, and that it is the duty of every citizen to maintain it.

THE VOICE OF THE DEMOCRACY IN PHILADELPHIA.

We have not noticed with sufficient prominence the address delivered by Charles Sumner at the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

FREEDOM. TO THE EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL OF COMMERCE: Sir, I am interested and surprised with pleasure the great interest which has been manifested in the late Convention.

THE RISING OF DOUGLASS. The great Buchanan meeting in favor of the extension of slavery, held at Philadelphia on Friday last, has done more to excite the public mind than any other meeting since the Convention of 1852.

MEETING AT CASTLE GARDEN.

A united and powerful demonstration was given at the present meeting at Castle Garden, in New York City, in support of the Wilmot Provision.

PARLIAMENT OF THE DELEGATES.

We yesterday, for the first time, read Mr. Clay's speech before Congress, and have since enjoyed a richer and more varied banquet than we have had before.

NEW YORK ANT-SLAVERY CONVENTION.

We are sorry to see that the late Convention of the New York Ant-Slavery Society has not been so successful as we had hoped.

TENNESSEE FOR EVER!

If we wish to know how our Wilmot Provision stands in Tennessee, we have only to read the report of the Legislature.

BOSTON, MARCH 8, 1850 THE LIBERATOR

THE AMERICAN UNION WITH SLAVERS!

On the American soil as freedom; that we are all bound as American citizens to cherish it with the same care that we should cherish the rights of the whole people...

SPEECH OF HON. JOHN G. PALMER, Delivered at the Free Soil Convention held in Faneuil Hall, Feb. 27, 1850.

But this question becomes just what is stated by the speaker. It is not a question of expediency, it is a question of principle. It is a question of right and wrong...

our principles; we are expected to finish from the course of duty, because the South chooses to threaten us with secession if we do not acquiesce in the re-enslavement of Mexico...

EP Last autumn President Taylor was elected in Boston, the following year he was elected in the United States. He was drawn up in slavery...

We do not call to call this a monstrous perversion, both of the original understanding of the parties to the compact...

When we have done our duty for the honor which you have done me in assisting me to do it, I might have found more noble capacities...

But gentlemen, the great question of the present crisis, which has done so much to tame the vigor of the Union, is the question of the right of property...

We must acquiesce. We must acquiesce. We must acquiesce. We must acquiesce. We must acquiesce...

Standing aloof, as you do, from every political party, but not being attached to any particular party, they make no apology for being present...

Do we talk of compromise at a time like this? Do we talk of compromise at a time like this? Do we talk of compromise at a time like this?

Resolved, That the committee on territories be instructed to report to the House with a bill to amend the act of 1820, providing a territorial government...

They know we love the Union. Whence came this? They know we love the Union. Whence came this? They know we love the Union...

Resolved, That the committee on territories be instructed to report to the House with a bill to amend the act of 1820, providing a territorial government...

The Liberator.

For the Liberator. THE SPIRIT VOICE. I hear, amid the din of human voices; A fearful wailing sound;

Friends, the "distinguished, able lecturers" are few, and when we hear them present to help us, we sit up on the wall over again, and we find that what the lecturers say, he shall not find, as so often does, that nothing has grown so long as the lecture, in order to leave the soul.

TO THE SONS OF TOIL. Extract from an admirable poem in "The Liberator," delivered before the Mechanic Apprentices' Association of Boston, on the 27th of February, by GEORGE COLEMAN.

What you do disturb the ambient air? What dire torments do the black heaves feel? To fight, that some dire specter might befall?

TO THE SONS OF TOIL. (Continued) I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling;

But the worst trouble of all was, the announcement that Parker Pillsbury was going to give a lecture on the subject of the anti-slavery movement.

TO THE SONS OF TOIL. (Continued) I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling;

Well, my good friend, this is a case of the kind which you would not wish to speak about to three millions of God's children.

TO THE SONS OF TOIL. (Continued) I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling;

Accept, my sincere thanks for your kindness in giving me the Freeman's Journal and Pilot, and for calling my attention to the paragraphs in which you have so ably and so judiciously measured my pretensions.

TO THE SONS OF TOIL. (Continued) I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling; I see the State of Freedom from its ceiling;
