FREEDOM

AN ANARCHIST WEEKLY-4d.

NOVEMBER 14 1964 Vol 25 No 35

It is the nature of a government not to be ruled, but to rule. And as it derives its power from the army, it will never give up the army nor will it ever renounce that for which the army is designed-war.

LEO TOLSTOY

Bolivia!

Help us get the Anti-Election Campaign out of the Red!

That was Monopoly, that is!

WHILE it is true that the Government's intention to Nationalise steel is a political question, in so far as the two major parties are making a political issue of it, with the Liberals seeking to shine and to influence by a compromise programme (as we write last Monday's debate had not yet started, and a number of Scottish MPs had not yet arrived in London for the head-counting at the end of the day),* the real issue it seems to us is basically one of economics and finance, and planning. If, as is alleged by some, the government is committed to Steel nationalisation in order to placate the Labour Party's "left wing", then all we can say that the "Left Wing" is more or is more outdated than one had imagined, and that the Parliamentary Labour Party, and Mr. Wilson's Cabinet are not as tough and determined to remain in office as we had imagined.

AS we see it Mr. Wilson has launched his Steel Nationalisation proposals at the onset of his of office (a) because, from purely procedural point of view, the chances are that he can rely on enjoying his slender majority in the division lobbies (as it is, one of his supporters has already broken a leg —but will be able to vote—and another has been rushed off to hospital with appendicitis. What, one may ass will be the position in a year's

*Which was won by the Labour govern-ment with a seven heads lead.

will also have their casualties, and the Liberals unless they are pre-served in cotton wool will have theirs!) and (b) that in practicalfinancial, economic and planningterms unless the Steel Industry be brought under State control the Government feels it cannot implement major reforms as outlined in Wilson's programme (read for him last week by the Queen, with all the pomp and ceremony as demanded by tradition-it is clear that Mr. Wilson is not cutting out that part of the cackle, or the mumbo-

The Labour government's steel plan, as we understand it, is to take over a dozen of the 300 companies alleged by the British Iron and Steel Federation to constitute the iron and steel industry (that dozen, by the way, produce 90 per cent. of this country's steel), and thereby stimulate the kind of competition which will increase productivity and bring down the price of steel, which in turn will make British manufactured goods more competitive in overseas markets, which will increase exports which in turn will raise standards of living in Britain and make it possible to have more hospitals, better conditions for the aged. And more schools; more higher education, more doctors will mean more production, because Britain will lead the industrial word, and that will mean more exports . . . and so on. This is, of course what the Liberal Party want too and if we really could penetrate their stiff upper lips, it's what Sir Alec and his ilk want

During the past years the Iron millions of pounds on advertising how efficient, and competitive Surely for the Industry without which Britain as an industrial nation could not function, to have to resort to these kinds of tactics far from convincing thinking people (as opposed to voters at general elections) of its efficiency should fill them with grave doubts. Even the Tory government which, in opposition, is making a major issue the new Labour government's in-tention to nationalise the major steel companies, created a so-called public body—the Iron and Steel Board-presumably to safeguard the public interest-an admission surely that the public interest was not necessarily panies'? the same as the com-One of the things this Tory creature did was to fix the which it goes without saying, most of the steel firms treated as actual prices. But the Tory-government-appointed Restrictive Practices Practices Court has, to quote from a feature in the Guardian (No Compromise on Steel, by Charles de Peyer).

hung a placard 'against the national interest' round the neck of the industry's, and indirectly the Steel Board's,

pricing arrangements

THE myth that capitalism encourages efficiency, and keeps down prices, through competition, dies hard in spite of the evidence. Millions of people in this country could be relied on, in a referendum to oppose the nationalisation of the to oppose the nationalisation of the Steel Industry on the grounds that, under what they fondly call free-enterprise: the "incentive to work and to produce efficiently and cheaply is greater because there is competition between the different firms". We anarchists have for years and years been trying to years and years been trying to demonstrate with proofs that the ends of the capitalist system is profits and monopoly and that competition is only a means resorted to by capitalist interests among them-selves to establish who among the contenders shall be the monopolist(s) within a certain industry or branch of industry. The Liberals with within a certain industry or branch of industry. The Liberals with their quaint 19th century faith in competition are still thinking in terms of the Morrisses in their small workshops employing fifteen or twenty workmen instead of the Nuffield type organisations directly employing tens of thousands of workers and with ramifications, direct interests, shares, connections direct interests, shares, connections in hundreds of other companies, internationally as well as nationally, employing more hundreds of thou-sands of workers, and with vast capital investments. The Liberals remind one of that Shell petrol ad-vertisement: "That's Shell, that Continued on page 3

THE APPRENTICES' STRIKE

the engineering and shipbuilding indus-tries, taken to back up their demands for higher wages, a 35-hour week, four trade union negotiating rights, did not get the support that was expected.

The strike was strongest on Merseyside and in Manchester and some obvious organising had taken place in Rochdale, where over 100 apprentices, mostly from one factory, decided on a withdrawal of labour. On Merseyside, about 150 strikers decided at a meeting to picket the English Electric factories in Liverpool and Bootle and the Cammell Laird shipyard at Birkenhead.

In Manchester, the employers say that mell Laird shipyard at Birkenhead.

In Manchester, the employers say that about 500 out of a total of about 3,000 apprentices turned up for work and in Huddersfield, over 120 apprentices decided to give their support.

What are the reasons for this lack of support? Employers can threaten, and no doubt did, to break the lads' apprenticeship indentures if they withdrew their no doubt did, to break the lads' apprenticeship indentures if they withdrew their labour. This is no small thing, especially in places like Liverpool and Glasgow where jobs are few. Their trade unions have also attacked any strike action. Difficulties of organisation and of liaison between different areas have withdrawal of labour.

There also seems to be a split in the apprentices own organisation, for at the week-end conference before the strike, four organisers walked out of the meeting after the 385 delegates had turned down their plan for the one-day strike. Joe Bush, one of the four, had been removed from the Manchester District Direct Action Committee because he supported another conference in Manchester on September 27th. Now, he and some of his supporters have formed what is described as a "rival" National Apprentices Wages and Conditions Committee. It is this Committee that called for the one-day strike.

The Chairman of the Manchester Direct Action Committee, Michael Hughes, has accused the other organisation of "factionalism". He and his committee feel that the one-day strike is wrong and that a prolonged stoppage should be organised. They are planning to do this commencing from March 29th and are organising a national liaison committee for all the main industrial areas and to help back up their action, they are setting up a national strike fund.

As I have said, last week's strike did lack the support that was expected, and it seems that some apprentices were torn between striking for the one day and trying to prolong it. In fact there are reports that it did go on for more than the one day, but with little success. It appears from these splits that the inevitable has happened. Political group-ings are trying their utmost to take over ngs are trying their utmost to take over and there have been reports that the National Committee has Communist support. I have also heard that the Trotskyists are in on the act. Of course this is the same old story. Both these organisations will seek to run and control any apprentice rank and file movement and if they do not succeed in this, they will try to smash it.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

ment and if they do not succeed in this, they will try to smash it.

This seems to me to be the present and the biggest danger to any apprentice movement which seeks to act for the apprentices themselves. It is they themselves who must decide on what action is to be taken, not King Street or Clapham Common. This action should also have the moral, financial or outright support, if possible, of the adult work. support, if possible, of the adult workers in the industry.

