REFUGE OF OPPRESSION.

From the N. York Observer's Report of the Proceedings of the Annual Convention of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, recently held in New York.

SLAVERY.

Dr. Bemis, from the Committee on the relation of the Indian Missions to slavery, made a report upon the subject. He stated that the Board had been very diligent and able with which Mr. Treat, the Secretary, had performed the duties of his office. He also stated that the Board had been very diligent in its efforts to suppress the African slave trade.

The report carefully abstained from expressing any opinion upon the question of the African slave trade. It was very much diversified among the members of the Board, and the views of the Board were not uniform. It was also stated that the Board had been very diligent in its efforts to suppress the African slave trade.

At this moment Rev. Mr. Blanchard rose and addressed the Convention. He stated that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board, and that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board. He also stated that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board.

Dr. E. Beecher thought we should serve best our country by the abolition of slavery. He stated that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board, and that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board. He also stated that he had been very much interested in the report of the Board.

COUNTRYMEN ARE ALL MANKIND.

OCTOBER 6, 1848.

In 1844 we had a clear majority of 81 against slavery. It has been a standing rule for the last twelve years, that Congress is in the hands of the President. It is in the hands of the President.

The friends of Taylor had a meeting on Saturday last, and you shall have an appointment to the Court of St. James—and I would not go for fear of the integrity of the President. He is in the hands of the President.

POETRY.

For the Liberator.

EVENING HYMN TO NATURE.

The solemn hour of midnight
Is haunting on my soul
As they clouds are falling
Altho' the pale moon's face
Is bright in silver gleam
In the hush of silent night
Yet I hear the whispering hymns
Of Nature's sweet-voiced lay.

Yes, evermore she saith
Her ethereal form
In voice of rock and water
O'er mountain, plain and sea;
Still echoing, when slumber
Has wray the weary eye
And heaven's starry canopy
Is over us unheeded.

An emblem of the watchfulness
Which ever o'er us
Though we are cold forgetfulness
Are left of all beside;
Speaking in tones of hope and love,
And waking in us
The powers which latent slumber
With heavenly beauty robe.

Oh Nature! pure and holy
Are all thy forms and hues
And every grief and sadness
Thy compasses beguile;
And in my heart I bless thee
For evermore thy light impart,
And for the flowers that plant
Deep in my dearest heart.

The flowers of hope and memory
In shades that do not wear
And kind accents the heart's ear,
When his seems taking light
And sweetly do bloom in light
Shining their perfume all around,
Making the future now.

Then let our song be cheerful,
And in a sweet accord,
With Nature's blessed voice
Allure our hearts to God,
Who gloriously can render
Our days of darkness bright
By the flowers that plant
Deep in my dearest heart.

JOHN LITTLEJOHN.
As sweet as a lily,
John Littlejohn stands and sings,
Upright and laughing, smiling young,
He gave good cheer, and paid his way,
He thought for himself, and for his
Whenever a vessel starts to pass,
Instead of angry words,
He took his hammer, and with a frown,
"The coin is yours, said it down."

John Littlejohn was firm and true,
He could not cheat him in two and two,
When foolish eyes might and might,
Darkened and twisted the light,
He saw through the mist of their speech
And the simple truth beyond their reach;
He crept their logic, said with a frown,
"Your coin is yours, said it down."

John Littlejohn maintained the right,
Through storm and calm in the World's despite;
When folk or quack desired his vote,
Dosed him with argument, brand by rote,
Or by coaxing, or by force,
He gave his support to the wronged slave,
"My, say," said John with an angry frown,
"Your coin is yours, said it down."

When he told that kings had a right divine,
And that the people were their own;
That nobles should be free to rule,
That the poor were unwiped by school,
That crooked laws were the proper fate
Of all but the wealthy and the great,
John shook his head, and swore with a frown,
"The coin is yours, said it down."

When he told that the world was just
A false and crooked play,
That a decent hope of a good
Might excuse departure from rectitude,
That a lie was of small offence,
"My, say," said John, with a sigh and frown,
"The coin is yours, said it down."

When he told that the pulp, or the press,
That Heaven was a place of cathartes,
That none but those who were
That each with the orthodox at prayer,
And held all virtues, out of their pale,
And idle words of no avail,
John gave a frown, and swore with a frown,
"The coin is yours, said it down."

Whenever the world our eyes blind
With false presence of such a kind,
With humbug, cant, and bigotry,
Or a species that passes for
When wrong dressed up in the guise of right,
And darkness passing itself for light,
Let us imitate John, and swear with a frown,
"The coin is yours, said it down."

From the True Witness,
LIVE TO DO GOOD.
To do good—this world should be
But one united family,
And one brotherhood,
Helping the neighbor feel,
And universal good.

But selfish aims too intrude,
And thoughtful words, of selfish strife,
Engender enmity;
And hence the quarrels and factions stir,
Marring the happiness of life,
Which every day we see.

"To aid to find the evil seed
So thickly sown, and poisonous weeds,
In battle for the good we see;
And witness passion's harsh control
Crash the affections of the soul
Research in its own life."

REFORMATORY.

THE HARMOH MOB.

Hawkes, Sept. 20, 1846.

I am frequently in circumstances that remind me of a passage in scripture and history—Jer. vi. 10: "Ye shall say, As they do elsewhere, 'Altho' the palm moon's face is bright in silver gleam, in the hush of silent night, yet I hear the whispering hymns of Nature's sweet-voiced lay.'"

There have been published in the Liberator some eight or nine pages concerning the anti-slavery meeting in New York, some of which are of the question, and not one simple word of expression on the part of the Liberator.

It is not best for the whole truth to go forth to the world, and especially to the readers of the Liberator, who are the readers of the Liberator.
