ELLEN MACARTHUR CANCER TRUST		The Ellen MacArthur Cancer Trust is a charity that takes young people recovering from cancer and leukaemia sailing, building confidence and friendships after treatment. Working with hospitals throughout the UK, the emphasis of our trips is on teamwork and fun, with sailing as the perfect catalyst. Bonding with others in recovery and helming a 42ft yacht can be extremely empowering for a young person who has spent long periods of time in hospital and missed out on school. These trips can have a big impact on restoring the confidence lost during treatment. The young people are invited back annually to continue their Sail Training, and once 18 can return as adult volunteers, providing positive role models for those sailing for the first time.

RONA SAILING PROJECT Telephone: 01489 885098 office@ronasailingproject.org www.ronasailingproject.org/		Every year the RSP takes around 1000 people to sea for a week of sailing adventure. Most have little or no sailing experience but nearly all find it life-changing. We use the sea because it is an unforgiving environment that provides a sense of risk and adventure and running a large sailing vessel requires hard physical teamwork, both above and below deck. At the end of a week's Sail Training you will have an amazing sense of achievement and self-confidence. You will have developed your teamwork and leadership skills and discovered the value of co-operation over conflict. We also specialise in voyages for people with sight or hearing disabilities

Each brig is 30 foot long, has 100 ropes, ten sails and takes 5 young sailors (aged 10+) for approx 2-3 hours at a time - their first trip on a Tall Ship. Our vessels work in exactly the same way as the big ones - except the loads are lighter, the ropes are smaller and everyone gets to do every job - helming, bracing, sheeting in and setting or handing sail - all from the safety of the cockpit. We welcome all abilities - in fact anyone who is prepared to give us three hours of their time to try Tall Ship sailing.