OVER A YEAR ON STRIKE

The strike at the William Denby dyeworks, near Bradford, has now been going on for over a year. It started when a foreman operated a machine during a tea-break and some fifty workers walked out in protest. This was at a time when work was short and shop stewards had banned all supervisory staff from working machines. The management acted quickly and sent over 250 men and women their cards through the post, all of whom were members of the National Union of Dyers, Bleachers and Textile Workers. In with their cards extile Workers. In with their cards as a letter, part of which read "... ve look forward to a happier future was a letter, part of which read "... we look forward to a happier future with an open shop."

Since then, although some strikers have gone back and some have found other jobs, they have maintained a picket at the factory gates. The 115 men and women strikers have tried to persuade lorry drivers not to deliver or take away goods and the other workers to join them, but so far they have not forced the management to give in. All this time they have remained isolated in their struggle, a struggle which is in fact the basic one for trade union organisation. The management just did not want this in their works, but if other workers had given their support, the story would have been different.
Although the strike is official, no other unions have given any real support to the Denby strikers.

Recently the T.U.C. rejected an appeal to help the dispute and more or less told the Dyers and Bleachers Union to get the strikers back to work, going cap in hand to the management. Just after this, there was some violence on the picket line when vehicles were stoned. This had happened before because the management has been using closed lorries to bring in labour. Now Mr. Gunther, the Minister of Labour, has stepped in and has asked Mr. Sharp, the general secretary of the Dyers and Bleachers union, for a report on the dispute. It is reported that some trade unionists hope for an inquiry into the strike, and that "several ideas" are being discussed for settling the dispute. The management recently turned down one suggestion, put forward by the union, for an independent person to try to get the employers and the union together for talks. After all, Mr. Wright, the Denby Managing Director, and his board are quite happy as things are. They have maintained production, if not increased it, and are paying a higher dividend of 30 per cent compared to 5 per cent last year.

Are these strikers going to have to crawl back and beg for their jobs, or is the support of other workers handling the products of Denbys going to be gained? This is the only way these 115 men and women are going to get their jobs back. Their stand against the management should have the backing of all trade unionists for an injury to one is an injury to all.

P.T.

The Control of Rhodesia

Rhodesian Prime Minister, Mr.

Ian Smith, credit must be given where it is due and he—and his advisers—have played their cards quite well in their attempt to achieve independence from Britain.

from Britain.

First we had the indaba of Chiefs who unanimously supported Mr. Smith's demand for independence with the present constitution. This constitution it has been calculated by Sir Robert Tredgold would mean African rule in sixty years—but if the Smith Government achieves independence one doubts whether sixty years would elapse before African rule were implemented.

Secondly, Mr. Smith, in his referendum of the white population has achieved very strong support for independence which has only confirmed the European attitude shown at the byelections when two European "opposi-

ANARCHY 45 Anarchism in Greek

NARCHY is Published by sedom Press at 2s. the first Saturday of every month

Thought

Welensky, leader of the 'opposition' Rhodesia Party) were treated with near Rhodesia Party) were treated with hear contempt.

In actual fact all that has been shown is that the traditionalist African Chiefs, as salaried Government employees, support the Government. It only needs the comment that "he who holds the purse strings calls the tune" to dispose of the notion that the Chief's attitude is typical of African opinion. It has also been shown that a vast majority of the white population is strongly in favour of of African opinion. It has also been shown that a vast majority of the white population is strongly in favour of Smith's reactionary regime—in defence of the "white man's civilized standards" the settlers will gladly support imprisonment of the real opposition and the banning of the opposition press. We should not forget that these settlers are the ones who claim they are the bastion of the "free world" against Communism. Nor should we forget the loud, long utterances of the settlers when condemning the imprisonment of the opposition in Ghana or the banning of newspapers elsewhere in newly independent African states.

Even though Smith has merely demonstrated the obvious, it has seemed to provide strong gunpowder for his independence plot. One can sit back as an anarchist and watch the clash of the British and Rhodesian Government with detached interest. For myself I want neither the settlers in power in Rhodesia, not the African nationalists of either party or both in power. Nor do I want the Labour Government in power in Britain, nor again do I want a Tory Government.

What I want is that the people of also been an obstacle to a well-supported withdrawal of labour.

There also seems to be a split in the

The MNR was in power and Paz Estenssoro flew in the next day to claim his Presidency. He was given a hero's welcome, while his personal bodyguard went to pump three bullets into a personal enemy of Paz.

long before that the Americans should not be angered with the nationalization of industries. They feared they would not subsist for long if they did. But Juan Lechin stood beside Paz Estenssoro in that packed balcony of the Palace and behind Juan Lechin was a miner prodding him with his rifle, whiswas forced to shout into the microphone, interrupting Paz's speech:

'And we shall nationalize the

Juan Lechin

pering "the mines".

The MNR politicians had decided

IN 1910, Franz Tamayo wrote: "The land makes man; and it is in the land that one must find the causes of his thinking, his work, his morality . . . In the native Yankee, despite his European appearance, what comes up is the Red Indian. Yankee temerity and audacity are not English."

In 1930, the Standard Oil Co. convinced Paraguayan politicians to declare war on Bolivia. The Chaco War lasted for three years, and it was fought in a tropical desert, but it was similar to the holocaust of trench warfare in France in 1914-18. Paraguay was the victor, a big chunk Bolivian territory the prize. Bolivia had 50,000 dead, but Paraguay had most of its youth killed. And then, it was found that the conquered territory had no oil. A few years later, rich deposits of oil were discovered on the Bolivian side of the new Bolivia-Paraguay frontier in the Chaco.

The Chaco War produced an awakening in middle-class Bolivian youth. They discovered that feudalism was not to be tolerated, that it touched them as well as the lower classes. The result of the awakening was to form a new political party, the MNR (Nationalist Revo lutionary Movement).

The founders of the MNR, Carlos Montenegro, Augusto Céspedes, Víctor Paz Estenssoro and others, were all friends. They had gone to the Chaco War drafted from the university. As students, they formed a group and called themselve anarchists. Thus, the beginning of the MNR was tinged with anarchist

Meanwhile, before the Chaco War and after. Simón Patiño was making millions with his tin mines. The other tin barons were Aramayo and Horschild. The biggest exploiter was Patiño, living in New York or Paris.

The miners worked chewing coca to dull the pangs of hunger in their stomachs. The women worked on their backs, breaking up stones with a heavy hammer. They are called "palliris" and their work is similar to the work of convicts. Only that. the hammer is not as heavy as a sledge hammer, a concession Patiño

BOOKS P we can supply

ANY book in print.

Also out-of-print books searched for —and frequently found! This includes saper-backs, children's books and text books. (Please supply publisher's name

f possible).

