Outline of process

Candidates were required to gain a minimum 20 valid nominations in order to progress to the One Member One Vote stage.

Balloting ran from 16th to the 30th of June, using the Multiple Non-Transferable Vote system, which is the system used for local council elections in England. This is a non-preference based system, meaning voters were able to put a cross by four candidates' names, without ordering them by number.

Each ballot was protected by a unique code in order to guarantee the security of the ballot.

Turnout was 8580 eligible voters.

Scrutineering was overseen by the Returning Officer. Invitations to attend were extended to representatives of all the campaigns and a number of NCG members, who were then supplied with encrypted copies of the raw vote to allow subsequent verification of the published results.

Our constitution states that at least two of the members elected from each division should be women, and at least one should self-identify as BAME (Black, Asian, ethnic minority). If the 20 members who are elected do not include one person who self-identifies as disabled, one person who self-identifies as LGBT+ and three young persons under 30, then up to 4 more places will be elected to ensure these groups are represented. However, since all of these requirements were satisfied by the raw results, no further adjustments or additional elections are necessary.

The Returning Officer was Tony Kearns.
