About Postpartum Support International

Postpartum Support International (PSI) is the world's largest non-profit organization dedicated to helping women and families suffering from perinatal mood and anxiety disorders, including postpartum depression, the most common complication of childbirth. PSI was founded in 1987 to increase awareness and support public and professional communities to address the mental health risks and difficulties during pregnancy and postpartum.

In August 2018, the first Certification in Perinatal Mental Health became available through Postpartum Support International.

PMH-C Certification Purpose

The Perinatal Mental Health Certification Program creates a structure for professional education and evaluation, and a standardization of training and experience to inform families and payers of perinatal mental health specialists. Professional certification indicates that candidates have demonstrated a predetermined minimum level of knowledge, skill, and competency in a specialized area that makes them qualified to provide specialized care. The PMH-C certification curriculum requirements build on professional experience working with the perinatal population, on existing evidence-based perinatal mental health certificate training and add an advanced-training component. Upon successful completion of the certification program requirements, including passing the PSI PMH-C exam, the candidates earn the certification in perinatal mental health and are eligible to use the credential PMH-C. Having a true certification program in perinatal mental health, including the PMH-C as the universal symbol for specialists, highlights the importance of the need for specialty care in this field.

PMH-C Certification Development

PSI has worked with internationally-known certification company, Pearson VUE, to develop, publish, and continually evaluate a computer-based certification exam. Pearson VUE has 30 years' experience providing test delivery and administration services to professional certification organizations. They have more than 250 company-owned testing centers in the US and nearly 20,000 authorized test centers globally. The Perinatal Mental Health Certification exam has been available since August 2018, and as of the end of 2020, 967 providers have earned their PMH-C.

Confirmation of certification:

You will receive an email from the PSI certification team with a copy of your certificate and additional information about the PMH-C Certification the month following successful completion of the PMH-C exam.

Retesting

Once a candidate has been approved to sit for the exam, they are eligible to retake the exam up to 3 times to obtain a passing score. An additional fee must be paid each time the candidate registers for the exam. However, the candidate is not required to resubmit the initial prerequisite application materials necessary to sit for the exam unless after their third attempt they did not receive a passing score.

PSI requires that candidates must wait 3 months between exam attempts. This waiting period exists for exam security reasons and secondary to having one test in the field. It is recommended that the candidate review exam blueprint and other materials to obtain a passing score. Candidates may retest up to 3 times. If a passing score is not obtained after the third attempt, the candidate will need to reapply and seek approval.

The Use of the PMH-C Mark

PMH-C is designated by trademark as the universal symbol for specialists certified in perinatal mental health that have successfully completed specific eligibility requirements and passed the PHM-C exam. PSI has worked with internationally-known certification company, Pearson VUE, to develop and publish a computer-based certification exam for the specialized field of perinatal mental health. The PMH-C certification mark indicates a perinatal mental health specialist to PSI coordinators, women and families seeking specialized care, other healthcare providers, and insurance companies.

The PMH-C certification mark cannot be used by any person who did not fulfill successful completion of all of the PMH-C certification program requirements (specifically, but not limited to, meeting all of the candidate requirements, applying to take the exam, or successfully passing PMH-C exam). Furthermore, certificates are ineligible for use of the PMH-C certification mark if they fail to comply with the certification maintenance requirements (i.e. CEU completion, submission, and/or auditing).

In cases of inappropriate PMH-C certification mark use, the PSI PMH-C Certification Program personnel will notify the individual of inappropriate use of the PMH-C certification mark and require the ineligible individual to stop. Unauthorized use of the PMH-C certification mark is classified by the United States Patent and Trademark Office as trademark infringement and the ineligible individual will be held liable if there is failure to comply.