NEW BOOKS

The Cold War: a Re-appraisal
(ed.) E. Luard 42/The Communism of Mao-Tse-Tung
A. A. Cohen 37/6
Lord Haw-Haw
J. A. Cole 30/Poems
J. C. Powys 30/The True Society F. Tannenbaum 21/Corridors of Power
C. P. Snow 25/-

REPRINTS AND CHEAP EDITIONS

The Torrent of Spring
Ernest Hemingway 16/How Man Became a Glant
M. Hyin & Y. Segal 5/Questions of the Socialist Organisation of the Economy
7.6

V. I. Lenin 7/6
oetic Gems William McGonagall 5/Ghost at Noon Albert Moravia 3/6
hree Fat Men Y. Olesha 4/lustrated English History
G. M. Trevelyan (4 vols.) cach 8/6

The Night of the Iguana Tennessee Williams 3/-

SECOND-HAND

The Food of the People Sir Noel Curtis-Bennett 8/6; Food, Farming and the Future Friend Sykes 6/6; Back Into Power Alistair Horne 6/6; Discipline without Punishment Oskar Spiel 8/6; Promise at Dawn Romain Gary 3/6;

Freedom Bookshop

(Open 2 p.m.—5.30 p.m. daily; 10 a.m.—1 p.m. Thursdays; 10 a.m.—5 p.m. Saturdays).

17a MAXWELL ROAD FULHAM SW6 Tel: REN 3736

BOLIVIA

made to slender feminine wrists

Whenever the miners rebelled with a sit-down strike, or a demonstration, Patiño would send two or three aeroplanes from an airfield in Perú to machine-gun them from the air. The pilots were Yankees, and miners and "palliris" died at the same time. Sometimes, isolated groups of miners, or, in the cities, groups of artisans and workers tried to make a revolution without the blessings of politicians, MNR and others. Failure meant death and they always failed.

Because the Army was still all powerful. It had the weapons and nothing could be done against it without weapons. To remedy the situation, thousands died in the years between the end of the Chaco War. 1933, and 1952. It became a habit to assault police-stations to capture arms. So, five, six or seven men would die so that one man could escape with an old Mauser to hide it in a safe place for the day when the magic word "Revolution" would be on everybody's lips. At that time, a lonely Spanish anarchist went all over the country organizing syndicates, teaching guerilla tactics, even teaching MNR politicians about syndicalism. He was finally

In 1936, Busch became president, placed by a military coup d'etat. But he had been a hero of the Chaco War and he hated feudalism and capitalism. He ousted the generals and tried to stop money leaving the country under Patiño, Aramayo and Horschild. Aramayo and Horschild lived in Bolivia. Sometimes. In one of those times, he managed to make them prisoners and was about to shoot them when one of his ministers convinced him not to. He let them His attempts to stop the barons from making profits only for foreign countries like the United States and England, met with strong opposition. Busch was an impulsive man, as impulsive as Calígula. Brought up in the jungle he had savage customs. When he heard that a priest had raped a small girl, he had him shot immediately. In 1939, he committed suicide or suicide was committed on him. The tin barons were still in power, the Army still their lackey.

Around the same time, Juan Lechín was an office employee in a Patiño mine. He was a very good football player and therefore popular with the miners, who took to football because the English engineers working in the mines had nothing better to offer. In a strike, Lechin supported the miners. When Patiño Lechin could not be bought, he had him fired. To be fired meant to be fired on in a dark night. Lechín hid, becoming the miners' hero and the miners mouthpiece.

The MNR gradually became "the voice of the people". Only those who could read and write were allowed to vote and that meant that out of 3,000,000, only 500,000 could Between coup d'etat and coup d'etat the existing parties held elections. These parties were the Conservative Party, the Liberal, the MNR and the Christian Democrats. The Conservatives represented feud-Liberals the middle class the MNR the left, the Christian Democrats the Church. The Liberal party died in 1939, when Franz Tamayo was elected President. On the day he was to take possession of government, the Army stepped in.
The other parties became small groups satisfied with right-wing rule.
Except the MNR. They managed to have deputies elected for Congress (not in the Irish sense). In the eyes of the people, the rare MNR deputies in Congress became heroes. Especially one Victor Paz Estens-soro. He dared to criticize the tin barons and other injustices. Workers could go to him with their complaints and he would speak up for them in Congress. After a speech, he was forced to go abroad for holidays. He went three times, because in all his deputy career he only made three speeches one could call "freedom-loving".

BACKGROUND STORY BY A BOLIVIAN CORRESPONDENT

In 1944, an obscure Major Villarroel was made President by a military masonic lodge called RADEPA. RADEPA was a fascist group, dedicated to tortures and assassinations, hiding behind Villarroel. He never knew what was going on behind his back but he was blamed for the tyranny of RADEPA. But Villarroel was also under the influence of the MNR. RADEPA allowed it and Paz Estenssoro became one of Villarroel's ministers.

Villarroel was naive and full of good intentions. His character helped him pave the way to hell. He had been in the Chaco War, he had been stuck in an Army office until RADEPA decided he was the sucker they needed. Even so, it took them some time to convince him. He loved his paper work in the Army and he hated to leave it. He continued with his hobby while in power, classifying every paper he could lay hands on. But he also took his job seriously. He was the first one to say publicly that the Indian, Aymaras and Quechuas, had to be free. They worked the land, they should own it, but his talk against serfdom only excited latifundists into a greater love for their land. While RADEPA went on torturing and assassinating.

Meanwhile, Paz Estenssoro was trying to carve a place for the MNR under the man e of Villarroel. By then, Paz was the MNR. They called him El Jefe, the Chief. In 1946, Villarroel was hanged by a mob fanned into violence by communists and members of a newly-formed party: the Falange Socialista Boliviana. It was named Falange in honour of Franco. Villarroel saw the troubles ahead, but he relied on his ministers. When constant agitation against him was beginning to bear fruit, the ministers left him. In that last meeting of ministers, Paz Estenssoro got up and said: "I don't know about you, gentlemen, but I am getting out of here". Before he left to exile himself, he had all telephone communications to Government Palace cut. Villarroel waited in the Palace to hear from him and his other ministers. He did not want to run, he would do so only when all his ministers told him so. The mob came and hanged him and seven of his aides in the square. The Army took over, then the representatives of the tin barons and latifundists. Paz Estenssoro breathed happy in exile: a dead hero of the MNR was no competitor in the

In 1951, the communists, always the same handful in Bolivia, agitated the workers in La Paz. They pro-mised the Revolution. The workers, living in a district called Villa Victoria (influence of the British Railways), came out to throw stones and fire some old Mausers. Army trapped them in Villa Victoria and they sought refuge in a forest of eucalyptus. The Army brought heavy artillery. On the day of the massacre of Villa Victoria, no communist agitator died. They lived in other districts of the city.

In the elections of 1951, Victor Paz Estenssoro was elected President by an almost overwhelming majority. It was a triumph for the MNR politicians by surprise. It was first years of exile had been in the Argentine, where he licked Perón's boots. Perón got tired of his begging and Paz emigrated to Uruguay. Elected President, a military junta stepped in, saying Paz was only fit to be an exile.

In March 1952, the Aymaras were already organised in commandos to make the Revolution. No politician was behind them. They were going to attack La Paz, not only to free themselves, but also the half-castes. But on April 9, the whole working-class came out to the streets. The spontaneous movement caught the MNR poliicians by surprise. It was not what they had planned. When news of the Revolution came out. other cities and the miners joined in spontaneously. Without arms, the people assaulted barracks for them. One could see two hundred men doggedly following one man with a rifle, waiting for him to be killed so that the next one could pick up the weapon. In the first hours, the MNR politicians, Juan Lechín and Siles Suazo leading, tried to stop the revolt. They caught in the avalanche and had to go along with it. On the third day, Siles and Lechín were ready to surrender. They agreed with General Seleme that they would give him the Presidency if the General betrayed the other generals, surrendering the Army. But as they negotiated, news came that the people had de-feated the Army. They hurriedly kicked Seleme out of the house and went to the Palace to take possession. The three days fighting had cost 15,000 lives in La Paz mines!" Most of the mines were exhausted. All the machinery was old. But, so as not to anger the United States, Patiño, Aramayo and Horschild were given full compensation.

