CARLYLE CARTER

Executive Director Board of Directors
CCCAA President/CEO

Since 1940 the California community colleges have become the largest postsecondary education entity in the world. The system is composed of 72 districts, 114 colleges, employs more than 90,000 people, contains approximately 4,890 structures, and encompasses 64.4 million square-feet of space. Of greater importance, its colleges educate more than 2.4 million students each year.

One in every five community college students in the nation attends a California community college, and approximately half of all adult Californians have attended a California community college.

An integral part of this extensive educational system is the Community College League of California (CCLC) and the California Community College Athletic Association (CCCAA).

As authorized by the State Legislature, the Education Code gives the CCCAA the opportunity and authority to establish rules and regulations to administer the athletic activities of more than 24,000 men and women student-athletes within the state.

The CCCAA Board of Directors and Management Council include college administrators, athletic directors, and faculty members who meet throughout the year to establish policies and procedures to maintain a consistency of program operation. In addition, a network of postconference competition has been developed and sponsored by the Association. Each year, more than 100 regional and state final events produce champions in 24 men's and women's sports.

There are nine all-sport conferences, two football-only conferences, and three wrestling-only conferences located geographically throughout California. Each conference is guided by college-developed bylaws which allow all to coexist under the umbrella of the CCCAA Constitution and Bylaws.

The CCCAA annually sponsors Sports Hall of Fame Awards and Scholar-Athlete Awards. Each year, these highly prestigious awards are presented to those who have historically served for the betterment of athletics and those who are designated as scholar-athletes.

The history of the California community college sport alumni is varied and illustrious. NCAA universities and professional sport rosters are bolstered by athletes who started their postsecondary competition in the California community colleges. Moreover, leaders in business and industry around the United States attribute a part of their success to their experiences in the California community colleges.

The California community college system includes 114 colleges which respond to the diverse educational needs of the communities they serve. These colleges provide access to all who can profit from their offerings and are responsive to the mental, emotional, social, and physical needs of their students.

The California community colleges are committed to a curriculum which fosters intellectual development, critical thinking, self-direction, social responsibility, and cultural appreciation. These objectives are accomplished in the context of programs leading to academic excellence, ease of transfer, vocational skill development, and the preparation of students for full and meaningful lives.

Intercollegiate athletic programs for men and women embody the educational principles of the California community colleges. Athletic activities provide learning experiences which align with the Greek concept of sound mind, body, and spirit.

Athletic participation promotes the physical and mental wellbeing of the student-athlete. Sport programs are planned to emphasize principles of good sportsmanship, social consciousness, leadership, cooperation, and individual achievement.

The CCCAA Constitution and Bylaws has been developed to promote and ensure academic progress, amateurism, ethical conduct, and equitable competition for student-athletes. Institutional self-compliance is essential to the achievement of the educational goals of the intercollegiate athletic programs.

The California Community College Athletic Association is authorized by the California Education Code to supervise the administration of the men and women's intercollegiate athletic programs. The CCCAA Constitution and Bylaws includes policies and procedures guiding the administration of California community college athletic programs.

It is the responsibility of the institution to administer its programs in compliance with CCCAA Constitution and Bylaws and conference policies and procedures. Colleges, through their conferences, are given opportunities to provide input into the development of rules and regulations.

The CCCAA is committed to the value of gender equity for both men and women in intercollegiate athletics through its structures, policies, and procedures. The Association and colleges shall act affirmatively to assure gender equity in the quality and quantity of participation in athletics.

The following are vision, mission, and governing values of the CCCAA as listed in Article 1 of the Constitution and Bylaws:

Vision —The CCCAA shall be a student-centered organization focused on academic and athletic excellence.

Mission —The mission of the CCCAA is to advocate for the overall well being of student athletes through the governance, promotion and support of intercollegiate athletic programs.

Values —The CCCAA believes in student health and welfare, academic and athletic success, ethical conduct, accountability, recognition of academic and athletic excellence and an inclusive culture that fosters equitable participation.
