REFUGE OF OPPRESSION.

From the National A. S. Standard. A SOUTHERNER AND A SLAVEHOLDER'S LETTER. The following letter has been put out of our disposal... I have no objection to its being published in your paper.

THE LIBERATOR.

LETTER FROM JAMES HAUGHTON TO HERBERT C. WRIGHT.

Dear Herby, I have just read your letter in the Liberator... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

Look at Jefferson Davis, the son-in-law of Gen. Taylor... I read your extract about the meeting of the Lib. Soc. in New York... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

Well, really, if you had but a little more of the spirit of the Lib. Soc. in New York... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

THE WHIG RATIFICATION.

We have just returned from the meeting, which was addressed by ex-Governor Jones... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

OLD ORGANIZATION MEETING.

Our brethren were stepped in to shake hands with our old friends, the counterites, and took some of their speeches... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

THE WHIGS AND GEN. TAYLOR.

Extracts from a Speech delivered at a crowded and highly enthusiastic meeting in the Tremont Temple, Boston, June 30, by the Hon. Joshua A. Key... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

COMMON PARADOXES.

A Republican slaveholder. An anti-slavery Constitutionist. A free-will convert to Christianity... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

OPPRESSION IN THE INDIES.

The measures of Hayti and Martinique seem to have no lessons to the tyrants of the Spanish Colonies... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

THE DELAWARE GAZETTE.

The Delaware Gazette, speaking of the reception of the Lib. Soc. in New York... I am glad to hear that you are so warmly interested in the cause of the oppressed.

POETRY. For the Liberator. THOUGHTS. Suggested on returning from an Anti-Slavery tour, begun at Pleasant Island, Georgia, October 24, 1858.

Another anniversary. His hand and passed away. While the great nation devotes her independent day.

The morn was bright and beautiful, And nature bright above. To look to heaven's blue dome, Sweet 'tis a bliss to roam.

Whence, gathered in a glorious cause, The champions of right. Our country with faithful devotion, Our country's willing blight.

And fervent hearts lit up by joy At that prophetic sign, Praising that the bonds, soon, Would cease in freedom's light.

Uphove upon the odorous breeze, The incense of that song. Went forth from consecrated lips, A song that happy

And on three o'clock, of blue hue, A brother of our race, Those friends were called, and in chains, And on three o'clock, of blue hue,

Although I heard their wailing tones, Conspiring with their grief, And Heaven, I woe, will heed their moans, And I will answer their wrong.

The Constitution, traced in blood, We pride for the same, A home in Southern freedom, And on that soil a grave.

The flag of Liberty unfurled, The pleading of the slave, Still waxes in solemn melody, Nor needs his bitter wail.

Three million souls 'en now are clenched In dark oppression's fangs, And 'er the land of freedom, A pall of mourning hangs.

The mother with her scattered brood, Is doomed in chains to toil, And when the way is dark, Their manacles are the spoil.

Their rice fields and their cotton fields, Will yield them, in your future woe, And the gathering storm, The aged sire is weeping there,

On whom life's sanctuaries Broken that a few brief hours Will close his weary day.

If aught can claim our quenchless tears, 'Tis the pleading of the slave, Whose hallowed bones repose, For rest within the grave.

I love to think that glorious day, When, hastening on our way, We'll see the land, repentant, will Her sable sons embrace.

Then, only then, can all unite, And with freedom's law, We'll say, let us enjoy An independent day.

M. FULLERTON. From Howitt's Journal. WE KNOW BETTER. BY HELEN ATHERTON.

Why, because we are to be exalted, Because we are to be exalted, Therefore we must not do to think, And have no right to learning?

But, think God, we are to be exalted, But, think God, we are to be exalted, All our sins and our temptations, O, to be sure it's right—right—right!