Paz Estenssoro's first term was only for four years. His government nationalized the mines, created a National Health Service, drafted the Agrarian Reform. The Aymaras did not wait for decrees, titles and deeds signed by bureaucrats. They had the weapons now. If a politician tried to interfere, he was shot. But those Aymaras and Quechuas, especially the Quechuas living in isolated places, or in weak communities, found that the Agrarian Reform official replaced the feudal landowner, sometimes demonstrating a more gifted capacity for exploitation. The very repressed half-caste has always hated the "indian". Officially, they had to call the Indian "peasant."

During his first term, Paz Estenssoro showed a great capacity for resentment. He created concentration camps to keep the opposition out of the way. He employed eager sadists and many innocents began to fill the camps. He made a Chilean the Chief of Police, who had the habit of keeping a pet tiger in his office. Paz created a special Gestapo office of his own called Political Control, which was inaugurated with whippings with barbed wire. Speechmaking was for Paz an occasion to show his hate and resentment. He used a Spanish mingled with Aymara words. He called the ladies of the upper class liwi-ñuñus" (fallen breasts), an insult no lady of any class likes. He made "liwi-ñuñu" a synonym for capitalist, feudalist, bourgeois and all those who had frustrated his ambition. Because he was aggressive, the people thought he was one of them, as humble as they were. But, Paz soon had the gold reserves of the country stored away in a Swiss bank for safekeeping. In the University, he had been a Professor of Economics. Then he managed to get American American Aid brought 700 American families to live in La Paz. The city has had a stable population of 300,000 ever since 1900. Fornication is a national pastime, but child care is not. Houses were never built, so when the Americans caused rents to go sky-high, housing shortage became acute.

American Aid took strange forms. Most of the organizations had to be paid by the Bolivian government, American staff and all. It was giving money with one hand and taking away with the other. If not, American charity was resorted to, and many organizations fell under American Methodist Church rule Then, the Americans being obsessed with security, made sure no native they employed was a "Red" or even lukewarm leftish. So all the fascists and reactionaries were given jobs and salaries in dollars.

When Paz Estenssoro ended his term, the MNR was still strong despite the corruption. But then, corruption is so ingrained in the people that they had the opportunity to laugh and call a certain politician an idiot because he had resigned after three months of office without pinching a penny.

Is there a Moral to this Story?

AGAIN and again when arguing with A GAIN and again when arguing with communists, anarchists are told "There's nothing wrong with having leaders, it's just that they (these Leaders) must be good leaders." Leaders who will provide the dynamic necessary to lead the working class into the classless, governmentless, moneyless society.

But when we look at the leaders of the workers state (The Soviet Union) what do we find?

what do we find?

Lenin. Well he was a good leader according to the communists.

Trotsky. He was a renegade, a fascist who betrayed the revolution. As were Bukarin, Radek, Kaminey, Zinoviev and almost all the other old bolsheviki.

Stalin. He was a power drunk maniac who created a reign of terror in the Soviet Union:

Beria. He was an agent of western imperialism and also kept a harem (very bad hat).

Malenkov. Who was denounced by Krushchev as an incompetent who made a complete wreck of Soviet agriculture while he was in power.

Krushchev. Who we are now told:

Violated government rules, inflated his own image, filled posts with his family and friends and was guilty of embarrassing international buffoonery. His personal initiative at home and in agri-culture since 1962 was disastrous.

And still the search goes on. JACK STEVENSON

(To be concluded).

November 14 1964 Vol 25 No 35

From Monopoly to Monopoly

Continued from page 1

was" except that the Liberals haven't yet turned their heads to realise that "That's Capitalism" is followed by "that was" in so far as competition, as a basic ingredient of capitalism, is concerned. Perhaps we are not altogether fair to the Liberals' statement on steel published last week-They say, in fact, that they "would be prepared to consider public shareholding in certain major steel firms" as opposed to the Labour Party's plan to take over the major companies which would remove "even the modest amount of competition that exists today" which they also describe as a "state backed cartel" (It will be interesting to see how they vote in the Parliamentary debate!)*

IN this writer's opinion the hey-day of capitalism is over, in part as a result of the unconscious and conscious pressures from the underprivileged but largely and inevitably because capitalism has been, as it were, consumed by its own avidity.

The capitalist system fundamentally existed to serve and protect the material and status interests of a very small section of the community. It is significant and encouraging, to anarchists at least, to note that NO privileged minority in history, pre-capitalist, capitalist or post-capitalist (that is the self-proclaimed "communist" post-1917 part of the world), has succeeded in maintaining a unity, the status quo within its own ranks, or of maintaining its privlege without depending on the support and services of a much larger number of people outside the privileged elite. (People like the leader of the apartheid movement in South Africa, Dr. Verwoerd, has understood the dilemma when he tells his followers that apartheid means, among other things that the whites will have to do their own dirty work-or, more accurately, that they will have to employ whites to do it, and in the long term this logic will be his undoing).

*In fact they voted with the Tory oppo-

The inability of the capitalist class to agree on how they would share the spoils of exploitation has led to the growth of mass production, technology and mass markets as well as mass wars and a cold war economy. It has also led to monopoly capitalism, to a capitalism which is becomimpersonal, official, the State. Millions of working people today in this country are being hired and fired by people who are employees like themselves with no more job 'security" than they have. other millions, who work for bosses they can confront in the flesh, either in the long run drive him into liquidation or into the arms of the mono-polists if they haven't in the meantime succeeded in making him aware a community of interests-in which case he is no longer a boss.

AIDED NO DOUBT by ex-anarchists, pacifists and socialists the 'lesser evil' was elected in the United States by a majority of about fifteen million votes. Barry Goldwater said before the election that the raid on a US Vietnam base by guerrillas (in which 27 jet bombers were destroyed or damaged) might have been made because the Communists feared his election and wanted to keep President Johnson in the White House. Graham Greene, commenting on photographs widely reproduced in the press of Viet-Cong guerrillas being questioned by "persuasion" (to use the Express's word) of a knife held against the body and being ducked into a jar of water, said: "The long, slow slide into barbarism of the Western World seems to have quickened. For these photographs are of torturers belonging to an army which could not exist without American aid and counsel". . .

"THE GUARDIAN" commented on Mr. Wilson's activities that "the government has proved that it means to govern decisively. It has not been deterred by the smallness of its majority from unpopular decisions or from acting when action is necessary. Above all it has not waited until action has become necessary". The Telegraph commented that what Labour had done a Conservative government would have done, "Labour says it has inherited the Conservative problems. It also seems to have inherited their remedies". The Express comments on the 'temporary' import levies, "Sensible and timely. That will be the popular verdict on most of the Government's economic measures. This newspaper has consistently advocated many of them as the best way of dealing with the balance of payments problems. The Tories are broadly in agreement with the proposals, and foreign nations accept their necessity. So there should be no obstacle to implementing them, swiftly and success-Sanity, the CND paper, called the anti-election campaign of the London Federation of Anarchists "grotesque but admirably executed"

ROBERT WILLIAMS, an American negro leader praised the Chinese atom-bomb because "it is not a bomb of those who advocate racial and imperialist intimidation. Chima's bomb is a freedom bomb... It is a bomb of the justice-loving peoples of the world who resist the social evils of these Washington racists who wish to conquer the world". A member of the Zimbabwe Africa National Union said, "The Chinese atom bomb is the bomb of the people and so it is the bomb for peace". . . .

