

Reddit is home to over 100,000 communities.

Popular shows top posts from many different communities.

This top content is voted on by redditors. It's a curation of the day's best photos, videos, and discussions, best known as "the front page of the Internet!"

1

Known as subreddits, each community has a unique r/ name.

You can also find subreddits for news, your favorite TV shows, sports, fashion, animals, memes—just about everything!

2

If you appreciate content, give it a boost by upvoting!

Upvote posts and comments that contribute — and downvote those that don't. Posts and comments with more upvotes get better placement and more views!

3

What's in a Reddit post?

Community

The subreddit in which it was posted

Username

The person who posted it

Title & content

The good stuff; what the post is about

Upvotes

Helps posts rise to the top of a feed

Comments

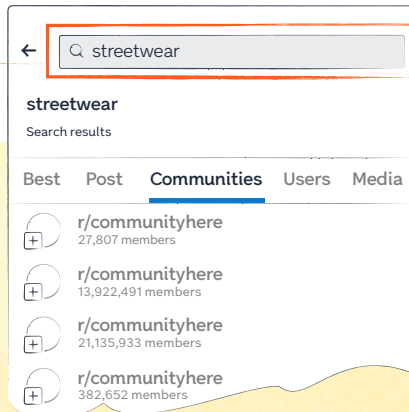

The discussion about the post

Find your communities and join them!

Use the Reddit search bar to find a particular interest or community.

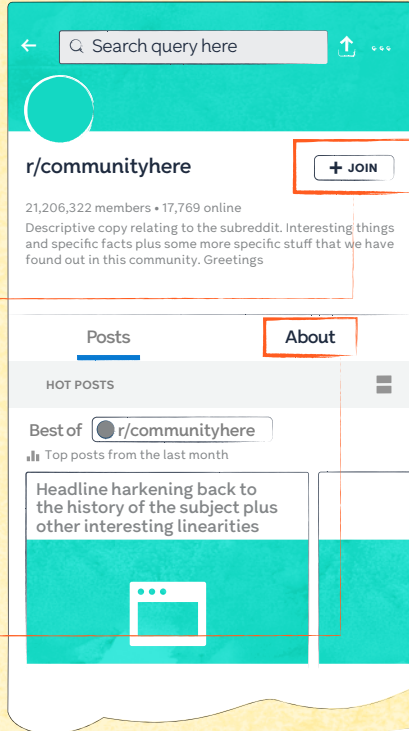

1

Try scrolling through Popular to see where trending posts are coming from.

Join communities by clicking join! (They'll also be added on your homepage.)

2

There are even communities dedicated to helping you find subreddits based on content or the type of conversation you're looking for — such as r/findareddit.

Get to know your new community! Subreddits have unique rules and guidelines to follow.

3

Every piece of content on Reddit is posted to a subreddit. Each subreddit contains rules for how to post content, interact with other users, and generally be a good community member. Always check the subreddit rules before posting!

How to talk Reddit

TL;DR

“Too Long; Didn’t Read”

Summarizes a long body of text

AMA

“Ask Me Anything”

Indicates a Q&A

ELI5

“Explain Like I’m 5”

When you need a complicated answer in simple terms

OP

“Original Poster”

The person who created the post

TIL

“Today I Learned”

Usually found within the r/todayilearned community

[OC]

“Original Content”

Signals the content in the post was created by OP