Gartner - Modern Slavery Statement

Gartner has a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery and human trafficking and we are fully committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains or in any part of our business. This Modern Slavery Statement reflects our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all of our business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to help ensure that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our business. Gartner fully recognises that it has a responsibility to be aware of the risks in our business, no matter how remote the possibility, and in our wider supply chain.

About Gartner

Gartner, Inc. (NYSE: IT), together with its global subsidiaries is the world's leading information technology research and advisory company. We deliver the technology-related insight necessary for our clients to make the right decisions, every day. From CIOs and senior IT leaders in corporations and government agencies, to business leaders in high-tech and telecom enterprises and professional services firms, to technology investors, we are the valuable partner to clients in more than 15,000 distinct enterprises worldwide.

Gartner UK Supplier and Supply Chain adherence to our values

Gartner partners with a variety of small to medium size suppliers for the majority of its local requirements and with multi-national suppliers for items such as technology infrastructure and real estate. Gartner has never been made aware of any activities involving either itself or its supply chain that would give concern in relation to slavery or human trafficking. In the event that any such incident were highlighted to Gartner, we would promptly take action in accordance with our legal and moral obligations.

Gartner due diligence processes for slavery and human trafficking

We consider the risk of modern slavery, servitude or human trafficking existing within our business or supply chains to be relatively low. Our suppliers are required to agree to comply with our Supplier Code of Conduct (which strictly forbids all forms of slave labour) under our standard term contracts. They must also complete a due diligence questionnaire relating to modern slavery. We will aim to continue to strengthen our review process going forward.

Gartner Global Policies

Gartner has a number of internal policies to ensure that we are conducting business in an ethical and transparent manner. These include:

1. Recruitment policy. Gartner maintains robust recruitment policies, including conducting eligibility to work in the UK checks for all employees to safeguard against human trafficking or individuals being forced to work against their will. The organisation uses its internal recruiters to source labour and on the rare occasion when it uses an external agency it always verifies the practices of any new agency it is using before accepting workers from that agency.

2. Gartner hotline. Gartner maintains a global hotline which is administered by an independent third party 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. All concerns regarding inappropriate behavior, policy violations or violations of the law may be raised anonymously, and in over 40 languages, on this hotline.

3. Global Code of Conduct. Gartner has a global Code of Conduct. This Code explains the manner in which Gartner behaves as an organisation and how we expect our employees to act.

4. Supplier Code of Conduct. As noted above, Gartner requires that suppliers (including the supplier's employees, representatives and subcontractors) comply with our Supplier Code of Conduct. The Code requires suppliers to commit to conducting business in an ethical and honest manner and in compliance with all applicable laws and regulations, while furthering values of diversity, inclusion, respect and integrity. The Code strictly forbids all forms of slave labour.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes Gartner's slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending December 31, 2019. It will be reviewed and updated annually.