A REPORT of the Medical Research Council stated that the ratio of Strontium 90 to Calcium in the bones of young children doubled in 1963 compared with 1962. The Upsala Seismological Institute reported that it had registered an underground nuclear explosion at Novoya Zemlya in the Arctic Circle. The bomb was equal to at least five kilotons but it was probable that the force was several times greater. The Chinese nuclear explosion on October 16 resulted in a slight rise in levels of radio-activity at several points in Western Canada. Traces of fall-out were also picked up by the Atomic Energy Authority at Chilton, near Harwell, England. The United States conducted a low-yield underground nuclear test in Nevada, their eighteenth this year. McNamara, the US Secretary of Defence said that America could survive a nuclear attack and destroy the attacking nation. America, says Mr. McNamara, has 1,000 bombers, 500 of which are on a fifteen-minute alert, also 800 intercontinental ballistic missiles, whilst Russia has fewer than "one-fourth of this number." Mr. McNamara believes that the US superiority over Russia will continue in the foresceable future. The November 2nd parade in Red Square featured two rockets ninety feet long which it is believed are intermediate range missiles with a range of 1,500 miles, also featured in the parade was an "anti-missile missile" which the Russians say can seek out and destroy hostile missiles before they cross into Russia. At a Kremlin reception Marshal Malinovsky said "Don't touch us. The Soviet Army cannot be pushed around", he further said he did not do as Mr McNamara did "who threatened at any moment to destroy the Soviet Union Those who threaten to destroy other nations are not serious people. Nobody must imagine that they can have an easy victory fighting us"....

THE DEAD of two World Wars were remembered for two minutes. . . .

THE NEW ZEALAND Presbytarian Assembly advised Christians not to address God as 'vou' which was too familiar They should use 'thou' which strongly suggests that when we address God we are not addressing an equal. is a temptation to be too familiar with God and overlook the need for reverence". Archbishop Leo Fishinger of Strasbourg urged the Vatican Council to rehabilitate Galileo. Cardinal Browne a member of the Roman Curia told the Vatican Council that family planning was a subject "about which a discussion cannot usefully be held". The Cardinal said that family planning was a subject for scientific discovery, not theological discussion to solve. "The Church can only await the outcome of present-day research". The 'problem' columnist in the Irish Sunday Independent answered question as to whether Catholics in Ireland may attend non-Catholic schools since Catholics in Britain are allowed to do this. Father Lucius McClean, O.F.M., replies that this is not usually tolerated. "It would seem that in his locality in England there was no Catholie school near enough to his home to make the observance of the law possible or convenient; this is the sort of case in which a bishop will tolerate the attendance of non-Catholic schools, since there is really no choice in the matter". .

AT WEST LONDON COURT a 19-year-old Fulham youth was put on probation for two wears, after a week in custody at Borstal for being found guilty of being found by night in possession of hourse-breaking implements—a pair of gloves—withint lawful excuse. . . .

It is reported in the New Yorker that there is now being marketed a product called "Lady Macbeth Spot Remover" for erasing bloodstains.

JON QUIXOTE

Do They BELIEVE in Capitalism?

IN saying that the hey-day of capitalism is over we are not suggesting that the capitalist system is on its last legs. Far from it. What we are saying is that it is not what it was and for the reasons outlined above. And as the privileged minority grows so also does the struggle for domination and survival by the privileged caucus within it, as its class unity decreases. It is when the enemy is divided that one should The capitalist system today is divided more than ever in its relatively short history. The Labour government far from shaking the foundations of capitalism is determined to strengthen them by staking its future on making capitalism work without "stop-go" crises. No wonder the Stock Exchange received the Labour victory with a "business as usual" smile, and, as we pointed out months ago in these columns, from sections of the Capitalist Press traditionally ultra-Tory, one could detect a calculated defeatism which made it clear that they hoped the Labour Party would win. To our minds these reactions are a clear indication. from what are surely the pillars of capitalism that, if anything, a Labour government would serve as a shot-in-the-arm to capitalism. We agree, in spite of the fact that we shall welcome the possible abolition of the death penalty and any measures that point to the fact that we are becoming more civilised as a community. Under pressure, after all, even capitalists are becoming more civilised. As to whether they will become so civilised as to shun privilege, or whether Mr. Wilson's government will succeed in depriving them of it by legislating (without in the meantime creating a new priv-ileged class) only time can tell. For those who are not prepared to wait.

we should add that anarchists, going right back to their respectable precursors, have always maintained that we won't talk the capitalist class into giving up their privileges, and that government when it legislates one class out of privilege, invariably votes or introduces another in its place.

As a matter of interest and information we would refer readers to a passage in a book which we always consult when we seek to quote the Labour Party without fear of contradiction. We refer of course to The Labour Party in Perspective, by Clem Attlee*, Mr. Wilson's right-hand man at the Cenotaph Last Sunday and his Grand Old Man in the House of Lords (Lord Attlee) to that passage in it where we are told

The Labour Party stands for such great changes in the economic and social structure that it cannot function successfully unless it obtains a majority which is prepared to put its principles into practise. Those principles are so far-reaching that they affect every department of the public service and every phase of policy. The plain fact is that a Socialist Party cannot hope to make a success of administering the Capitalist system because it does not believe in it.

To such a dilemma there can surely be only one solution: "Abolish the capitalist system". How, that is the question all socialists and anarchists should be asking themselves now just as a hundred years ago, but in the context of our time. We shall attempt to show what this means, so far as we see it, in a forthcoming article. (Meantime may we recommend readers to listen to the Reith lectures (BBC) on "The Age of Automation", by Sir Leon Bagrit.)

*London, 1937.

TOO often one pauses to smell a rose without realising that it is but part of a wreath for the dead and that by its very association marked as a companion in corruption, yet the heady scent of the arranged bouquet will always lure us away from the solitary flower fighting to live among the refuse and debris of our cities. Too too often we waste time and space over the major exhibitions for they offer the expensive catalogue, the crowded walls and the free wine and we accept this at the expense of the living painter who after years of work and travail has for two brief weeks managed to find a dealer and a gallery that will grant him the opportunity to show his work to a Town high-tailing it to the Tate or the V & A to examine, with the Town's press, the latest exhumation of some worthy but dead geinus.

So with a polite nod to the Orange and the Rose and the work of Rembrandt at the Victoria and Albert Museum and a cursory summing up of The Painters of the Brucke at the Tate that they lack the warmth and humanity of van Gogh and the humour of Yeats, that their slabs of raw colours anticipate all the worst faults in female abstraction painting, that they succeeded in making the naked figure obscene and that Dusterer Mannerkopk's lithographed Head of a Gloomy Man could sum up the whole work of this school of untutored painters with its pre-propaganda poster work of the neurotic crawling from the dark into the dark.

from the dark into the dark.

