

2012 State Government Finances Technical Documentation

Introduction

The U.S. Census Bureau conducts an Annual Survey of Government Finances, as authorized by law under Title 13, United States Code, Section 182. The survey coverage includes all state and local governments in the United States. The survey content includes the entire range of government finance activities -- revenue, expenditure, debt, and assets.

The tables and files contained here provide a comprehensive summary of the annual survey findings for state governments, as well as data for individual states. The tables contain detail of revenue by type, expenditure by object and function, indebtedness by term, and assets by purpose. To view the most common aggregate finance categories that are used in tables and special tabulations, see the Government Finance and Employment Classification Manual section entitled Methodology for Summary Tabulations.

To view the 2012 Annual Survey of State Government Finances Methodology, please see the 2012 State Government Finances Methodology [PDF].

Current Dollars

The statistics in these files are in terms of current dollar amounts. They have not been adjusted for price or wage level changes occurring through the years.

Fiscal Years

The statistics relate to state government fiscal years that end on June 30 of the survey year, except for four states with other ending dates: Alabama and Michigan (September 30), New York (March 31), and Texas (August 31).

Coverage

The state government finance data presented by the Census Bureau may differ from data published by state governments because the Census Bureau may be using a different definition of which organizations are covered under the term, "state government."

For the purpose of Census Bureau statistics, the term "state government" refers not only to the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of a given state, but it also includes agencies, institutions, commissions, and public authorities that operate separately or somewhat autonomously from the central state government but where the state government maintains administrative or fiscal control over their activities.

For further information on the definition and organization of governments:

See Chapter 1 of the Government Finance and Employment Classification Manual and the Census of Governments.

File Descriptions

There are two types of available data - summary tables and microdata. Each contains state government financial statistics. The types of data vary somewhat depending upon the survey year.

Summary Table

The summary table contains aggregated summary data for the U.S. and for each state. The summary data include items such as revenue by type, expenditures by function, indebtedness, and cash and security holdings.

Beginning in FY2012, this table is available in American FactFinder.

For FY11 and prior, the lottery table is available in XLS format.

Filename is YYstatess.xls (where YY represents the fiscal year).

Lottery Table

The Lottery Table shows income and apportionment of state-administered lottery funds.

Beginning in FY2012, this table is available in American FactFinder.

For FY11 and prior, the lottery table is available in PDF format.

Filename is YYlottery.pdf (where YY represents the fiscal year).

Ranking Table

No ranking table was produced for 2005 and onward. Ranking tables for previous years should be interpreted with caution. An analysis based on rankings or per capita statistics can be misleading and misinterpreted because of subtle yet important differences in state government organization and economic structure. For example, using total taxes or per capita taxes as a measure of tax burden on the citizens of that state can be misleading because different states use different approaches to taxation. Comparing only the total taxes collected by each state is not enough to understand the economic impact of those states' taxes – one must also understand how those taxes are collected. Comparing taxes across states can be difficult. The Census Bureau's statistics on tax revenue reflect taxes a state collects from activity within the state, not necessarily from its people within a state. Alaska, for instance, does not have general sales taxes or individual income taxes, but it does collect severance taxes from companies that extract oil and natural gas. Like Alaska, Florida also does not collect individual income taxes, but unlike Alaska, Florida instead relies heavily on a general sales tax, which, because of its tourist industry, is partially supported by visitors from outside Florida. In that sense, both Alaska and Florida use “exported taxes” – taxes collected from people or organizations that may reside outside their state.

Similarly, ranking expenditures totals or comparing per capita expenditures is equally challenging since some states directly administer activities that, in other states, are undertaken by local governments, with or without state fiscal aid. The share of government sector financial totals contributed by a state government, therefore, differs materially from one state to another. For example, comparing New York’s direct expenditures on Cash Assistance Payments to Individuals to Oregon may lead to an inaccurate conclusion since all cash assistance payments to individuals in New York State are made by local governments, while in Oregon, they are made by the state government only. Thus a strict ranking or per capita analysis that does not take into account these structural relationships between the state government and the local governments within each state can lead to an invalid analysis and incorrect conclusion.

Coding and Classification Changes in Fiscal Year 2007

There were a number of changes in the classification of state government finance statistics since the 2006 survey period. Effective with the 2007 survey period were the addition of some new codes, redefinitions to existing codes and reintroduction of previous codes that were initially discontinued in 2005. Changes to the state components are noted in the table below.

Discontinued variables are noted in the description column.

New variables are labeled NEW in the description column.

Reasons for the changes (and further references) are discussed in the technical documentation for 2007.

Effective with the 2002 Census of Governments the non-government security categories of corporate bonds and corporate stocks are reported at fair market value in accordance with Statement 34 of the Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB). Users should use caution when comparing asset data from fiscal year 2002 and forward from earlier years.

As a result this dictionary contains two new variables starting in 2002. Item code Z77 is "Employee Retirement-Securities -Corporate Bonds (market value)." Item code Z78 is "Employee Retirement - Corporate Stocks (market value)." Prior to 2002, these two variables were included in the survey at X40 and X41, respectively, and measured at book value (cost basis) instead of at market value. Users can refer to the documentation for the annual survey Public Employee Retirement Systems of State and Local Governments for additional information about these two changes.

Additional items that are impacted by this change (from cost basis to market value accounting) are the Insurance Trust Systems. As a result, any unrealized gains or losses can impact the overall revenues of a particular government unit. Users should consider market variations when examining revenues and assets. For example, when comparing revenues from 2000 to 2004 fluctuations in the insurance trust system will impact total revenues. Thus, users should be aware that changes in total revenues may not actually be the result of real increases or decreases in revenues but may be the result of market variation.
