

Contents

Acknowledgments

Introduction Why Write About Horror?
 What Is Horror Fiction?
 American and British Horror Literature Before the Twentieth Century
 International Horror

Part One: 1901-1939, The Golden Age

Chapter 1 British Writers
 The “Classical” Tradition(s)
 The Machen Quartet
 Breaks with Tradition
 Naturalism and the Psychological Ghost Story
 Traditionalists and Holdovers
 New Voices
 The War Years
 Voices of the Twenties
 The End of the Golden Age

Chapter 2 American Writers
 The Great Age of the American Ghost Story
 East Coast vs West Coast
 The East Coast School
 Sexism and Great Age Content
 East Coast Membership
 The West Coast School
 Exceptions
 After Weird Tales

Chapter 3 Horror in the Pulps
 Before Weird Tales
Weird Tales
 H.P. Lovecraft
 The Weird Tales Crew
 What Lovecraft and Weird Tales Wrought, and What They Did Not Outside of Weird Tales
 The Shudder Pulps
 The End of Weird Tales’ Golden Age

Chapter 4 Horror in the Mainstream
 The Creation of the Mainstream
 Before the Great War
 America
 England
 After the War

Chapter 5 Outside the Anglosphere

Africa: Angola, Lesotho, Nigeria, South Africa
 The Americas: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela.
 Asia: China, India, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Philippines
 Europe: Austria, Belgium, Croatia, Czech Republic, Finland, France,
 Germany, Italy, Latvia, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Russia, Spain
 Middle East: Egypt, Iran, Turkey

Part Two: 1940-1970, Mid-Century Frights

- Chapter 6 American Writers
 Ray Bradbury
 Robert Bloch
 Richard Matheson
 Charles Beaumont
 The Group
 Fritz Leiber
 Mid-Century Writers of Horror
 One-Shots
- Chapter 7 British Writers
 The Changing Landscape
 The 1940s
 The 1950s
 The 1960s
- Chapter 8 Horror in the Mainstream
 The Effects of the War
 American Writers
 Writers of the United Kingdom
- Chapter 9 Horror on the Cheap
 Pulp and Digests
 Paperbacks
 Comic Books
- Chapter 10 Outside the Anglosphere
 Africa: Angola, Congo, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Lesotho, Nigeria, Senegal, South Africa
 The Americas: Argentina, Barbados, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa
 Rica, Cuba, Ecuador, Guyana, Mexico, Uruguay, Venezuela
 Asia: India, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, Philippines
 Europe: Belgium, Czech Republic, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Spain
 The Middle East: Israel, Syria, Turkey

Part Three: 1971-2000, The Boom Years

- Chapter 11 Horror as Big Business
 American Bestsellers
 The British Response

- In the Mainstream
- Chapter 12 The Boom and Bust of the 1980s & 1990s
Full-Timers
Part-Timers, Tourists, and Dabblers
R.P.G. Fiction
- Chapter 13 Short Fiction Authors, 1971-2000
From Before the Boom
The 1970s Generation
The 1980s Generation
The 1990s Generation
- Chapter 14 Horror for Children
1900-1960
The 1960s
The 1970s
The 1980s
The 1990s
- Chapter 15 Outsiders Writing Horror
African-American Writers
Australian Aboriginal Writers
Latinx Horror
Native American Horror
Queer Horror
- Chapter 16 Outside the Anglosphere
Africa: Congo, Guinea, Kenya, Mauritania, Nigeria, Rwanda, Senegal, South Africa
Americas: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Ecuador, El Salvador, French Guiana, Guatemala, Guyana, Mexico, Peru, Puerto Rico, Québec, Uruguay
Asia: China, India, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, Pakistan, Philippines, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand
Europe: Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Latvia, Poland, Russia, Spain, Switzerland
Middle East: Egypt, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Kuwait, Syria, Turkey

Epilogue

Notes

Selected Bibliography

Index