Over all this exhibition there hangs the whip of masochistic hatred for themselves and a tainted air of nordic twilight for these are no heralds of Hitler's rackrent Valhalla but a group of petit bourgeois Sunday Painters working off their parochial weltschmer? Individually they are worthless; collectively they have a minor historical value as one sad facet of the Germanic soul, for like the English Surrealists they survive not because they were mediocrities but because they were a collective mediocrity.

At the Portal Gallery at 160 Galler

At the Portal Gallery at 16a Grafton Street, W.I., Derek Guthrie, the 28-yearold painter offers again the innocent charm of his regional paintings. Slowly Guthrie is beginning to emerge from his early limitations as a primitive painter into an artist with a personal vision and a craftsman's hand to record it.

ROUND THE GALLERIES

There is a feeling of space within these frames and his painted horizons open like Keats's windows onto a world of dreams personified. Yet there is much in Guthrie's work that could become slick and tasteless, He has taken over Lowry's habit of fiooding the canvas with a crawling skin of white that by constant and expected repetition now has that look of stale cream.

Lowry made his reputation with his industrial backgrounds. Quaint working class ghettoes forever bathed in a winter's light they belonged to the nostalgic world of W. W. Jacobs and the post-cards of Donald McGill, but the hawking cry of the sleek dealers has forced too much repeating on an exhausted subject and what the old man offers us now is as artificial as Coronation Street. This is Guthrie's problem with his easily painted seas and dark white Cornish skies for, having captured the infinity of his vision, he must now have the courage to attempt the particular. But the problem is his.

the problem is his.

Within the TUC Congress House at 23 Great Russell Street, W.C.L., is an exhibition of paintings and scraper board work by men recently released from prisons. All the work was produced within prisons and is offered for sale to the public at roughly a one week's pay packet for an average painting and one is grateful to report that they are selling even though, by one of those oddities of the fates, the painting Autumn Tints should have been purchased literally from under my nose by a woman magistrate for nine guineas even as I leaned forward to read its number. In this type of exhibition one always enters hoping that here at last its some suppressed work of a major talent finally allowed to flower but as always one finds that here is work neither better nor worse than that painted by the average Sunday Painter who has never fallen foul of the Law. And one is made to acknowledge to oneself that there is no reason why it should be otherwise. I have always held that it is an offence against an artist to offer a different standard of judgment because he has suffered imprisonment when all that we can ask of him is that, like Ibarrola, he manages to convey to the world at liberty the misery and the heartache of those wasted years. For if the artist can achieve anything it is to speak for those who must of necessity go silent to their graves taking their bleeding wounds with them, but of this exhibition only R. B. Hill speaks for the silent with his figures of matted browns and greys imprisoned against a dead background. But there is good work here by men such as E. D. Hawkes with his fine scraperboard work, L. W. Mara with his mosaic street scenes and R. B. Hill with his questing search for truth despite his limitations.

These three painters, all in their early thirties, are repeaters, serving short terms of three years or less, and this work, with the exception of Mr. Hill, was their escape from the realities of their imprisonment. Though painted within prison its subject-matter always lay beyond the bleak and sour walls of their cells, a painted key to an imprisoned heart.

ARTHUR MOYSE.

The Anti-Election Campaign is STILL IN THE RED!
PLEASE SEND WHAT YOU CAN!

NOTTINGHAM.

In Nottingham, a number of comrades, who up until the election had not actually acted together as a group, organised an anti-election campaign. They have made a start, even though they were only active for about a week. Although only a small group they are having meetings and it is hoped there will be an active group in Nottingham.

Penny Weaver writes from Notting-

We put up 20 "Circus" posters around the city centre, including one on the Albert Hall for Harold Wilson's meeting, but this was torn down beforehand. There was a letter in the local paperbut the writer (anonymous) thought the poster had been put up by University students as a Rag stunt—the writer said it "made his day". The letter was pro-bably genuine though it might have been a friendly/not so friendly gag by the Nottingham Socialists. Some painting over of posters was done, but surprisingly there were few political posters, and Bastard ancestors ?

Here and there in the terrifying mish-mash that has been Senator Goldwater's apology for a political creed, may be found, almost drowned by the surrounding ooze, phrases that no libertarian could disagree with and yet which have always been far more the shibboleths of the further Right than of true libertarians.

When the Senator attacks bureaucracy and centralisation, don't we give him a baffled and cautious cheer? When he attacks the infringement of states' rights

don't we hear echoes of Pi y Margall's idea of dividing and subdividing power regionally till the state is destroyed? In American history such ideas have an impeccable right-wing pedigree-when President Jackson toasted 'Our Federal Union, long may it be preserved', who

FREEDOM PRESS

SELECTIONS FROM TREEDOM'

2 1952: Postscript to Posterity

3 1953: Colonialism on Trial 4 1954: Living on a Volcano 5 1955: The Immoral Moralists 6 1956: Oil and Troubled Waters

7 1957: Year One—Sputnik Era 8 1958: Socialism in a Wheelchair 9 1959: Print, Press & Public

Vol 10 1960: The Tragedy of Africa Vol 11 1961: The People in the Street Vol 12 1962: Pilkington v. Beeching

Each volume: paper 7/6 cloth 10/6 The paper edition of the Selections is available to readers of FREEDOM

PUBLICATIONS

Vol

Vol

at 5/6 post free

PROUDHON

E. MALATESTA

Anarchy Paper 1/-

HERBERT READ

ALEX COMFORT

PAUL ELTZBACHER

RUDOLF ROCKER

Nationalism and Culture

HARLES MARTIN

JOHN HEWETSON

loth 12/6

A tribute cloth 5/-

E. A. GUTKIND

Towards a Free Society 2/6

Delinquency 6d.

What is Property? cloth 42/-

ALEXANDER BERKMAN ABC of Anarchism paper 2/6

Poetry & Anarchism paper 2/6

Anarchism (Seven Exponents of the Anarchist Philosophy) cloth 21/-

Sexual Freedom for the Young 6d. Ill-Health, Poverty and the State cloth 2/6 paper 1/-

Nineteen-Seventeen (The Russian Revolution Betrayed) cloth 12/6 The Unknown Revolution (Kronstadt 1921, Ukraine 1918-21)

The Expanding Environment (illustrated) boards 8/6

GEORGE BARRETT
The First Person (Selections) 2/6

Marie-Louise Berneri Memorial Committee publications: Marie-Louise Berneri, 1918-1949:

Journey Through Utopia cloth 16/- paper 7/6 Neither East Nor West

DEAR COMRADES,

Three of us leafletted early morning on election day in the Market Square (City Centre) giving out "Don't Vote-Yes I've often wondered why we bloody well vote." We had planned to leaflet door to door in a specific area, but this never came off.

General Impression-not very greatone feels that it was not as much as it should have been. We should have worked harder! Four of us did the main work, two others helping one night; 3/4 people did not give their promised support. But we must bear in mind that this was our first activity and we don't know one another very The election (lack of) activity has by no means put us off. In fact we are meeting to discuss setting up a newsheet or magazine.

