

Launched almost 4 years ago, the European project Labour-Int focuses on the integration of migrant people into the labour market.

The Belgian pilot action coordinated by CEPAG, in close collaboration with Le Monde des Possibles, has led to the implementation of an innovative training methodology aimed at promoting the professional integration of applicants for international protection.

This methodology has evolved since 2018, always pursuing the same objective. As this project is now coming to an end, CEPAG and Le Monde des Possibles are proposing a morning of reflection to take stock and reflect on the different perspectives it has opened up.

This seminar is part of the general perspective of improving the employability of migrant people, which can notably be a response to the lack of manpower observed in certain sectors of activity of the Belgian labour market. It aims to present tools, field studies and alternatives implemented by actors of socio-professional integration to meet the needs and specific support of applicants for international protection for a better professional integration of this public in Belgium.
