

We specialise in PCI and getting companies compliant.

Assessment is demanding. The PCI standard covers a wide range of technical and procedural disciplines. It has been operational for a number of years and follows established, rigid guidelines set by the PCI Security Standards Council.

With Ambersail you can expect to work with a core team that you know and trust. We offer continuity. You are assigned a dedicated QSA team who will get to know your business and payment processing arrangements from the inside out.

People normally associate PCI compliance with an assessment; however, the majority of work to be performed is often centred on preparation for an assessment. Our PCI services are focussed on helping clients understand all PCI requirements and how each relates to their own payment networks and processes.

When assisting you, we take time to understand issues and questions so that we provide the very best independent advice. We base our reputation on getting clients to successful PCI certification as quickly and painlessly as possible.

Our services have been designed to provide the right level of advice, assistance and assessment to get companies PCI compliant. We review and advise on payment networks, applications, products and supporting payment processes. Assistance extends to providing policy materials, classroom training and elearning.

A tried and trusted approach

When it comes to PCI, accuracy is paramount. Accuracy when assessing payment networks and accuracy when providing advice and guidance. As the PCI standard is so exact, the opinion and measurement that we provide needs to be right first time - every time.

Need to speak to a person? Our pledge to clients is that you will get to speak to a qualified team member when you call through.

We work as a team. Our clients can be confident that assessment reports such as the Report On Compliance are comprehensively quality checked for accuracy and consistency.

Cost is always important. Our efficient operation allows us to perform engagements to the highest standard, but without the hefty price tag.

This principle is also applied to assistance- you will only pay for the time we have actually spent on projects. This accountability has ensured that we develop long term relationships with all of our clients.

“We needed a company that could guide us through the entire PCI compliance process; from start to finish. We looked at several options and decided to go with Ambersail as we felt its services could provide a high level of quality at a very competitive price. We were not disappointed.”

“As a start to achieving our PCI DSS compliance, we contacted security companies both from Africa and Europe. Speaking to Ambersail left us feeling confident in their abilities to help us. From the start they were clear and honest with their approach.”