THE ORPINGTON ANTI-ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

The Orpington anti-election campaign took place during the two weeks immediately preceding the Election and con-replied 'Our Federal Union, next to our liberties most dear'? Thoreau? Actually it was John C. Calhoun, the Governor Wallace of his day, who only just missed the presidency. Admittedly by 'Southern rights' Calhoun really meant negroes' wrongs-but unless we happen to know this we are impressed by him, and when we get to know this we are,

or should be, horrified, not least by the

to be seen in our history too. Again, who is Mr. John Christie talking of when he writes 'To . . . a strong individualist with a hearty contempt and hostility towards governmental interference with his concerns, any concentration of power in the state was suspect.' ('Wilkes, Wyvill and Reform'), Godwin? Well significantly, the century is right, but he is actually referring to the 'Tory' country gentleman. Then did you know that the most articulate opposition to the Metropolitan Police Force's creation came from the Tory Party? Anarchism is born of many thinkers, not all of whom would acknowledge their offspring; are we to acknowledge one or

Yours fraternally,

1,895

90

1.985

DEFICIT £851

ANON.

£3.080

2 229

two bastard ancestors?

Better!

Weeks 43 & 44

Weeks 1-42

Week 43 & 44

New Subscriptions:

INCOME:

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

AT 7th NOVEMBER 1964

EXPENSES: 44 weeks at £70

Sales & Sub. Renewals:

Weeks 1-42 (197)

Week 43 & 44 (12)

London, N.W.8.

Of course this same phenomenon is fact that we were impressed.

LETTER

sisted of about 70 posters, 300 "Why It's all a double X" stickers, the sale of 50 "Election Guyed", and two letters to the Orpington and Kentish Times, neither of which were printed.

Long before the election campaign began, we had our problems. The first was that much of the anti-election material attacked the parties or partyleaders; and we knew that a great many Orpington voters were not going to vote for a party, but for a man-Eric Lubbock. Therefore, a lot of our appeal would be lost. Secondly, it is very hard to explain to even the most enlightened Orpingtonian that politicians are iniquitous creatures, when Lubbock has, in fact, done a great deal for Orpington-and has been seen to Money would not allow us to run a full-scale campaign, geared perhaps to a "Lubbock's a good man, but even he " leaflet, and so we weren't able to employ any but the most rudimentary tactics

The only printed recognition of our existence came in the Evening News, and was a completely false accusation by the Tory Agent that "an anarchist movement, known to have been active in the area" was responsible for tearing down and otherwise ruining 700 Tory posters, and blackwashing quite a few Liberal ones. We sent a letter to the local paper proclaiming our innocence of so irresponsible and un-anarchistic an act, and this was printed on 22nd.

On the whole, we had felt that our efforts, after much pushing, had taken wings. But after stalking around in the deathly suburban dark with foxy eyes. and sticky fingers, we were rewarded with one of the highest polls recorded in the country.

ROGER HEWITT.

ANTI-ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN HAYES.

During and in days leading up to the general election we did not have much opportunity to do a lot as our numbers were fewer than usual.

We first visited the police station to ask of laws concerning leafleting at polling booths.

They enumerated following with which they could charge us.

Contact Column

Glasgow Club

Would Glasgow comrades please note that a fund has been set up with a view to acquiring premises for a Libertarian Social Club in Glasgow. 2/6 weekly contributions. Enquiries and contributions to. Joe Embleton, Thrush Villa, Common-head, Airdrie.

Meetings 'Religion in the School'. National Religion in the School'. National Secular Society.

RICHMOND, Surrey, Tuesday, Nov. 17th, 8 p.m., Parkshot Rooms, Parkshot (near Richmond Station) Speakers: Micklewright, Dev. Flint. POPLAR, London, E.3., Friday, Nov. 20th, 8 p.m., Bromley Public Hall, Bow Road, E.3. (opp. Poplar Town Hall) Speakers: Tribe, Ellis Town Hall). Speakers: Tribe, Ellis, Speakers: McIlroy, Johnson, Gold-

LONDON, S.W.I., Alliance Hall Caxton Street (St. James' Park Underground, Monday, November 30th, 7.45 p.m. Speakers: Knight, Pinter, Tribe, Collis.

Paris, France. Given by 'Le Monde Libertaire', at Palais de la Mutualité, 24 rue Saint-Victor, Paris (V), Tuesday, 17th November, at 8.30

Fred Grocott of Gosport (old friend Fred Grocott of Gosport (old Friend of Matt Kavanagh) is in Homeopathic Hospital. Queen Square, London, W.C.1., and would like visitors at 7—7.30 Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, 2 p.m.—3.30 p.m., Thursdays and Saturdays, 2 p.m.—4 p.m. Sundays.

Odd Jobs

Cleaning painting re-decorating.

Cleaning, painting, re-decorating, Anywhere in London area, A. W. Uloth, 30 Arundel Gardens, London,

Now Ready Number Five of "Minus One" (minus one), the individualist anarchist journal. Obtainable from Free-

ANARCHIST FEDERATION OF BRITAIN

Co-ordinating Secretary: Tom Jackson, 10 Gilbert Place, London, W.C.1

London Anarchist Group

"Lamb and Flag", Rost Street, Covent Garden, W.C.2. (near Garrick and King Streets: Leicester Square tube), 7.45 p.m. NOV 15 To be announced.

NOV 22 Ted Kavanagh on: Kronstadt.

NOV 29 John Rety on: Anarchist Federation of Britain: What Next?

DEC 6 A. Rajk on: The Myth of anarchism and revolution.

REGIONAL FEDERATIONS AND GROUPS

Birmingham Group

Peter Neville, 12 South Grove, Erdington, Birmingham, 23.

Bristol Federation

Irregular meetings enquiries to c/o Martin Howells, 7 Richmond Dale,

Dundee Group

Contact Rod Cameron, 6 Westfield Place, Dundee.

Enquiries to: Douglas Trueman, 13 Northumberland Street, Edinburgh 3. Meetings every Monday, 7.30 p.m. All

Hayes and District Contact Mike Wakeman, school during the mock election. Well (and figures don't mean much), out of 450 electors, 150 abstained or spoilt

Open meeting. First Friday each month, 8 p.m., British Oak, Westbourne Park

Clifton, Bristol 8.
Meets Sundays (weather and circumstances permitting), 3.30 p.m. on the Downs (Blackboy Hill).

Edinburgh Group

Glasgow Federation Enquiries to Ronnie Alexander, c/o Kennedy, 112 Glenkirk Drive, Glasgow,

12 Hoppner Road, Hayes, Middlesex. Manchester Group

Meetings alternate Tuesdays. Details from Graham Leigh, 5, Mere Close, Sale, Cheshire.

Merseyside Federation Enquiries: Vincent Johnston's, 43 Millbank, Liverpool 13.

Tunbridge Wells Group Meets 1st and 3rd Thursday in month at J. D. Gilbert-Rolfe, 4 Mount Sion, Tunbridge Wells, Sussex, 8 p.m.

Typeside Federation

Enquiries: David Douglass, 6 Laski Gardens, Wardley, Gateshead, 10.

BRADFORD

Anyone interested in Anarchist discus sion group and folk-singing contact Sid Frisbee, 100 Bierley House Avenue, Bierley, Bradford.

Roxborough, 44 Langley, Watford.

Anyone interested, get in touch with Richard Graham, c/o 26 Bryn Llwyd, Caernarvon Road, Bangor, Caernarvonshire.

