

Community Health Promoter

Profile and Expectations

The mission of Living Goods is to improve health by equipping Community Health Promoters (CHPs) to provide important health information, services, and products to households in their communities.

Services Provided by Living Goods CHPs

Living Goods CHPs are health service providers who can offer treatments for malaria, diarrhea and pneumonia in their community and also sell better living products to households in their zone of operation, which is normally about 150 to 300 households. CHPs serve their communities, while at the same time, earning income by selling health and household products.

How Living Goods Equips CHPs

Living Goods equips CHPs with:

- Free training for 2 weeks on health and business.
- A business-in-a-bag with tools and branding materials
- A touch phone to support the CHP's health work
- A start-up loan for the purchase of initial products, to be repaid over 6 months
- Ongoing Stocking of products at Living Goods branches
- On-going training as they work

The Investment to become a CHP

To operate as a Living Goods CHP, applicants must:

- Attend two weeks of training and pass the test at the end
- On passing the test, invest UGX 82,000 in the tools and initial inventory to build their business. A 6-month loan is available, with a UGX 25,000 deposit required up-front to get commodities worth 54,000 UGX and a phone worth 270,000 UGX.
- Commit to spending at least 2 hours per day visiting households in their zone.

Who are we looking for?

Living Goods seeks motivated candidates who care about serving their community, will invest in learning about health and business, and would like to earn income through selling health and household products.

To be considered, candidates must meet certain criteria:

- ✓ Commitment: Commitment to providing health needs and products to the community.
- ✓ VHTs: Experience and passion in providing community health care.
- ✓ Age: Between 25 and 45 years old
- ✓ Language: Fluent in the language spoken locally and able to read and easily communicate in English
- ✓ Residency: At least 1 year of staying in the zone where the CHP will operate