Reconsideration of Adverse Certification Decisions

By creating and maintaining the PMH-C certification program, PSI remains committed to ensuring that providers are given the proper up-to-date baseline knowledge, competencies, and skills in perinatal mental health in order to provide competent care for pregnant and postpartum mothers and families, and for those planning to become pregnant. The structure of the PMH-C program includes specific criteria including applicant eligibility (including professional practice requirements, education and credentials, and additional evidenced-based certificate training in perinatal mental health - foundational and advanced), computer-based proctored testing for candidates, and the certificants' continuing education requirements to maintain certification.

Applicants, candidates, and certificants may request reconsideration of adverse certification decisions by emailing certification@postpartum.net. The reconsideration request will be reviewed by the certification program personnel (administrator and director). The certification personnel will directly follow up with the individual seeking reconsideration in a timely manner. Adverse certification decisions may include, but are not limited to, denial of eligibility, denial of recertification, or disciplinary actions (including inappropriate use of PMH-C mark).

PMH-C Recertification

The PSI PMH-C certification program is committed to ensuring the public that individuals with the PMH-C certificate are maintaining up-to-date requirements for continued competence and lifelong professional learning in the field of perinatal mental health. As an ever-evolving and rapidly changing healthcare specialty, the PSI PMH-C certification program requires that all certificants renew their certification every 2 years to demonstrate continued competence relative to the specific knowledge, skills, and abilities necessary to the field of perinatal mental health.

PSI PMH-C certification program follows the Institute for Credentialing Excellence (I.C.E.) recertification standards. In order to renew the PMH-C, certificants are responsible for completing 12 approved professional continuing education training (CEUs) specific to the field of perinatal mental health and submitting evidence of those CEUs to the PSI recertification document link on PSI website every 2 years from initial certification. (<https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSeNrKodkUgRMcqkceGB6XD74Ge1JHPM0uf0hRkTagWRaZZg-A/viewform>).

Approval of eligible CEUs is necessary to evaluate whether continuing education training supports continuing competence in their learning-oriented quality, relevance of content, effectiveness of delivery method, and noncommercial or sponsorship bias). Approved CEUs are required to be completed and can be viewed on the PSI recertification document link on the PSI website:

https://docs.google.com/spreadsheets/d/e/2PACX-1vTCgWei2a26ysOQ9qMoW7QXvDaOqeUR6nmBUF7jBNdh_Yu02ICmBg2CL43z2t87Z9UL1ZbQDoUhoXxy/pubhtml. If the renewing certificate seeks to submit a training not on the approved list, they may submit CEU inquiry requesting approval for use to the following link found on the PSI website: <https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSeg7x7vimx6RMXxVdm9VGPITiK6CbReddI7GldTeB0heK5EVQ/viewform>.

CE submissions are reviewed and approved quarterly. January, April, July, October. The renewing certificate will hear back from PSI PMH-C certification program personnel regarding their renewal status (approval, follow-up) at the quarterly review.

The PMH-C certification expires every two years. Certificants need to renew on or before the same day of the second year after their initial certification to renew their PMH-C. Failure to renew will result in the automatic placement of the certification in “Suspended” status and the inability to use the PMH-C credentials. Renewal of the PMH-C requires the submission of 12 CEs related to their PMH-C track. The renewal will be good for two years. If the certification status remains “Suspended” for more than six (6) months, the certification will be classified as “Expired.” The candidate will have to reapply for a single 6-month extension of the recertification deadline to complete the requirements. The application for an extension and a $75 extension fee must be received before the recertification deadline and the certification expiration date. Please complete this form (Neon extension form + payment) to apply for an extension. The PSI Certification staff will respond in writing via email that the extension has been granted. The extension is only for submitting the recertification application. The next certification period expiration date is based on the date of initial certification. Failure to renew the certification a year after the initial certification expires will require a re-examination.

Certificants who do not comply with the PSI PMH-C recertification requirements are not eligible to use the PMH-C mark and the certification will be discontinued for noncompliance.

Certificants with questions, reporting of data errors, appeals, or requests for reconsideration for adverse recertification decisions may contact certification@postpartum.net.