BRENT, MIDDLESEX

Enquiries to Jeff Nichols, 115 Slough Lane, Kingsbury, Middlesex.

BEXLEY, KENT

Enquiries to P. J. Wildish, 2 Cumbrian Avenue, Barnehurst, Bexley Heath, Kent.

CANADA

VANCOUVER, British Columbia

Monthly Forum-Last Sunday of each month. Enquiries to Bill Fletcher, 104 West 11th Avenue, Vancouver.

DISCUSSION MEETINGS

Rumbold Road, S.W.6 (off King's Road), Last Thursday in month:

At George Hayes', 174 McLeod Road, S.E.2.

2nd Friday at Brian Leslie's, 242 Ames

Avenue, S.W.2 (Streatham Hill,

3rd Friday of each month at 8 p.m. at Donald & Irene Rooum's, 148a Fellows Road, Swiss Cottage, N.W.3. Wimbledon S.W.19, Last Saturday of each month. 8 p.m. Phone WIM 2849. Orpington Anarchist Group

Knockholt, Nr. Sevenoaks, Kent. Every six weeks. Next meeting, Sunday 6th December, 2.30 p.m. at "Greenways", Knockholt. Phone: Knockholt 2316. Brian and Maureen Richardson's.

Freedom weekly

FREEDOM is published 40 times a year, on every Saturday except the first in each month.

ANARCHY (2/3 or 30 cents post free), a 32-page journal of anarchist ideas, is published 12 times a year on the first Saturday of the month.

Postal Subscription Rates to FREEDOM

Special Subscription Rates for 2 copies FREEDOM 1 year (40 issues) 30/- (U.S. $4.50) 6 months (20 issues) 15/- ($2.25)

l year (40 issues) 45/- ($7.00)

Combined Subscription to FREEDOM and ANARCHY

and ANARCHY
12 months 40/- (U.S. & Canada $6.00)
6 months 20/- ($3\)
3 months 10/6 ($1.50)
Special Subscription Rates for 2 copies
12 months 63/- (U.S. & Canada $9.00)
6 months 31/6 ($4.50)

AIR MAIL Subscription Rates (FREEDOM by Air Mail, ANARCHY by Surface Mail) 12 months 65/- (U.S. & Canada $9.50)

Choques, P.O.s and Money Orders should be made out to FREEDOM PRESS crossed a/c Payee, and addressed to the publishers:

Freedom Press

176 MAXWELL ROAD LONDON, S.W.6, ENGLAND Tel: RENOWN 3736,

DEFICIT FUND Hove: A.R. 2/6: Stevenage: V.M. £1: Ox-ford: Anon.* 5/-; Woldingham: F.B.* 5/-; Edinburgh: B.J. 10/-; Dar-es-Salaam: D.J.

5/6: Worcester: M.S. 5/-; Ipswich: T.R. 10/-: Wolverhampton: J.K.W.* 2/-; J.L.*
3/-: Cheltenham: L.G.W.* £1: N.W.1: F.L.
5/-: Pittsburgh: A.R. £8/17/7; Hong Kong:
11/-: Southend: P.O. 5/-: Nuneaton: D.H.
12/8: Oxford: Anon.* 5/-; Hayes: Anarchist 12/8 Oxford: Anon.* 5/-: Hayes: Anarchist Group* 5/-: New York: J.S. £!/8/-: Bromley: L.A.W. £! Knockholt: B.R. £!/-/6: Woldingham: F.B.* 5/-: Bridgewater, U.S.A.: R.H. 4/9: Oxford: Anon.* 5/-: Peterborough: F.W. 3/6: Hindhead: F.N.F. 5/-: S.W.7: D.L. £2: Stoke-on-Trent: R.B. 8/2: Slough: E.C. 2/2: Wolverhampton: J.K.W.* 2/-: J.L.* 3/-: St. Austell A.J. 5/-: Reading: P.L. 5/-: Jesmond: H.N. 10/-: Cheltenham: L.G.W.* 10/-: Enfield: T.S. 1/-: Walthamstow: B.C. £!; Edinburgh: A.J. 5/-: Lewes: R.G. £!: Glasgow: J.M. 5/-: Hong Kong: M.S. 4/8: London: S.E.P. 2/6: Chelmsford: C.A. 7/-: Colne: W.L. 2/-: New York: H.B. 4/-: Northampton: P.D. 5/-: S.E.17: D.S. 5/-: N.1: T.C. £!: Seffron Walden: £5: Walton-on-Thames: D.F. 10/
TOTAL £34 17 7
Previously acknowledged £647 6 3

Previously acknowledged £647 6 3 1964 TOTAL TO DATE £682 3 10

*Denotes Regular Contributors.

o Printers, Leaden. E.I.

MIKE WAKEMAN. *

IAN ROXBOROUGH, a Watford school-their papers. [The Tories got in]."

Secretary N.H.A.G., 5 Colville Houses, London, W.11.

Road, W.2

WATFORD-HERTS

NORTH WALES

Micklewright.
READING, Tuesday, Nov. 17th,
8 p.m., Rainbow Hall, Cheapside.

man. Crew.

Annual Gala

precisely.

dom Press, price sixpence.

London
If you wish to make contact let us know.
Accommodation Wanted
Student couple with two-year-old seek furnished accommodation, any sort, anywhere in London. Reply: Jenny James, Caravan 53, Hawley Manor, Hawley, near Dartford, Kent.

from Monday to Thursday. (Charville Lane station which we partially barricaded during local election was patrolled by eight or nine polecemen).

We made no attempt to leaflet booths as immediate arrest would have been inevitable and to decrease our numbers

Loitering with intent. Causing public nuisance.

the peace.

Litter. Obstruction.

tion.

Incitement to cause a breach of

They omitted a law which I believe exists stating that no political propaganda may be distributed within the vicinity of polling station (information of this law obtained from the N.C.C.L.).

leave we would be arrested for obstruc-

The officer then said if we didn't

This enquiry seemed to worry the police as they patrolled the polling stations to be, of Hayes and district even more didn't seem practical. We tried canvassing very unsuccessfully, most doors were slammed in our faces

We went out fly-posting and painting C.D. and government buildings successfully, as it was on the front page of the local rag (quote "the police hope to apprehend the criminals in the near future).

We disposed of, through letter-boxes and in street corners:-1,000 Anarchist Alternative.

600 Why Vote? 600 Hazards of voting. 200 Assorted leaflets from Scottish Anarchists.

We had ready hay bales with placards of "Don't Vote You Sheep" in a field next to Charville Lane station but when we went to barricade the station we found the police had removed our bales and the placards had been burnt. This is about all we had done as on Thursday we were stopped by police and threatened by political parties everywhere we went.

boy writes :-"I ran an anti-vote campaign at

Netting Hill Anarchist Group

PROPOSED GROUPS

Anyone interested get in touch with Ian Roxborough, 44 Tanners Hill, Abbots

OFF-CENTRE LONDON

3rd Wednesday of each month at Jack Robinson and Mary Canipa's, 21, bury Avenue Nr. Station).

Anarchy monthly

1 year (40 issues) 20/- (U.S. $3) 6 menths (20 issues) 10/- ($1.50) 3 menths (10 issues) 5/- ($0.75)

Midded by Prendom Press, U.S. Marriell Read, London, S.W.L.